WAGNER AND FOLEY LOOM AS CANDIDATES TO OPPOSE HYLAN

Both Put Forward as Probable Choice of Tammany for the Mayoralty.

OLVANY DELAYS DECISION

CANVASS IS COMPLETED

Reports of District Leaders as to the Sentiment for Hylan Received by Tammany Chief.

Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Wagner and Surrogate James A. Foley are coming to the front as probable candidates for the Mayoralty to be put forward by Tammany to displace Mayor Hylan for the Democratic nomination for the head of the city ticket.

Neither is an active aspirant for the nomination, it was said yesterday, but the opinion among prominent Tammany leaders is that either could defeat Mayor Hylan for the nomination if the Mayor should decide to enter the Democratic primaries after being informed that he would not be the choice of the organization. It is the belief also in Tammany that either Justice Wagner or Surrogate Foley would be a strong candidate at the election if Mayor Hylan should decide to run independently, and that either, because of his past record, would be likely to get strong independent, and perhaps Republican, support.

Tammany, represented by George W. Olvany, its leader, has so far made no definite decision as to whether it would oppose Mayor Hylan's renomination, it was learned from a well-informed Tammany leader. Judge Olvany, it was said, was still delaying a definite decision, which, according to the best information obtainable, is likely to be postponed for another two weeks.

The belief in Tammany is that the delay in breaking with the Mayor, if a break is to come, is largely for reasons of expediency. Mayor Hylan has important appointments to make, including the members of the new Board of Appeals and three Justices of the Court of Special Sessions. Tammany and the Brooklyn Democratic organization, it was said, would like to get some of those places, if possible, and in any event is in no hurry to begin a war on Mayor Hylan and jeopardize the places held by Tammany men in the Hylan Administration any sooner than it must.

Strategy in Delay.

A certain strategic advantage was said by Tammany men to be gained by keeping Mayor Hylan and his supporters uncertain as to whether the Tammany organization would support him or not. If refused support for renomination by Tammany and Democratic organizations in other boroughs, Mayor Hylan must then make up his mind whether he will make a contest in the Democratic primaries, run for Mayor independently or retire. One view expressed by opponents of the Mayor was that keeping him guessing until the last minute possible would make his entrance into the primaries less likely and prevent his getting a start on the formation of an organization to support him as an independent candidate.

Practically all the Tammany Assembly district leaders were at Tammany Hall on Saturday for the Fourth of July celebration of the Tammany Society. While few would discuss the possibility of the organization turning down Mayor Hylan, it was significant that the conversation of practically all was based on the assumption that this would probably be done.

It was among the Tammany district leaders that the sentiment for Justice Wagner and Surrogate Foley was most apparent, and there also was considerable support for Senator James J. Walker, Democratic leader of the State Senate, whose boom was launched by the visit of a large delegation to Tammany Hall last Thursday.

Olvany's Canvass Completed.

The canvass undertaken by Judge Olvany to ascertain the sentiment concerning Mayor Hylan was said to have been completed. As is customary, the Tammany canvass has been conducted along organization lines, the election district captains reporting to each district leader and each leader reporting in person to Judge Olvany. As these reports have been oral, probably no one but Judge Olvany knows just what the canvass has disclosed, but it is believed that the organization sentiment shown has been largely against the Mayor.

Judge Olvany is understood also to have asked whether those districts in which strong Hylan sentiment existed would go for the Mayor against an organization candidate if some one else were nominated. He was said to have been assured that even these districts would give a plurality for the organization candidate.

The canvass of the district leaders was said to have failed to show even one who would support Mayor Hylan against a candidate of the organization if a candidate such as Justice Wagner or Surrogate Foley were selected. It was said that Judge Olvany would have practically undivided organization support for any generally acceptable candidate he might choose, and that such leaders as Deputy County Clerk Thomas M. Farley, who announced he favored Mayor Hylan's renomination, and Dock

Labor's Aid in Traffic Safety Arranged by Green and Hoover

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—By agreement between Secretary Hoover and William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, arrangements have been made to bring labor organizations generally into service in an attempt to reduce traffic casualties.

Mr. Green, inquiring as to the work of the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, which held its first session last Fall, suggested to Mr. Hoover that central labor organizations all over the country receive the reports of the conference.

Secretary Hoover, accepting, also proposed that the labor organizations should arrange to hold local meetings for discussion of the safety methods under study by the conference. A policy of having labor representatives serve with Municipal Governments and civic associations in working to improve conditions also was outlined.

URGES COMPETITION IN ANTHRACITE FIELD

PRICE CONTROL IS OPPOSED

Periodic Publication of Facts Suggested—Strike Threats Add Interest to Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The establishment of more effective competition in the anthracite coal industry to provide the public with an adequate supply at fair prices is recommended to Congress and price regulation is opposed by the Federal Trade Commission in a report made public today.

The railroad coal monopolies, it was asserted, have controlled more than two-thirds of the output of the anthracite fields, and wholesale and retail dealers have joined with producers in pyramiding prices at the expense of the consumer.

The commission reports that the output has remained at a stationary level for several years, despite the high prices obtainable and the heavy demand. It is stated that the Department of Justice has met with some success in its efforts to keep up competition in the industry, and it is recommended that further steps be taken to prevent a recurrence of high premium prices.

The report has attracted unusual interest because of the threats made recently that the miners of the bituminous coal fields would go on strike if demands for heavy wage increases were refused by the operators.

Strike Threats Stir Fear of Shortage.

A shortage in the bituminous coal supply, caused by a strike, would bring an increase in the demand for anthracite, over normal, and the result would be acute shortage of coal of all kinds.

The threat of a strike in the anthracite fields is also present, and a tie-up imminent. The wage contract of the anthracite miners expires on Aug. 31 and the anthracite miners have already formulated their demand for a 10 per cent. increase in wages and the recognition of the check-off by the operators.

This situation, as well as the threat by John L. Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, of calling out the bituminous miners if the operators of that industry continue alleged violations of their contracts, has been called to the attention of President Coolidge. The joint scale committee of the anthracite fields are to meet soon in Atlantic City and the labor issues in the coal fields may then come to a head.

Under the most favorable conditions the supply of anthracite in certain seasons has seldom kept pace with the demand because of the limited amount which has been mined by the companies in control of the anthracite fields. The commission's report is accepted as expressing the viewpoint that development of the anthracite fields has been kept down in an unwarranted manner by the companies in control.

"In spite of steadily increasing prices and large untouched coal land reserves of the railroad companies, some of which at the present rate of production would last more than a hundred years," the report says, "the output has remained comparatively stationary for a number of years."

Hindered by Lack of Information.

The commission feels that more information as to the actual conditions in the coal industry should be obtained and placed before the public. The sugges-

SHORT CIRCUIT BURNS HUGE BRIDGE GIRDER; STOPS B. M. T. TRAINS

ALL TRAFFIC OFF 3 HOURS

REPAIRS BY NOON TODAY

Late Fourth of July Homebound Crowds Delayed—Arrangements for Today.

A fire on Williamsburg Bridge, caused by a short circuit, early yesterday morning stopped all traffic over the bridge for three hours. A girder, partly consumed by the intense heat, was so weakened that engineers of the Department of Plant and Structures declared that the bridge was unsafe for the passage of the B. M. T. rapid transit trains and their operation will not be resumed until the replacement of the girder, which is expected to be some time after noon today.

The fire took place at 2:45. Vehicular and pedestrian traffic was resumed three hours later and the operation of the surface cars, which are run by the city, soon afterward. William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, offered to William S. Menden, President of the B. M. T., the use of the bridge cars, and "block" tickets were issued to the B. M. T. passengers, entitling them to free transfer to the bridge cars and to the B. M. T. subway in Manhattan. This process was reversed for passengers going from Manhattan to Brooklyn.

Buses to Aid Service.

Special arrangements for the accommodation of the thousands of passengers who cross the bridge daily in B. M. T. trains were announced by the company for this morning or until the resumption of its regular service. The company will augment the bridge car service by buses and will put into effect shuttle service in the Centre Street loop and issue emergency transfer tickets to enable passengers to continue to their destination by B. M. T. lines without paying an additional fare.

The company's announcement of its emergency arrangements follows:

All trains of the Canarsie line will run to the Marcy Avenue station of the Broadway (Brooklyn) elevated; all Broadway elevated trains of the Jamaica line during rush hours will run to Hewes Street only, and a shuttle service will be operated in the Centre Street loop between Essex Street and Chambers Street.

By courtesy of Commissioner William Wirt Mills, the city's bridge local line will honor block tickets issued by the B. M. T. to passengers at Marcy Avenue, Hewes Street or Essex Street, so that passengers can ride over the Williamsburg Bridge by making these two transfers.

In addition, the B. M. T. on Monday morning will run its buses between Hewes Street at Broadway in Brooklyn, and Essex Street, Manhattan, and block tickets will be accepted on the buses for the ride between these two points. When block tickets are issued at Hewes Street, they will be honored for passage to the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza on the B. M. T. trolley lines in Broadway.

All Chambers Street trains of the Myrtle Avenue line and some of the trains on the Jamaica-Chambers Street line will be discontinued and additional service on each of these lines will be operated to Park Row, where special transfer tickets will be issued to passengers desiring to use the Broadway (B. M. T.) subway in Manhattan. These transfers will be accepted at the City Hall station and also at Chambers Street. Similar transfer tickets will be issued at the City Hall and Chambers Street stations to passengers desiring to go to Brooklyn via trains from Park Row.

Heat Fuses Power Cables.

The fire caused the firemen considerable difficulty. The "dry standpipe" along the bridge was connected with high pressure hydrants and three lines of hose attached in a "Siamese" connection, but fear of the high voltage in the power cables prevented the firemen from turning on the water for ten min-

History of Egypt Carried Back 14,000 Years; Relics of Earliest Art Found Near Asgut

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—A continuous view of successive civilizations in Egypt, carried back some 14,000 years, is provided as a result of the discoveries of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt, says Professor Sir Flinders Petrie, writing in The London Times. During the last Winter, he says, the work of the school was devoted to excavating the remains of the earliest civilization, known as the Badarian civilization, so-called from the name of the district which is south of Asyut.

Discoveries there by Mrs. Guy Brunton and Miss Caton Thompson confirm the theory that this civilization, he said, was the foundation of much that is seen in well-known prehistoric times.

"Ivory work of combs and spoons," writes Professor Petri, "slate palettes for grinding malachite, eye paint, glazed stone beads and some kind of pottery continued to these later times, but the finest pottery, conspicuous for its thinness and finish, is confined to the Badarian period, and the style of the statuettes is also distinctive.

"It had been already noted that the workmanship of flint implements was like that found in the Fayum region and across to Palestine. Miss Caton Thompson therefore searched north of Fayum and found many settlements of this age. These settlements extend down the desert slopes to a level which was covered by the lake since about 12,000 B. C., and this gives the minimum age for the Badarian civilization.

"This, in turn, will imply a date for subsequent prehistoric work rather earlier than hitherto assigned.

"Dating by the level of the Nile, which gradually raised its mud bed nearly five feet in a thousand years, is of value for determining historic times.

"The colossi of Amen-em-hat III at Biahmu had their courtyards under the high Nile by 3000 B. C., and therefore the twelfth dynasty must have been before that age, as the Egyptians themselves stated.

"Thus, owing to the discoveries in the field and the researches following on these, we now have a perfectly continuous view of successive civilizations of Egypt carried back some 14,000 years.

"The source of these Badarian arts must be referred to some centre in common with the solutrian age of Europe, wherewith they were contemporary, and which shared the same styles of flint work.

"Probably the Caucasus was the home of both these branches of culture."

TWO PYROMANIACS SOUGHT

Alcohol-Soaked Rubbish Found After a Second Blaze—Fireman Proves a Hero.

A woman was burned so badly that she died later in a hospital, several firemen were overcome by smoke and more than fifty persons were driven to the street by a fire that burned from the cellar to the top floor of a four-story tenement at 429 West Fiftieth Street, early yesterday morning. A search for two pyromaniacs was begun by Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy after an incendiary fire had been started in another tenement house, at 20 West Sixty-fifth Street, several hours later.

Rubbish soaked with alcohol was found in a vacant apartment in the building where the second fire started. The carpet on the stairway also was soaked with alcohol. One tenant of the second building reported that she had seen two men running away soon after she was aroused by smoke and the crackle of the flames.

The first fire was at 3:30 o'clock in the morning. So rapidly did the flames eat their way from the cellar to the top floor that Mrs. Mary Legg, 50, was trapped in her bed in an apartment on the fourth floor. She was unconscious when lifted from her burning bed by a fireman. At the City Hospital, where she was taken, it was found that she was terribly burned on the face, hands and body. She died there later in the afternoon.

Makes Perilous Trip Up Ladder.

John White, driver of Hook and Ladder 4, carried Mrs. Legg from the building. An aerial ladder was raised to the roof and White, jumping off his truck, climbed up the ladder while it was being put in place. He knew that precious moments might be lost.

He clung to the topmost rungs while the ladder was still swaying and swinging toward the side of the building. With a space of two or three feet still between the ladder and the building, White swung himself out and dropped astride the window sill. He found the room filled with smoke. He dropped on his hands and knees and crawled along the floor where the smoke was the least dense. In that way he explored several rooms before he came to the bedroom where he found Mrs. Legg.

The bed clothes were afire. Mrs. Legg lay in a stupor, in a ring of fire that was slowly eating its way through the flimsy bed linens. White pulled her out of the bed and dragged her to the window where the aerial ladder was now propped against the wall. Unaided he lifted his helpless burden over the window ledge. Bracing himself he slid down the ladder, carrying Mrs. Legg to the street.

White was near collapse when other firemen ran to his assistance. Mrs. Legg was treated by an ambulance surgeon and removed to the City Hospital.

Firemen Thomas Bohan and George Russell of Engine Company 54 were overcome by smoke while fighting the fire. Their comrades rescued them and took them to the street, where they received first aid treatment. Drs. Bonanno and McDaniels of the City Hospital worked over the two firemen for ten minutes before they could revive them. Bohan and Russell were sent back to their company's quarters. Fireman Thomas Raisen was overcome by smoke, but responded quickly to first aid treatment and remained at his post.

Fireman James Walsh of Hook and Ladder 40 was cut on the hand by broken glass, but was able to continue his work.

Several Daring Rescues.

Several daring rescues were made before the building was cleared of all its tenants. The fire spread so rapidly that many tenants hardly had time to flee to the fire-escapes. George Clardy and his wife, when aroused by the shouts of warning and the clatter of the fire apparatus, gathered up their five children and led them to fire-escapes in the

REMOVE 41 BODIES FROM BOSTON RUINS

SEARCH FAR FROM ENDED

Some of the Injured Likely to Die—Governor Fuller Orders Swift Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., July 5.—Forty-one bodies, of whom thirty-three in all had been identified, had been recovered at a late hour tonight in the ruins of the Pickwick Club building on Beach Street.

Although more than 200 rescue workers were removing the débris throughout the day, not a body was recovered from early forenoon until 6 o'clock tonight.

As the flood of electric lights once more illuminated the scene new groups of victims were found among the tangled mass of timbers, iron beams, bricks and plaster. Every moment brought forth evidence of other victims still more deeply imbedded in the wreckage.

Firemen, elevated road workmen and employes of the city Public Works Department comprised the crew that labored in the ruins of the five-story building, which sent scores to death or serious injury when it collapsed early yesterday morning.

The flood lights created a picture resembling the stage of a theatre without curtains. The scene was one of cross-sections, showing portions of rooms still hanging from the back walls of the wrecked building, with some furniture still in place and pictures hanging on the wall, while beneath the workers continued the task of recovering bodies.

The balconies filled with spectators were real balconies, the fire escapes of the surrounding buildings, and one side, overlooking the whole area, was the Olympia Theatre with its signs completing the stage picture.

The authorities refused tonight to estimate the probable number of dead in the calamity. It has been impossible to check up on the total of merrymakers at the club. Some of the sixteen injured, now in the hospitals, are likely to die.

While the work of recovering bodies was going on the officials of city and State were preparing to begin inquiries concerning the disaster. District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien was at the scene most of the day and tomorrow he will present to the Grand Jury the evidence he has gathered.

Tonight Governor Fuller announced that he had ordered the Commissioner of Safety, A. F. Foote, to make an investigation of the collapse and report to him at once.

All the other night clubs in the city have been closed pending inspection of their buildings.

LONG FIGHT OVER STILLS

But Both Declare They Do Not Know Their Assailants or Why They Were Seized.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 5—Dr. W. D. Mason, veterinary surgeon and Lawrence Bowman, alleged feudist, an aid of Federal prohibition agents, who had been missing for ten days, were found chained to a tree on Signal Mountain today by Jim Thomas, mountaineer. Sam Godsey, Deputy Sheriff, alleged leader of a feud clan, said that the men's disappearance was a frame-up. Sheriff Tom Selman said that the story appeared dubious to him and that he would go to the bottom of the affair. It had been thought, since the two men disappeared and their automobile had been found covered with blood, that they had been the victims of a feud, in which the Bowman family had been opposed to the Godsey clan.

Both men were alive but in serious condition due to their long exposure and insufficient nourishment. They were brought to the city in an ambulance.

Mason and Bowman, after being sufficiently revived, stated that they had been set upon the night of their disappearance by five hooded men, carried off from Dr. Mason's car and chained to a tree. Each night they were blindfolded and removed to another place, they stated.

As the two men were found on a spot that was previously searched by a posse, it is believed that the men were moved each night to a section of the mountain that was searched on the previous day by the posse to prevent their discovery.

Although very thirsty, Bowman was able to talk, according to Thomas, but Mason did not speak. Bowman said that it had been four days since Mason had eaten, having become angry at being held captive and refused to eat and drink on one occasion. The captors then grew angry with Mason, Bowman stated, and refused either to feed him or give him water.

Thought Man Was an Apparition.

The men were found when Thomas, accompanied by his 9-year-old grandson and a German police dog, was seeking hogs that had escaped from his farm. He was amazed, he stated, when he saw Bowman, his face covered with a heavy growth of beard, and thought he was an apparition.

"I first asked him if he was thirsty," Thomas stated. "With an oath, he replied, 'Yes.' I always carry water on my horse, as it is impossible to secure water on the mountain due to the long drought. I fetched him a bottle of water which he grabbed at greedily. I succeeded in twisting it from his frenzied grip after he had taken about three swallows, as I feared the effects might kill him.

"I then turned my attention to Dr. Mason who was lying in a stupor, and Lawrence said he had not spoken all morning. I forced the mouth of the bottle through his lips and allowed the water to go through his teeth.

"Presently he began to show signs of life and began sucking at the bottle. I let him have about three or four spoonsful, but was afraid to give him any more.

"Leaving my little grandson with the men I rushed off to the nearest telephone. I couldn't find the Sheriff's telephone number, so I communicated with Joe Willis's stable, from where ambulances were secured for them.

"I then realized that I shouldn't have left the boy alone, for the bandits might have come back and killed him as well as spirited the men away. However, nothing like this occurred, the men having been frightened away.

"Bowman told me that they usually kept guard over them some distance away. From where I found them a creek runs only a short distance away. The sun beat down upon them unmercifully, while gnats, mosquitos and other insects preyed on their bodies.

"Dr. Mason's wrists were badly cut by the handcuff, which I severed with a saw and file I secured at the home from where I called the ambulances. The handcuffs were fastened to the chain, which was wrapped around the tree. Mason was chained the tightest,

MEXICO CITY, July 5.—El Universal publishes a dispatch from Gomez Palacios, Durango, saying railway men tried to wreck the train of President Calles. The engineer noticed the bearings of his engine were getting heated and he was compelled to slow down the train several times. President Calles by wire ordered the instant dismissal of the foremen of the roundhouses at Gomez Palacios and Lerdo, where the engine had been overhauled. Strikes at the shops began last week.

ASK MARRIAGE BAN ON ALL THE DIVORCED

MANNING AIDS MOVEMENT

The Sanctity of Marriage Association launched a movement yesterday to bar absolutely the marriage of divorced persons in the Protestant Episcopal Church. The association announced that it was sending a petition for the repeal of the one proviso by which innocent parties in divorces based on infidelity have been allowed to remarry, to the General Convention of the Episcopal Church for presentation at the triennial convention in New Orleans in October. The petition attacks the proviso on the ground that it is unscriptural and contrary to the practice of the early Christian Church.

The Sanctity of Marriage Association is headed by the Rev. Dr. Milo H. Gates, vicar of the Chapel of the Intercession, Trinity Parish, and its Executive Committee includes, among others, Bishop William T. Manning, Bishop Frederick Burgess of Long Island and Bishop Paul Matthews of New Jersey.

The proviso to the canon forbidding the remarriage of divorced persons is as follows:

"This canon shall not be held to apply to the innocent party in a divorce for adultery; provided, that before the application for such remarriage a period of not less than one year shall have elapsed after the granting of such divorce; and that satisfactory evidence touching the facts in the case, including a copy of the court's decree, and record if practicable, with proof that the defendant was personally served or appeared in the action, be laid before the ecclesiastical authority, and such ecclesiastical authority, having taken legal action thereon, shall have declared in writing that in his judgment the case of the applicant conforms to the requirements of the canon; and provided, further, that it shall be within the discretion of any minister to decline to solemnize any marriage."

Bans Provided by the Canon.

The canon itself is:

"No minister, knowingly after due inquiry, shall solemnize the marriage of any person who has been or is the husband or the wife of any other person living from whom he or she has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage. Nor shall it be lawful for any member of this Church to enter upon a marriage when either of the contracting parties is the husband or the wife of any other person then living from whom he or she has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage."

The association gives the following seven reasons why in its judgment the one "exception" should be repealed:

"Because nowhere in the New Testament is there a single word in support of remarriage of either party after 'putting away' during the lifetime of the other.

"Because nowhere either in the Old or the New Testament is there any assumption, much less assertion, of the modern theory that adultery, or any other sin, ipso facto, dissolves a marriage, which is not a mere contract but a state or condition.

"Because nowhere in the history of the first three centuries, when the Church was suffering persecution and was free from all entanglements with the State, can there be found a single author who interprets the exceptive clauses of St. Matthew about 'putting away' as reason for remarriage during the life of the other party.

"Because nowhere since the fourth

PARIS, July 5.—The situation on the Moroccan front has taken so serious a turn the French Government today felt it necessary to warn the country of the exact state of affairs, going even so far as to intimate that recent developments have rendered obligatory a retreat of French forces along a large section of the front.

Premier Painlevé himself discussed the situation extensively, declaring the Cabinet intended to designate tomorrow an army chief who will take complete charge of military operations, thus enabling Marshal Lyautey to concentrate his efforts on nullifying the propaganda with which Abd-el-Krim has won to his side in the last few weeks four tribes previously faithful to the French. The leading possibilities for this post are Generals Targe, Weygand and Duport.

"However disagreeable may be the defections and however great be the demand on the efforts and heroism of our soldiers," said M. Painlevé, "I repeat solemnly that Fez is absolutely safe and has nothing to fear from Abd-el-Krim's warriors."

Marshal Lyautey has informed the French Government that unless it provides enough troops to begin an immediate offensive against the Riffians he will not accept responsibility for the situation which develops. Even more than a new leader the Government realizes what is needed in Morocco is more men, plentifully equipped; armored cars, airplanes and especially good riflemen and skirmishers.

French Line Is Opened.

An official communiqué issued by the Cabinet today announces that tribes formally faithful to the French went over suddenly to the enemy, thus opening a vast hole in the front through which Abd-el-Krim could hurl a violent offensive against French regulars. The regulars, declares the communiqué, are placing themselves in the best possible position to repulse the enemy and make him pay heavily for his aggression. The communiqué then continues as follows:

"It is highly important public opinion should not be at all disturbed by episodes inevitable in colonial warfare wherein defections always more or less accompany military operations. It must not be forgotten that the present operations in Morocco are confronted by difficulties which render them different from operations previously conducted in the same country or operations in Europe. On the one hand our adversaries are much better armed than they were six years ago, their attacks are more numerous and, better coordinated on a much more extended front, and they know how to utilize, especially in certain regions, advantages of terrain and defense measures such as trenches, shelters, barb wire, &c.

"On the other hand, tactics of a modern army, notably concentration of forces for striking decisive blows, if employed too systematically, produce isolation of faithful tribes and consequent defection, following which occurs an increase of infiltration of enemy contingents.

"We must therefore not be astonished or alarmed if over so vast a front difficulties of the character described above should necessitate retirement in some localities and reorganization and reconcentration of forces in order that they might organize a more vigorous counter-offensive."

Offensive Urged to Stop Desertions.

Mussulman authorities, says a message from Fez, declare that only a lightning offensive can prevent further disaffection among the tribes. In an effort to counteract this spirit, the French today counter-attacked in several places along practically the whole front. North of Ouezzan they used heavy artillery and airplanes to bombard enemy villages, and the official communiqué states they profoundly demoralized the enemy.

Further east another mobile column made a night march against Teroual, which was reached despite stubborn resistance. In the upper Leben Valley a stern fight has gone on all today with the French on the offensive and the important position of Bab Taza recaptured. Bou Halima also has been relieved after heavy fighting with hand grenades. The communique adds with a certain indefiniteness as to actual position that the French troops engaged "in front of Taza" with important enemy forces belonging to three separate fighting bands which are being slowly driven back.

Yesterday and today for the first time the French censor has slightly raised the veil on the seriousness of the situation. The Temps correspondent writes that disaffection of the tribes has be-

2 New Police Trucks Ready With Squads To Cope With Fires, Wrecks and Riots

A new police emergency service—the first of its kind in the world—will begin operation in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn tomorrow morning, it was learned in Police Department circles last night. The service will start with two new emergency trucks, of a special type, built by the White Motor Truck Company, at a cost of about $14,000 each.

One of the new trucks, garaged at the West Thirtieth Street Station, will serve Manhattan and the Bronx; the other, located at the Poplar Street Station, Brooklyn, will serve Brooklyn and Queens. Each truck, in charge of a Police Lieutenant, will carry a specially trained personnel, consisting of three sergeants and twenty-one patrolmen.

The new service will combine the duties of a rescue squad, pulmotor truck, riot platoon, first aid and motor patrol squad. Each of the trucks, in its territory, will attend all fires of over two alarms, riots, train wrecks or automobile collisions in which a number of persons are injured or imperiled.

Fully equipped the new trucks will cost more than $20,000 each and provide New York City with a police emergency service said to be unequaled anywhere. The trucks are enameled in dark blue and bear in gold letters: "Police Department Emergency Service." Each is capable of speed of more than sixty miles an hour, the average gait at which they are expected to travel.

The equipment carried by the trucks includes 12 fire axes, 2 pulmotors, 6 acetylene torches, one life line, one rope cannon, 8 stretchers, 6 hydraulic jacks, 6 searchlights, 4 cot beds, 6 camp chairs, one full medical chest of complete surgical equipment, 6 gas helmets, 6 blankets, special clothing for injured and personnel, and many items of minor importance.

Voorhis's Office Is Under Jersey Apple Tree; To Stay at Old Home Until He Is 96 on July 27

POMPTON LAKE, N. J., July 5.—John R. Voorhis, President of the Board of Elections in New York City, and Grand Sachem of the Tammany Society, who came here to recuperate from an illness and to celebrate his ninety-sixth birthday at the place where he was born, has opened an office of the Board of Elections beneath an apple tree.

The venerable Tammany leader is the guest of Albert Van Saun, a farmer and Justice of the Peace, who lives on the Newark-Pompton Turnpike, between Pompton Plains and Pompton Lake. Yesterday Mr. Voorhis unloaded a box of books and writing material on a pine table, strategically placed in back of the barn and underneath an apple tree. He said that his office would function here for the month or so that he remained.

In a house that once stood across the highway from the Van Saun farm Mr. Voorhis was born. Although he has no relatives here, he comes back regularly to the scene of his early days. He will be 96 years old on July 27.

come a matter of hourly anxiety and in some cases has caused immediate shifting of the whole front. The Branes tribesmen, for instance, as long ago as June 26 deserted from the front line and the second line of mixed French and Senegalese troops suddenly found themselves opposed by men whom they imagined covering them from attack.

The danger is especially great in the Taza district as only a few miles now separate the Riffians from the mountain district of Taza inhabited by tribes which never have been subdued.

French Tribes in Ferment.

PARIS, July 5.—A general uprising of most of the Morrocean tribes friendly to the French, both in front and behind their lines, has begun and Sultan Mulay Yussef's capital, Fez, and the strategic town of Taza(are gravely menaced, as well as the main railway to Algeria.

Marshal Lyautey, French high commissioner, has only a force of 100,000, of which two-thirds are French officered native troops. This force is hopelessly inadequate.

He has sent an urgent message to Paris refusing to take the responsibility for the security of the vast French Empire in Morocco unless the Government sends him at least 80,000 French troops, and in face of the general apathy and violent Bolshevist propaganda in France and the aggressive German spirit the Government is hesitating.

As a rule the French newspapers have published only communiqués, particularly because there is a censorship in Morocco, but the Journal des Débâts says today:

"The political situation commences to become bad in the region of Fez. All the tribes which had remained faithful—Cheragas, Branes, Touls and Hyanis—are showing signs of fatigue, and two-thirds of the Branes, who have been occupied by the Riffians, are disillusioned because they cannot harvest, and instead of driving out the Riffians, as we promise, they learn daily with bitterness of new Riffian incursions. The Mussulman authorities say frankly that unless the French offensive is made soon all faithful tribes will desert."

French Offensive on the Leben.

FEZ, French Morocco, July 5 (AP).—A French flying column operating against the rebellious Moroccan tribesmen on the upper Leben River, says a communiqué issued today, made an offensive northward, and after very heavy fighting succeeded in occupying a strong position at Bab Taza. The French enabled the garrison post at Bou Alima to withdraw, after destroying the enemy works, and it is believed the Riffians suffered severe losses.

In the eastern section, the communiqué says that French troops during the night of July 3-4 drove the enemy from Bab Tifilassen, to the west of Kifane, occupying the position.

TANGIERS, July 5.—The situation on the Riff front is causing the French authorities anxiety. In the centre Riff contingents are back behind the French lines and are again reported in strength in the region of the Leben Valley not far from Tissa, where only last week they suffered a reverse.

Their presence in this district may at any moment threaten communications between Fez and the French base camp at Ain Aicha. Further east in the Taza region the situation is frankly acknowledged to be strained and enemy pressure increasing.

PARIS, July 5.—The Congress of French Communists which is being held at Paris adopted resolutions today declaring in favor of a general strike against the Moroccan war and against the "Caillaux laws."

The Congress appointed a committee of 150 members who are charged with the task of organizing an executive commission which shall have power to take all decisions and steps required to meet the situation.

The Communists also selected a committee to investigate military operations in Morocco and a delegation of this committee was instructed to call upon Premier Painlevé in order to obtain from him the necessary authorizations.

10-YEAR MORATORIUM FOR ITALY IS URGED

Rome Paper Says Debt Delay Would Give Lira a Chance to Come Back.

ROME, Italy, July 5 (AP).—Commenting on the debt situation, the Messaggero asks at what rate of exchange should Italy be called on to repay her debts. It argues that it would be absurd to demand the rate prevailing when the loan was made, because Italy received neither the American nor the British loan in dollars or sterling, but in raw material.

Thus, declares the paper, if Italy must pay at the present rate of exchange the loan will have quadrupled in amount.

"If Italy undertakes to make payments in the present circumstances," continues the paper, "it will mean a corresponding depreciation of the lira. Therefore, the more she pays the more she will have to pay."

The Messaggero urges the reasonableness of a ten-year moratorium at least, thus giving Italy an opportunity to bring her economic status, and consequently her currency, back to what it was when the loan was made, and then perhaps it would be possible to begin nominal payments.

The paper alludes to the lenient terms accorded Germany when the mark collapsed and asks if a nation which fought for the common cause with the rest of the Allies should have less generous treatment.

20 PERSONS ARRESTED FOR ST. PETER'S THEFT

But No Clew to Robbers Is Found—Loss Is Now Put at 1,000,000 Lire.

ROME, July 5 (AP).—Cardinal Merry Del Val, Archpriest of St. Peter's, declared today that the loss sustained by St. Peter's through the robbery on Friday night, when thieves escaped with many irreplaceable objects, surpassed 1,000,000 lire. Fortunately, however, the thieves evidently did not know that more most precious objects were near by, which were untouched.

The police are making every effort to discover and arrest the thieves, and have already taken twenty persons into custody, among them being Giovanni Bellini, foreman of the workmen engaged in repairing the sacristy, located above the Treasury of St. Peter's, from which the relics and historic treasures were stolen. The arrested persons have been searched, but nothing definite was learned.

Signor Federzoni has entrusted the head of the police in the Vatican quarter to express to Cardinal Merry Del Val his regret over the theft. The Minister of the Interior asked the police head to assure the Cardinal that he was personally interested in the efforts to locate the guilty and recover the stolen objects.

FIND GOVERNMENT OF NEW YORK 'FAIR'

Opinions of Out-of-Town Specialists Quoted by Public Service Institute Director.

REPLY TO MISRULE CHARGE

Department of Finance, Fire, Police and Health Above Average; Schools and Parks Below.

Opinions of out-of-town "specialists in government" to the general effect that New York City has a fair Administration were quoted yesterday by William H. Allen, Director of the Institute for Public Service. Mr. Allen explained that he had sought these opinions as a result of the Republican charge that New York City's Government was "a byword of misrule among the country's municipalities."

Mr. Allen said that New York City departments which these outside experts said they considered above the average included finance, fire, water supply, street traffic control, police and health work, while schools, docks, Public Service Commission, park maintenance and welfare were mentioned as below the average.

"To the traveler or superficial observer New York appears to be as well administered as any city I have visited in the world," said one expert, whom Mr. Allen characterized as "a widely traveled observer." "It arouses no shocked comparisons with London or Paris. The improvement in the quality of administration in New York has undoubtedly been prodigious. This does not necessarily mean that New York is ideally governed. I think that all these superficial evidences of good administration might be present in a system which left considerable scope for favoritism, petty politics and corruption.

"New York is undoubtedly expensively governed. There are, to my mind, enormous contradictions in New York administration. The police, for example, handle traffic admirably and have removed the evidences of vice from the streets. On the other hand, they do not seem to be able to cope efficiently with the criminal, although it must be said that they do about as well in this respect as other American cities."

Mr. Allen quoted "a former New Yorker" as saying that in many departments the present Administration was of the best, but that the condition of the parks indicated a careless Administration. Another of Mr. Allen's correspondents expressed admiration for Mayor Hylan because of his stand for the five-cent fare.

PINCHOT EXPECTED TO RUN FOR SENATE

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Pennsylvanians in Washington were quick to interpret today as a political move the attack made by Governor Gifford Pinchot on Secretary Mellon in a speech yesterday before the United Societies of Christian Endeavor at Portland, Ore. This interpretation, the natural reaction of politicians to such a speech as Governor Pinchot made, is supported, however, by prior circumstances indicating that the Governor intends to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Senator against Senator Pepper in 1926, with prohibition enforcement as his chief issue.

Suspicion that Governor Pinchot has heard the Senatorial bee again buzzing around his head has been felt in Pennsylvania political circles for some time. He has made a number of critical attacks on Secretary Mellon, regarded as a dominating influence in Republican Party affairs in the State, in each of which he has stressed the charge that Mr. Mellon for his own selfishness and material purposes was not enforcing the Volstead act, the administration of which is vested in the Treasury Department. The Portland speech yesterday was an echo of the previous criticism of Mr. Mellon but appeared to be more latter than those that preceded it.

Governor Pinchot said at Portland that Secretary Mellon was out of sympathy with the national prohibition law and had refused to carry out the duties of his office. He referred to a former interest Mr. Mellon had in the Overholt distillery in support of his charge, and in this connection declared that Mr. Mellon had been "for the better part of a generation a whisky distributer" and only within the past few weeks had divested himself of "his interest in millions of dollars' worth of whisky." This appeared to be a reference to the recent sale of the Overholt propety to New York interests by the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh, acting as trustee for the owners.

Secretary Mellon is at Southampton, L. I., for the week-end. Treasury officials said that a formal statement made last week by him answered Governor Pinchot's charge rather emphatically from the Treasury viewpoint. In that statement, which was a review of the Government's fiscal operations for the fiscal year ended June 30, Mr. Mellon asserted that the Treasury Department's plans to make prohibition enforcement effective "were rapidly approaching consummation." He expressed the belief that "as a result of its experience and development" the Treasury was better organized and equipped to make the Volstead law effective.

SHORT CIRCUIT FIRES HUGE BRIDGE GIRDER

fires until the current could be turned off.

In the meantime, four power cables near the Manhattan anchorage of the bridge were fused into one molten mass for a distance of ten feet or more. The firemen had a difficult task ripping up the cement roadway in the centre of the bridge under which the cables had been placed.

All traffic, pedestrian, vehicular, surface car and rapid transit was stopped. Several Manhattan bound trains, heavily laden with crowds returning from a holiday vacation, were stalled near the Brooklyn end of the bridge and one train was stalled on the bridge a short distance east of the fire. This train, a three-car one, bound to Manhattan from Canarsie, remained on the bridge until power was turned on for a short time at 5:20, when it was backed to the Marcy Avenue station and nearly one hundred passengers, who had stayed on the train, were taken off. Some of the other passengers left the train when it was first stalled, climbed to the sidewalk on the bridge and proceeded to Manhattan.

The closing of the bridge to B. M. T. train traffic was ordered by an employe of the Department of Plant and Structures, who arrived early and pronounced the bridge unsafe for train traffic until the girder was replaced. His opinion was confirmed by other experts, and an emergency crew from the Department went to work to replace the girder.

"At 2:40 Sunday morning," said Mr. Mills in a statement about the accident, "the main power cable which supplies the power for the B. M. T. lines short-circuited twenty-five feet west of the Manhattan anchorage, setting up an arc of about 4,000 degrees temperature, which melted one of the cross-girders that support the elevated tracks and burned away the top plates and the angles.

"The girder is five feet deep and 23¼ feet long. It is made up of a number of pieces of steel riveted together. The intense heat set fire to the ties, burning them for about twenty feet. The B. M. T. was immediately ordered to discontinue its service, and the engineer in charge of the bridge, J. Frank Johnson, was called from his home in Staten Island. On arriving at the bridge about 4 o'clock in the morning he immediately started repairs.

"Two years ago at the Brooklyn end of the bridge a similar accident happened to the main span. At that time the B. M. T. was ordered to place the new cables further apart than the old ones had been. They were too near, being about nine inches apart. The order was carried out at that point, and three months ago the company let bids on similar work at the point of this morning's accident. Work was to have started this week, but the old cables did not hold out long enough."

Mr. Mills added that he had directed the opening of the department's machine shop as soon as he was informed by telephone of the accident. He said all the workers in the department who could be reached by telephone were notified and that, despite the difficulty caused by the absence of a number on holiday excursions, a crew of twenty were collected quickly and that later enough were obtained to man the crew in eight-hour shifts until the work had been completed. In its statement on the accident the B. M. T. said that the cable was one originally installed by the city as part of the bridge equipment and that a contract for its replacement had recently been awarded by the company.

GERMANY'S POPULATION IS PUT AT 62,500,000

It Is Reduced From 68,000,000 to the 1908 Figure by War Losses and Ceded Territories.

BERLIN, July 5 (AP).—Provisional figures of the census taken last month show that the population of Germany is, roughly, 62,500,000, excluding the Sarre region, the population of which is estimated at another 750,000.

Thus the population of Germany is about the same as it was in 1908, whereas at the outbreak of the war it was roughly 68,0000,000.

It is estimated that Germany lost nearly 7,000,000 by the cession of various territories under the terms of the peace treaty, another 2,750,000 by deaths during the war and 2,500,000 through a decreased birth rate during the war period.

But for the war, it is pointed out, Germany would now have had a population of about 75,000,000. Nevertheless, the population is steadily increasing. As compared with the census taken in 1919, there are about 3,350,000 more people, or an increase of 5½ per cent.

Berlin, with a population of 3,900,000 is still the second largest city of Europe. Hamburg is the second largest German city, with just over 1,000,000. Cologne, Munich, Leipsic and Dresden each have more than 600,000, while Breslau has a little more than 500,000.

WINS FIST FIGHT AT 79.

Civil War Veteran Says Man Abused Him—He Is Freed, Other Held.

How a veteran of the Civil War won a fistic battle by knocking his 49-year-old opponent "for the count" in Madison Square Park late yesterday afternoon was revealed before Magistrate W. Bruce Cobb in Night Court last night when Henry Gettis, 79 years old, a negro, and Luke Owens, 49 years old, a laborer, of 182 Claremont Avenue, the Bronx, were arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct.

"Your Honor, I fought under Grant when a lad of 18, and I'm not too old to thrash an upstart yet," said Gettis.

The veteran told the Magistrate that he spent the early part of yesterday afternoon at Grant's Tomb. He then came to Madison Square Park and decided to rest on a bench.

He said Owens passed by cursing and abusing him. Gettis said he warned the man to "go about your business," but by way of reply, received a profane challenge to fight, which he accepted. He said the crowd cheered as he planted a punch on Owens's chin, sending him to the sidewalk.

Patrolman Salvadore Valenti of the East Twenty-second Street Station, arrived and arrested both men.

Owens told the Magistrate that he had been drinking a little, and didn't mean to annoy Gettis. Magistrate Cobb discharged Gettis and found Owens guilty, releasing him on a suspended sentence.

SLAIN MAN IS HONORED.

War Veteran Found in Girl's Room Gets a Military Funeral.

In uniform, with a military medal for participation in six engagements on his breast and a wound chevron on his sleeve for a gassing received overseas with the Rainbow Division, Louis Woods, 37 years old, of 5,622 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, who was shot and killed by the brother of the girl in whose room he was found after he had smashed a window to break into their home early last Thursday morning, received a military funeral yesterday afternoon.

Woods was slain in the home of Clara Fitzmorris, 664 Forty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, where he was an unwelcome visitor. Edward Fitzmorris, Clara's brother and a Pinkerton detective, admitted the shooting, according to the police.

The six pallbearers were from Robert I. Porter Post and Stanick Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Burial was in Evergreen Cemetery, where taps was sounded and a salute was fired by a squad from Company G, Fourteenth Regiment, N. Y. N. G. The Rev. Dr. I. Swenson of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, officiated.

NEW JERSEY WOMAN 102.

Special to The New York Times.

KEYPORT, N. J., July 5.—Mrs Matilda Voorhees of Hardlet, near here, better known as "Aunt Matilda," will celebrate her 102d birthday tomorrow at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Heyer, with whom she has lived for many years.

Today at the morning service of St. John's M. E. Church, in South Keyport, the Rev. H. D. Straton spoke of her years of service there as a teacher. She resigned from active Sunday school work at the age of eighty, having taught a class there for sixty-five years. Mrs. Voorhees did not attend services today, but St. John's sent her a basket containing 102 roses.

Mrs. Voorhees was born in Hardlet, then called Bethany. She was one of ten children. A twin sister, Mrs. Mary Gilhuly lived to be 87. Mrs. Voorhees's husband died sixty-one years ago. They had nine children, of whom Mrs. Heyer is the only one living.

Injured After Husband Is Arrested.

After her husband, Theodore Burkowitz, 35 years old, had been arrested last night on a charge of disorderly conduct, Eva Burkowitz lost her footing in trying to enter their third-floor apartment at 444 East Eighteenth Street by the fire escape and fell to the ground. She was taken to Bellevue Hospital with a fractured skull.

DOUBTS SCOPES VIOLATED THE LAW

EXPLAINS ACT'S MEANING

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 5.—John C. Cantrill, President of the Chattanooga Bar Association, yesterday issued a statement regarding the anti-evolution law on the statute books of Tennessee. He made the statement as an individual and not as an official of the organization. Mr. Cantrill said:

"Many people outside the State who have become excited over the case of John T. Scopes, the Dayton teacher indicted for violation of the law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in the public schools, have expressed surprise that Tennessee lawyers, as a rule, have seemed to consider the case as of little importance.

"It is not surprising to me that so many of our Tennessee lawyers refuse to take the Scopes case seriously. They are justified in this, as I see it, because:

"First, the so-called anti-evolution law is very narrow in its scope, and does not prohibit the teaching of evolution as is generally supposed.

"Second, I do not believe, and I do not think that lawyers generally believe that Professor Scope, or any other Tennessee teacher, has actually violated the act by affirmatively teaching 'that man has descended from a lower order of animals.' Any teacher may teach that there was no divine creation of anything, that everything in Nature happened by chance, and that the Bible teaching on every subject is false from Genesis to Revelation and he will not violate this law, unless he also affirmatively teaches 'that man has descended from a lower order of animals.'

What Professor Scopes Said.

"Before he went to New York to consult the American Civil Liberties Union people and their attorneys, Professor Scopes was quoted as saying: 'Evolution doesn't teach that man sprang from a monkey,' and it is said that he was questioned closely about the matter by a lawyer not engaged on either side of the case, and it was found that he had not gone so far as to teach 'that man has descended from a lower order of animals' and had not really violated the law.

"Third, belief that Scopes has not violated the act and the fact that the original prosecutor is reported to be the most active agent of the defense, coupled with the undenied report that the original prosecution was started with the consent and connivance of both the defendant and the present prosecutor, leads to the assumption that the case is, to all intents and purposes, a 'moot case.' It is hard for the average lawyer, who is actually in the practice, to take much interest in a case of that kind.

"Fourth, the member of the bar who loves his profession and would preserve the dignity and respectability of our courts cannot approve of the use of a court proceeding (a seeming moot case at that) as a background for unlimited personal publicity and as an occasion for arousing and fomenting political and religious and anti-religious prejudice, intolerance and strife.

"It is to the credit of Mr. Colby, one of the numerous attorneys for Scopes, that he has at last waked up and concluded that there has already been too much 'ballyhooing' in the case. It would be well if he could impress this idea upon some of his associates who have posed as lawyers for the defense, but, apparently, devoted most of their time to the publicity end of the case.

The Act Much Misunderstood

"The so-called anti-evolution act has as I believe, been much misunderstood. And it may be that some who have misunderstood it have wilfully misrepresented it, in order to try to magnify the importance of the Dayton case, and discredit the 'powers that be' in Tennessee as much as possible.

"It is conceded by all that the caption is much broader than the act itself, and it is evident that educators and editors who have been so alarmed about it, have in all probability, never seen the body of the act, and have never read anything but the caption.

"The only part of the act which makes the teaching of anything unlawful is Section 1, which reads as follows:

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that it shall be unlawful for any teacher in any of the universities, normals and other public schools of the State, which are supported in whole or in part by the public school funds of the State, to teach any theory that denies 'the story of the Divine Creation of man as taught in the Bible, and to teach instead that man has descended from a lower order of animals.'

"It will be seen that the word 'evolution' does not appear in the body of the enactment, that the Legislature assumes that to teach that man descended from a lower order of animals would amount to a denial of the story of the Divine Creation of man as taught in the Bible.

"Therefore, in the last analysis, the one and only thing that is made unlawful is the teaching in tax supported schools 'that man descended from a lower order of animals.'

"The act has nothing to do with the general subject of evolution and nothing to do with the antecedent of any creature except man. It simply undertakes to prevent any teacher from going back of the missing link in teaching the genealogy of the human family. He can teach anything and everything under the sun except that man is, as a matter of fact, descended from a lower order of animals.

"The act was unnecessary, but probably entirely harmless. Any teacher who has the sense of a sapsucker, ought to be able to teach evolution freely without the ancestry of man beyond the missing link and without teaching, as a fact, that man is descended from an ape, monkey, jackass or any other lower animal. The fact of such a descent of man is not an essential part of the great theory or doctrine of evolution, and I can see no reason why all the essentials of biology, geology, botany, nature history and other kindred sciences and theories cannot be taught without assuming and teaching as a fact that man is descended from some prehistoric ape.

One Question of Fact Open.

On the merits there will be only one question of fact open at the Dayton trial. It is Did Scopes actually teach the children of the Dayton High School that man is descended from some lower order of animals (an ape or a monkey, for instance)? If this question is answered in the affirmative, then the question of law arises as to whether, in a tax supported school like that, the Legislature may control the course of teaching and study to that extent?

"But as it is not probable that Professor Scopes is actually guilty, and as the act is not apt to hamper or handicap any teacher in the future, the case and its result are of little importance. It has nothing to do with the truth or falsity of the Bible or any of the material issues between the Fundamentalists and Modernists or between the agnostics and believers.

"No doubt the counsel for the defense, when some of them decided to stop the ballahooing' and read the act and got down to business, soon saw the absurdity of holding a long trial at Dayton and trying to keep the case in the limelight by summoning distinguished experts on evolution and the Bible, whose testimony would have no bearing in the case.

"No wonder some of them saw the impossible situation in which too much 'ballahooing' had put them and sought to sidestep Dayton and try to shift the scene to other surroundings."

MALONE DENIES CLASH OF SCOPES COUNSEL

Says Report That Colby, Darrow and Liberties Union Will Leave Case Is Untrue.

A report that division existed in the legal camp of John T. Scopes, whose trial for teaching evolution in Tennessee is scheduled for July 10 at Dayton, was denied yesterday. The report had it that Bainbridge Colby and Clarence Darrow were to resign from the defense.

Dudley Field Malone, another of the attorneys who are to defend Scopes, made the denial. At the same time Mr. Malone stamped as untrue another report that the American Civil Liberties Union would leave the case, owing to difficulties in raising funds to defray the cost.

Despite Mr. Malone's denial, Mr. Colby himself refused to comment on the report that he planned to withdraw from the defense. Mr. Colby reiterated what he has been saying ever since the attorneys conferred in his office at 36 West Forty-fourth Street last Thursday, namely:

"I do not wish to make any comment whatever."

The former Secretary of State refused even to say when he expected—if ever—to depart for Dayton or Nashville or Chattanooga or Knoxville. And Mr. Malone, although of the defense, said that he did not know where Dr. John R. Neal, Tennessee leader of counsel, would make application today to have the case transferred to the Federal court.

The application, according to announcements, will be for a temporary restraining order to prevent the State of Tennessee from proceeding with the trial at Dayton. If the temporary stay is granted a date will be set for the hearing of arguments on why the order should be made permanent. The application could be made at Knoxville, Chattanooga or Nashville.

WAGNER OR FOLEY MAY OPPOSE HYLAN

Commissioner Michael J. Cosgrove, who holds office directly under the Mayor, would remain with the organization if it should come to a showdown between Judge Olvany and the Mayor.

Opinion About Hylan Divided.

The opinion in Tammany is apparently about evenly divided as to whether Mayor Hylan will run in the primaries or run independently if turned down by the organization. Those who hold the view that he will run in the primaries said that the Mayor would practically spoil his chance of making any great headway as an independent candidate if he should run in the Democratic primaries and be beaten. There is a small group in Tammany that believes that Mayor Hylan may take himself out of the situation if refused support by a majority of the organization leaders. So far, however, there is nothing to indicate that the Mayor will not make the strongest possible fight for re-election.

Tammany men opposed to the Mayor have derived some satisfaction from the departure of William R. Hearst, which has led them to believe that Mr. Hearst may not intend to put up as hard a fight for Mayor Hylan as he is capable of doing. Mr. Hearst left for California about ten days ago.

While in the city Mr. Hearst declared that he would support Mr. Hylan for re-election in any way the latter wanted to run. Presumably he has instructed his newspapers to support the Mayor, but the Tammany view is that the Hearst newspaper campaign in the absence of the owner of these newspapers is not likely to be as effective as it would be if the owner were here.

The last day for filing designating petitions for candidates in the party primaries is Aug. 18. Only 1,500 signatures are required for a candidate for Mayor and Tammany would have no difficulty in obtaining the necessary number over night. Friends of Mayor Hylan are understood to have petitions for him all ready to circulate, but none so far has made its appearance, so far as is known in Tammany. The first day for filing petitions is on Aug. 11.

Some of the Mayor's foes in Tammany were said to favor delay in circulating petitions for any Mayoralty candidate until that time.

Governor Smith, who is known to oppose Mayor Hylan's renomination in the belief that he could not be re-elected, passed yesterday at Sea Gate. The Governor, who acquiesced in Judge Olvany's declaration that he was the leader of Tammany and would not receive dictation from Albany or City Hall, has apparently been willing to let the anti-Hylan movement run its course and the Governor's friends expressed confidence that the Mayor would not be renominated.

There has been less expression of concern in Tammany during the last week that John H. McCooey, the Brooklyn Democratic leader, might support Mayor Hylan. Mr. McCooey is said to remain uncommitted to the Mayor and this has been accepted as a fairly good indication that he is not likely to be.

The policy of the Republican leaders continues to be one of "watchful waiting." The Republicans, according to their leaders, must delay even the tentative selection of a city ticket until it is clear whether or not Mayor Hylan is to be the Democratic nominee. A city-wide committee, of which Charles D. Hilles is Chairman, and of which the five Republican county leaders are members, will be called together to discuss candidates, it was said, as soon as there is any definite indication of the Democratic plans.

WALKER'S TRANSIT RECORD.

Cited by Committee Backing the Senator for the Mayoralty.

State Senator James J. Walker's transit record, which was said to have shown him a consistent advocate of the five-cent fare and the extension of the home-rule powers of the city in transit matters, was put forward yesterday in a statement issued by the committee supporting him for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. The statement read:

"So much has been made of the transit issue in discussing candidates for the Democratic nomination for the Mayoralty that the committee seeking the nomination of Senator James J. Walker for Mayor, which with Bainbridge Colby as its spokesman, called upon Judge George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, on Thursday, July 2, feels that Senator Walker's position on transit matters should be made clear.

"In 1923 and 1924 Senator Walker was the leader of the Democratic majority in the Senate at Albany.

"During the first year of his leadership of the upper house of the Legislature, he introduced the following measures affecting the transit situation in New York City:

"The City Transportation act, giving to cities the right to own and operate transportation lines.

"An act permitting cities to regulate fares charged by street railways and rapid transit lines.

"A public service law affecting public utilities, turning over to local commissions in cities some of the powers that were vested in the Public Service Commission.

"In 1924 Senator Walker was even more active in transit legislation. He put through the following measures relating to this subject:

"The City Home Rule Transportation law.

"A law to permit cities to own and operate bus lines.

"A law to abolish the Transit Commission and designate its powers to local commissions.

"The law creating the Board of Transportation for the City of New York.

"We hear much talk of the five-cent fare. The bill creating the Board of Transportation, drawn by the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York, came to Albany without a mandatory five-cent fare provision in it. This provision was inserted by Senator Walker.

"Under the so-called dual contracts, relating to the old subways of New York City, it is provided that the five-cent fare cannot be raised, except by the consent of the State Transit Commission, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the City of New York and the operating companies.

"Twice within the last few years bills sponsored by Republicans in the Legislature have been introduced in Albany which would have placed the matter of the regulation of transit fares solely in the hands of the State Transit Commission. These bills would have taken away from the Board of Estimate of the City of New York the power to prevent fares from being raised.

"It was Senator Walker who led the fight against these measures. Had he failed to halt them there would not be any 5-cent fare issue, because the Transit Commission, if it chose, could put into effect an 8-cent or 10-cent fare at any time.

"During the legislative session of 1925 as minority leader of the Senate Senator Walker put through the bill granting additional powers to the Board of Transportation. He also put through a bill regarding the operation of municipal buses. He again introduced a bill abolishing the State Transit Commission, but it was defeated by the Republican majorities."

THE WHITE PEACOCK OUTVIES ZOO RIVAL

PECKS INTRUDING TURTLES

India Mate, Stationed on Glass Roof Above, Is Driven to Sulky Seclusion.

The white peacock at the New York Zoological Park in the Bronx picked a novel grandstand for his display before the crowds on yesterday. He spent the greater part of the day parading sedately in the tortoise pen at one end of the reptile house. So well had he chosen his ground that he drew the crowd away from his more brilliantly hued rival, the India blue peacock, which had mounted to the glass roof of the reptile house and stood for much of the time looking down at the show in the pen below him, from time to time uttering shrill and unmusical cries.

The vanity of these birds drives them around the park in search of display grounds where the crowds are big and the visibility good. The white peacock found just such a place in the tortoise pen. These huge reptiles are always the centre of a good sized congregation. Their pen is treeless; the sun beats down in all its brilliance and here the big white bird found a perfect setting. The grotesque turtles offered a striking contrast to his light grace. Every pinion and feather reflects its bit of sunlight and the whole tail appeared like a white lace fan opened to a full half circle, eight feet in diameter.

Slowly the bird turned and walked with regal step across and back seeking to bring out every possible variation of its spread. Once a small tortoise waddled across the peacock's path and in temperamental fury the beauty pecked at the turtle's head until the reptile pulled in neck and legs and emulated a stone. No counter-attractions were allowed to compete with the main snow.

The plight of the blue peacock on the roof was almost pitiful. Once he spread his magnificent, many colored tail and marched across the glass panels, but the white bird held the crowd. The India peacock uttered its cry. People looked up and returned to the nearer display in the tortoise pen. Slowly then the brilliant feathers drooped until they dragged on the roof, and the blue peacock turned and stalked off to sulky seclusion behind the leaves of a big maple whose branches extend over the roof of the reptile house.

OFFER $2,500 REWARD FOR EACH BANDIT SLAIN

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Conditions have reached such a deplorable stage in Chicago that banks have put a price upon the head of every bandit killed or captured. The Legislature killed the proposed State police plan, so the bankers have taken the matter of protection in their own hands.

Tomorrow morning large posters will be placed in more than a hundred banks, members of the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' Association, and in all police stations offering a reward of $2,500 for every bandit slain.

The offer is made to all police and peace officers, to the officials, employes and agents of all banks participating. It includes the killing of any person robbing or attempting to rob one of the banks while an officer or agent is resisting such a robbery, effecting the arrest of the robber or attempting to prevent the escape of the robber.

The bankers admit it is cold-blooded business to place a price on human life. But they add that the offer is made after months of deliberation and that it has been found necessary for the protection of the lives of their members, their patrons and their employes and the safeguarding of their own money and that which they hold in trust.

Free Movies in Chelsea Park.

Free motion pictures will be shown nightly during the Summer in Chelsea Park, West Twenty-seventh Street, near Tenth Avenue, beginning tonight, under the auspices of the Hudson Guild, it was announced yesterday. Community singing and a band concert will precede the pictures.

WORK BEGUN ON BOOKS OF DEAN, ONATIVIA & CO.

Organization Meeting of the Largest Unsecured Creditors Will Be Held Today.

Ex-Judge William M. Cannon, receiver for Dean, Onativia & Co., stock and grain brokers, who failed last week, and his attorney, Irving L. Ernst, spent yesterday working on the books of the firm in its office at 11 Wall Street. A representative of the receiver who had been sent to Chicago on Friday to examine into the firm's assets there reported back to the receiver yesterday. Mr. Ernst said that an important announcement would be made today as a result of the information received from Chicago.

The question whether the creditors will accept an adjustment instead of fighting the case through the bankruptcy courts also may be decided today. An organization meeting of the largest unsecured creditors will be held this morning. William F. McGuire, an engineer, is Chairman of the Creditors' Committee. Accountants for the receivers will begin a detailed examination of the books and customers' accounts this morning.

ASK PINCHOT TO HALT CITY FLOWER VANDALS

Special to The New York Times.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 5.—Governor Pinchot and other State officials were asked in a letter sent by officials from anthracite towns yesterday to take action to prevent Philadelphia and New York residents from stripping the mountains of the anthracite coal region of their flowers.

The goldenrod and the rhododendron are the special object of city residents, who employ men to dig up the mountain plants and transport them to the cities. Florists have failed to grow these flowers from transplantings of the original and now take the plants themselves by the thousands.

The letter of the coal companies stated that their tracts are invaded without their permission by florists, who seem to imagine that nothing that is beautiful is needed in this region. It is expected that the State police will stop the practice.

The annual blooming of the mountain laurel, a unique feature of the local scenery in Summer, did not occur this year, the laurel blooms being seen only in spots, instead of entire mountain sides being covered with them, as is the usual spectacle at this time of the year.

SEEK TAXI DRIVER'S SLAYER.

Major Hensley Joins Nassau County Police in the Search.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 5.—Major William N. Hensley Jr., Commandant of Mitchell Field, worked with the Nassau County police today in an effort to trace the slayers of Louis Penella, Hempstead taxicab driver, whose body was found yesterday in a deserted house near a road between Mineola and Garden City. Penella was last seen Wednesday night.

Major Hensley learned Penella's movements until after midnight Wednesday and said he had found that Penella did not take a party of five soldiers from Mineola to Westbury the night he was murdered, as was first supposed. Major Hensley said he had discovered that Penella got the call from the soldiers as he was eating a midnight lunch in Hempstead, but turned it over to an assistant.

The murdered man's widow today invited the soldiers who were friends of her husband to attend the funeral. Soldiers at the field have started a fund to help the widow defray funeral expenses.

SIGHT AN ARMY OF WHALES.

Incoming Ships Tell of Vast Numbers 200 Miles at Sea.

Crews of passenger and freight vessels arriving at New York late yesterday reported seeing huge schools of whales from 200 to 250 miles off Nantucket. The whales were bound southward in immense numbers and the sailors said that in places they almost covered the surface of the sea and that wherever one looked they were spouting. About 100 miles out the incoming ships encountered the whaling schooners from New Bedford, Gloucester, and other centres of the whaling industry. They had received word of the coming of the whales by wireless and were stationed in the path of the oncoming leviathans.

Officers of the Caronia, one vessel which passed through the whale battalions, said that they passed close to two of the whaling ships and in each a man was crouched at the bowsprit with a harpoon ready, while the master was at the masthead, watching.

IN PERIL ON LEDGE, BOY OF 9 IS SAVED

"SUICIDE DOOR" BRINGS AID

Exit From Old Mansion on the Cliff Gives Rescuers Chance to Reach Whimpering Explorer.

Over a quivering bridge of planks spanning the five feet between a door that opened out on a sheer drop of seventy-five feet and a little rocky ledge of the Palisades, a frightened, whimpering 9-year-old boy was led in safety yesterday afternoon by Weehawken firemen and policemen after he had been marooned for nearly an hour.

Only the existence of the door, an exit in the Reuterdahl mansion, traditionally styled the "suicide's door," brought about the boy's rescue. The ledge where he found himself was inaccessible from the top and no one could be found who could negotiate the climb from the bottom up a steep slope 200 feet long.

It was early in the afternoon that Irving Schoemacher left his home at 845 Boulevard East, Weehawken, to play. His wanderings brought him to the foot of the Pallisades and he commenced to climb. The first hundred feet were the easiest as the cliffs sloped upward gradually. Then they rose almost perpendicularly but the little fellow climbed on getting a toe hold here and hand grasp there until he reached a point where he could climb no farther.

He looked down. The bottom seemed a long way off. He started to retrace his steps, but the descent was more difficult. He could find no ledge on which to rest his feet, and then he did what most boys of his age would do; he curled up and cried.

For more than an hour he clung to perilous perch and then his cries was heard by Captain Murray of the Hudson County Police. Alone the police captain could be of no help to the lad so he called the Weehawken Fire and Police Departments for assistance.

The firemen could not find no place where they could brace their ladders nor could they swing a rope to the boy. Then some one remembered that the old Reuterdahl mansion had deep cellars and went way below the surface of the top of the Pallisades and, where, it was rumored there was a door that opened out on the cliff front. They went to see Mrs. Reuterdahl and she was only too glad to help them. Yes there was such a door, she told the firemen and policemen.

Down through the cellar and into the subcellar she led the rescuers and more than twenty-five feet below the surface she pointed out the "suicide's door." It was the work of only a few minutes to open and the door and there on his ledge only a few feet from the door was young Irving.

Planks were quickly laid. One fireman ventured out, another gasped his hand, and, guided by the arms of the men the lad was brought into the house. Fifteen minutes later he was in his mother's arms, a badly scared boy, but none the worse for his adventure.

The wives of both men saw the plane fall. Sullivan died of concussion of the brain. Leighton sustained injuries to his back, side and both legs.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, July 6—When it comes to shirts, white is right for field, country and knockabout. No other color looks so cool, crisp, cleanly. However, when white knickers or white flannel trousers are worn, a white shirt is prone to convey an excess of white in the ensemble of one's dress. That is why colored shirts in delicate pastel tints of blue or tan, having a pattern formed by unobtrusive stripes or characterful checks, are now the correct effect. Exclusive, but not expensive.

BRITAIN SOUNDS FRANCE ON RUSSIA

SOVIET SENDS SHARP NOTE

Demands Immediate Release by London of Agent Seized in Hongkong.

REFUSES VISAS TO BRITONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 5.—A suggestion by Foreign Secretary Chamberlain of England to the French Government that the two capitals consider the possibility of breaking off relations with Moscow is receiving considerable attention in France.

While, as matters stand, it is doubtful if the French Government, so long as it depends on the Left majority, would take this step, there is a possibility that a swing by the Government away from the Left might bring serious consideration of whether the general trouble making by the Soviets, which is harming the French especially in Morocco, ought not to call for retaliatory measures.

It is no secret at the Foreign Offices of Europe that the situation is getting more and more strained between London and Moscow. There are British business interests which oppose breaking off with the Bolsheviki, especially as long as the French, Germans and Italians maintain diplomatic relations, but it remains true more and more that the Soviets loom up as the biggest enemies of the British Empire, since Britain, being the greatest colonizer in the world, faces most difficulties from agitation by the Soviets among the natives of her colonies, and in addition there is the British belief, voiced by Mr. Chamberlain in the House of Commons, that the Russians are in part responsible for the anti-British agitation in China.

Of course, diplomatically there exists difficulty in the allied nations breaking off with Moscow, while Germany not only is linked with Russia by ordinary diplomatic relations, but also has the treaty of Rapallo terms to think about. Unquestionably England sees in the proposed Allied-German Rhine treaty something which will reflect on German relations with the Soviets.

It is true that at each complaint the French make there always come profuse explanations and verbose excuses and denials, but only last Wednesday M. Zinovieff boasted of the trouble in Asia and Africa as the prelude to world revolution. The French are gradually coming to the realization, which the English arrived at some time back, that diplomatic relations with the Soviets provide very small business advantages and very great political disadvantages.

SOVIET PROTESTS ARREST.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, July 5.—M. Tchitcherin has handed Robert Hodgson, the British envoy to Russia, a sharp note of protest against the arrest and placing on trial at Hongkong of the Russian citizen Dosser, representative of the Soviet Oil Syndicate, who was alleged to be in possession of documents identifying him with the Chinese riots. M. Tchitcherin declares these documents were forged and demands that the case be dropped and Dosser immediately released, and reserves for the Soviet Government the right to demand full compensation for wrongful arrest.

The Red Trade Union Council resolved today to send to China a trade union delegation, consisting of two members of the Council and one of the Far Eastern Trade Union Bureau. M. Leps, a member of the presidium of the Trade Union Council, will head the delegation.

Simultaneously the Council voted $25,000 for relief of the victims of the Canton shooting.

Hostility to Britain in Russia.

RIGA, July 5.—The arrest of M. Dosser at Hongkong and Lord Birkenhead's recent speech have supplied material for a campaign of denunciation of Britain by the press and politicians in Russia.

M. Raskolnikoff, addressing a gathering of Chinese in the Moscow Theatre, gleefully declared that the British in Hongkong did not relish a notice now displayed in many places: "Dogs and Englishmen not admitted."

M. Frunze, President of the Revolutionary War Council, addressing the workmen at the Putiloff Works at Leningrad, referred to the cruise of British warships in the Baltic, and said it das undertaken for the purpose of ascertaining to what extent Leningrad was easily and openly accessible, but that the Red fleet had taken measures to prevent a repetition of the British raid on Kronstadt in 1919.

The Soviet papers abound in caricatures portraying Britain and British statesmen as cutthroats and international bullies.

Soviet Refuses Passports To British.

PEKING, July 5.—The Soviet Embassy today began refusing visas to the British for trans-Siberian travel. An increasing number of Soviet agitators connected with the propaganda bureau are arriving in China and directing the activities, chiefly against the British, although emphasizing the overthrow of the treaties.

Legation circles are informed that the Soviets intended to launch a great movement in China on Sept. 1 directed against the treaties, being assured of military support, but the Shanghai clash forced their hand. The Tribune correspondent understands that the Soviet documents seized by the British customs officials at Nanchuli Station, contained evidence of the Russian intrigue for embroiling the British with China. The documents are reported to be abroad a ship nearing London and probably explain Great Britain's strong attitude.

Our Minister Hurries to Peking.

Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

SHANGHAI, July 5.—The sudden departure of the American Minister, John Van A. MacMurray, to Peking, on an American destroyer this afternoon, is causing much speculation in Chinese foreign circles. The Minister, according to his plans, intended to remain in Shanghai until next Wednesday, but this morning he received a confidential message from the American Legation urging his presence in the capital. He therefore embarked on the destroyer, giving orders to land him at Tien-tsin tomorrow afternoon, whence he will proceed to Peking on an armored train.

Among the rumors circulating here about the cause of his sudden change in plans is that a break impends in the relations between the British and the Soviets, and also that there is the possibility of a forced break in the relations of the Peking Government with the Soviets as the result of British and Japanese pressure.

Mr. MacMurray, when interviewed prior to his departure, said he was unable to disclose the contents of the confidential messages fro mthe legation in Peking, but they made it necessary for him to depart immediately for the purpose of investigating the cause of the present Chinese disorder.

SOVIET TO SEEK CAPITAL.

Need It to Handle Expected Heavy Harvest.

MOSCOW, July 5 (AP).—Such an abundant harvest is expected by the authorities as to necessitate the mobilization of large amounts of State funds for gathering it. Anticipating a shortage in capital, a conference of Soviet bank directors has been held, at which it was decided to seek private capital for the grain harvest.

The Government was advised to create normal conditions for private contractors.

The conference also recommended increased importation of certain articles which, it was pointed out, are badly needed by the peasantry.

TWO KIDNAPPED MEN CHAINED TO A TREE

When news of the discovery of the men was received in the city, Chief Deputy Nick Bush, who has headed the search for them, went to the summit of the mountain and began an investigation.

News that the men were found brought besieging crowds to the jail and hospitals. By the time Mason was brought to the hospital they had overrun the institution, and ambulance men almost had to fight their way inside. A near riot resulted when policemen attempted to drive the crowds away.

This scene was re-enacted at the sanitarium where Bowman was taken.

Bowman was able to give a more complete story when deputies talked to the man. Mason was unable to speak of his experiences for several hours.

County officers were at a loss to account for the kidnapping. The captives could give no reason for their being taken and said they recognized none of the men. During their captivity, they said, no hint was dropped as to why they were being held.

Mason was called to Signal Mountain on the night of June 23 by a telephone message saying that a horse belonging to Sam Lewis, mountaineer, was sick. The person calling suggested that he ask Bowman to accompany him as a guide.

When they reached the Lewis home they were told that no message had been sent. Lewis told them that trouble was brewing and warned them against any attempt to return to the city that night.

While Dr. Mason apparently had a premonition that all was not well, he declared he intended to return home at all hazards and left with Bowman.

Nothing was heard of the pair until the next morning when Mason's bloodstained auto was found on a lonely road atop the mountain. Both men's hats were in the machine and Bowman's apparently had been struck with a heavy cudgel.

Organized posses combed the mountains for several days without a clue and it was believed Mason and Bowman had been killed and their bodies hidden in one of the numerous caves and gulches of the region. A reward of $1,000 was offered for them, alive or dead.

Bowman in Liquor Feud.

For some years a bitter feud has existed between the Bowman and Godsey factions over alleged liquor making transactions and this came to a climax several months ago when Benton Godsey killed Ike and wounded Homer Bowman, brothers of Lawrence, in a pistol fight.

Since then Lawrence Bowman has actively aided officers in searching out stills said to have been operated by the Godseys. W. E. Grubb, prohibition agent, was brought into the feud when he arrested an alleged liquor runner belonging to the Godsey clan. Subsequently, with his brother, John, Grubb was shot on the streets of Chattanooga by Sam Godsey, alleged leader of his clan. Godsey later caused Grubb's arrest on a charge of selling liquor.

What connection Dr. Mason had with the feud is not known, although he was friendly with the Bowman-Thomas faction. His family believes that he was used only as a bait to obtain the presence of Bowman on the mountain and that when Bowman was attacked, went to his aid.

Sam Godsey, Sequatchie County Deputy Sheriff and alleged leader of his clan, branded the disappearance of the men as a deliberate frame-up against him.

"They want to delay things so that they can convict me before I get an opportunity to testify against Grubb [Federal prohibition agent] and his outfit," he said.

He further charged that the men had disappeared so that, being thought dead, they could operate a still in the mountain.

"The only reason they were found is that Sheriff Hennessee raided their still Friday and they were driven from cover," he asserted. "They had set up their still on promises of the Federal agents that they would be protected. I have informed the agents several times that a still was being operated, but they always delayed making a raid."

COOLIDGE IS URGED FOR A THIRD TERM

D. W. Mulvane, Kansas Committeeman, Says He Can Be Renominated in 1928.

INSISTS THIS IS FIRST TERM

Other Republican Chiefs Encourage Move, and the President Is Reported Receptive.

Special to The New York Times.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 5.—David W. Mulvane, Republican National Committeeman for Kansas, a power in Midwest Republican counsels, is the first political leader of note to declare publicly for another term for President Coolidge.

He came here last week from Magnolia, where he is spending the Summer, and had a talk with Everett Sanders, Secretary to the President. He has an engagement to confer with the President soon, at which time he will tell him of the sentiment in the West regarding farm conditions and report increasing strength there in the Republican Party, which, he says, is fast absorbing the radicals because of the Administration's efforts to effect economies and reduce taxes.

Mr. Mulvane's argument is that President Coolidge is serving his first term received at the hands of the electorate. Mr. Mulvane does not accept the precedent established by Theodore Roosevelt, who regarded his succession to McKinley as a term. President Coolidge, he declares, has made no such political error as Colonel Roosevelt did following his election to the Presidency.

"He can have another term if he wants it," declared Mr. Mulvane. "I do not find any sentiment against it. There is nothing in this third-term tradition if the people want a man to represent them. I think that the people of the West will not be disturbed by third-term talk."

Coolidge Reported Receptive.

Friends of Mr. Coolidge represent him as being a receptive candidate for the nomination in 1928, and they have started a quiet movement to break down the third-term precedent. Republican leaders close to the President are not discouraging this plan. In fact, the belief exists that they have found ways to bring it before the people without appearing as responsible for it.

President Coolidge naturally has not revealed whether he is giving any consideration to the question of another term. He is too good a politician to bring the matter to the fore at this time. He is proceeding in his duties undisturbed by talk about the 1928 nomination and is allowing the impression to get out that this question will take care of itself at the proper time.

If anything is being done to promote his candidacy by the President it is along the lines of winning back the radical Republicans of the West, and the bringing about of conditions which will favor control of the next Congress. The real contest in this field will be in the election of Senators, with present indications not so favorable to increasing or maintaining Republican strength in the Senate—unless Wisconsin and North Dakota elect Senators to succeed La Follette and Ladd favorable to the conservative policies of the majority of the Republican Party.

The first move to find out what is most needed to satisfy the revolters will be taken by Senator William M. Butler, Republican National Chairman and the President's manager in the last campaign. He will leave for a long tour of the West after Labor Day, when the Summer White House is closed here and its occupants return to Washington. In the meantime Mr. Butler will look after his own interests in this State and see the politicians and other visitors who call upon the President here. He will have a cottage not far away at Marblehead Neck, which will be the Summer political headquarters of the Republican Party.

"The situation politically as regards Republican success was never more hopeful," Mr. Mulvane said. "The farmers, while not fully recovered from the period of depression, are enjoying better conditions and they foresee a return to normal prices. While, of course, this condition cannot be placed to the credit entirely of the Republican Party, the Administration is getting the benefit of it, just as it would suffer the brunt of bad times. The voters of the West believe that President Coolidge is doing his best. They like his efforts to keep down expenditures and reduce taxes, knowing that they will get the benefit of such action in the reduced prices they will pay for things they buy.

"President Coolidge, personally, is exceedingly strong in the West. His strength comes from his solid business methods applied to government. They not only admire him as head of the Government, but respect him personally. They regard him as one of their own kind, as a product of the soil. They got their first impression of him the very day he assumed office. The kerosene lamp that lighted the country home when he took the oath of office has illumined his life since. The farmer has studied him carefully and he now regards him as a man who is devoting himself to the needs of all the people."

President Goes to Church.

President and Mrs. Coolidge attended divine services today. Instead of going to the small church, not far from their Summer home, they motored to Salem to the Tabernacle Congregational Church. This is one of the oldest church organizations in this district. It was established in 1736 and the present edifice, a modern stone structure with a spire modeled after the original one, stands on the site of its three predecessors, all destroyed by fire.

President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to White Court after the services and passed the day quietly there.

The President and Mrs. Coolidge sat in the fourth seat from the front in the centre aisle. There were a few worshipers in the seats ahead. Frank W. Stearns, who accompanied them, sat in the seat behind them.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. C. H. Beale, a retired minister of Milwaukee, who is spending the Summer here and serving as pastor during the vacation of the regular minister, the Rev. W. H. Spence.

The minister prayed that the President might have the power and wisdom to "lead us to righteousness, peace and justice."

The sermon was founded on the text: "I therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called."

The preacher applied the theme to the life of the nation, and said that the return of Independence Day called upon us to reconsecrate ourselves to better things—the bringing about of peace and the brotherhood of man. He declared that the sense of our mission ought to be the working out of a brotherhood among the nations and devotion to high things.

"What is needed is a great sense of mission," he said. "We should not seek power and wealth for ourselves but for leadership of the world, and our responsibility in exercising this leadership should be to obtain peace and brotherhood."

He admitted that he did not know how this could be done except by the power of God and by wise and righteous statesmen. He turned in the direction of the President as he said:

"This cannot be done by one individual or one group of people, but by the united action of Christian nations. I hope that my America, free, glorious and great, will be offered to God and His works."

GERMANS BREAK OFF FRENCH TRADE TALK

Negotiations Come to Naught After Conferences Lasting Through Nine Months.

PARIS SEES POLITICAL MOVE

Believes Berlin Is Reserving a Card to Play in the Security Compact Negotiations.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 5.—After conferences which have continued through nine months the Germans have broken off the negotiations for a commercial treaty with France. It is quite apparent from this action that they are reserving a card to play in the security negotiations, which is what they accused the Allies of doing in the severe disarmament note last month.

Especial importance attaches to this German move because several weeks ago the iron and coal interests of France and Germany reached a complete accord for a two-nation cartel; but the Germans had inserted a clause stating that it became effective only on ratification of the proposed commercial treaty. The holding up the commercial treaty with its various customs arrangements naturally holds up the iron and coal agreement.

Think British Will Be Pleased.

While on the one hand this is harmful to French interests, the Germans know perfectly well that the English are none too anxious to see a Franco-German steel combination.

There is good reason to believe that the Germans will ask in exchange for consummation of a commercial treaty with France the evacuation of Coblenz and the Rhine bridgeheads as part of the Rhine treaty, on the argument that if the Rhine compact is to be made to repose on mutual good faith, one of the parties should no longer occupy territory of another party.

This in turn is part of the German idea of having the proposed security negotiations take a much wider scope and become in a way a liquidation of the Treaty of Versailles, and in this they, perhaps mistakenly, appear to count on the support of England. This attitude does not seem to take account of the very large change in English sentiment in the past year, which represents rather a swing away from sympathy for Germany.

There is every evidence that the Germans are preparing to try to drive a hard bargain. They see themselves invited to enter the League of Nations and immediately wish to be paid for it by special conditions under which they would assume less responsibility than the other members. They see the Allies willing to make a Rhine compact with them, reposing on German honesty, and immediately they wish to be paid for doing so by large alleviations in the burdens the Treaty of Versailles laid upon them. In other words, the momentary cordiality of the Allies has brought the Germans to believe they can get a good deal more out of the proposed Rhine treaty than they will probably get.

A Card the Allies Can Play.

Against this policy the Allies have a good card up their sleeves. That is, if Germany refuses to make the allied-German Rhine compact on terms the Allies like, they may be faced with the eventuality of a two-power Rhine compact—namely, a mutual guarantee treaty between France and England. Both Mr. Chamberlain and M. Briand favor this solution personally, and only to meet home public opinion they are working for a compact with Germany.

Probably a prelude to this warning was contained in the recent note Mr. Chamberlain sent to Dr. Stresemann, emphasizing his belief that if the Germans were sincere they would begin negotiations on the basis of M. Briand's note, which had English approval. Recent developments in Berlin have tended to dampen allied optimism about a security compact with the Reich.

EXPECT MOVE TODAY IN TEAPOT DOME SUIT

Washington Officials Understand Government Will Ask Reopening of Case at Cheyenne.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Official Washington will not be surprised if counsel for the Government in the Teapot Dome naval reserve oil lease case moves a reopening of that case in the Federal Court at Cheyenne tomorrow. Messrs. Roberts and Pomerene are due to arrive in Cheyenne tonight, and it is understood will file the Government's motion before noon tomorrow. Judge Kennedy will at the same time file his decree putting the decision into effect.

The Government's motion for a reopening of the case is expected to be based on undisclosed evidence in the Continental Trading Company, Ltd., of Canada's deal, out of the resale profits of which, the Government asserts, Albert B. Fall and his son-in-law, Milton V. Everhart of Pueblo, received at least $230,500.

At the Cheyenne trial in March Government counsel traced these funds, which were in Liberty bonds, from the New York branch of the Dominion Bank to Mr. Everhart in Pueblo, where the bonds were converted into cash. It was shown that more than $100,000 of the money was subsequently deposited to Mr. Fall's credit in banks in El Paso and Carrizozo, N. M.

At the time of the trial the Government was powerless to compel the testimony of any of the principal figures on the Sinclair-O'Neil-Stewart-Blackmer side of the transaction. Messrs. O'Neil and Blackmer were in France, where they have been now since January, 1924, while Colonel Stewart, who returned to the country after the trial, was in South America and Mexico. Mr. Sinclair, being a defendant in the cases, civil and criminal, which were pending, could not be forced to testify. The other witness who is supposed to know all about the Continental transaction, Henry W. Osler of Canada, was in Africa during the trial. He also returned after the trial ended.

The Supreme Court of Canada has ordered Mr. Osler to give all information in his possession to the United States Government, and the plea for a reopening of the case, if made, will undoubtedly be based largely on the testimony which the Government expects to draw from Mr. Osler.

Collapses as Crowd Sees Laying of Church Cornerstone.

One woman suffered a broken leg, two other women were slightly injured and several others were shaken yesterday afternoon, when an overcrowded front stoop at 22 Oak Street, Jersey City, collapsed. They had been witnessing the laying of a cornerstone of the A. M. E. Bethel Church across the street. All were negroes.

Several spectators fell on Mrs. Mary Lamb of 585 Boulevard, Bayonne, N. J., when the stoop collapsed. She was sent to the Jersey City Hospital with a fractured leg. Mrs. Cora Marshall and Mrs. Cornelia Jackson, both of 23 Oak Street, Jersey City, suffered minor injuries.

ACCLAIM AMUNDSEN RETURNING ON N-25

GOLD MEDAL FROM THE KING

OSLO, Norway, July 15 (AP).—Captain Roald Amundsen, with Lincoln Ellsworth, his American colleague, and the others who accompanied him on his North Polar expedition, came to Oslo today in the seaplane N25, which they were able to salvage from the polar ice for their return to Spitzbergen. From Spitzbergen the explorers were brought to Horten on the Government steamer Albr W. Selmer, reaching Horten at midnight last night.

The explorers landed at Oslo amid scenes of enthusiasm only comparable to the return of Fridtjof Nansen from the Far North in 1906. It seemed as though every one in Oslo was astir early to throng the approaches on the pier on Pipervik Bay to welcome Norway's national hero, and when shortly before 1 o'clock five seaplanes, coming from Horten, were sighted on the horizon, a tumultuous roar went up. Four of the planes withdrew, leaving the now famous polar plane, N25, with Amundsen and the other explorers on board, to descend alone on the outer bay.

Then the plane was towed for some distance amid the thunder of salutes from the Akershus fortress and the visiting British cruiser squadron and the blowing of sirens and whistles from the craft in the harbor. The party was transferred to a naval sloop and rowed to the pier. Amundsen, Ellsworth and Karl Feucht, one of the mechanicians, wore plain dark suits; Hjalmar Riiser-Larsen and Leif Dietrichsen, the pilots, and Oscar Omdahl, mechanician, wore naval uniforms.

All of them received affectionate embraces by Director Thormessen of the Norwegian Aero Club. Loaded with flowers the explorers proceeded to the pavilion where the Burgomaster and the President of the Storthing, M. Lykke, delivered addresses of welcome, emphasizing the prestige Norway had gained by the daring of Amundsen and his companions.

Cheers were raised, and Captain Amundsen responded briefly, saying he was overwhelmed and that he could not find words with which to voice adequate acknowledgment.

Oslo was in gay Summer dress for the welcome to the explorers. The pier was decorated with greens, the pavilion was decked with the Norwegian colors, and was fronted by two tall pylons bearing gilt wings of victory, while at the pierhead floated American, Norwegian and German flags, the latter in honor of Feucht, who is a German.

Thousands Line the Streets.

The day was bright and warm, and by noon thousands of persons in their Sunday best assembled, with a host of civil, military and naval dignitaries. All windows and roofs and other points of vantage along the line of march from the pier to the palace were crowded with sightseers. Sailors from the battleship Tordenskjold and naval cadets formed a guard of honor. Five airplanes circled overhead, the bands played martial airs and flags fluttered from all the ships in the port.

After the welcome at the pavilion, the bands played the national anthem, in which the crowds joined with enthusiasm. The party was then driven in horse carriages to the palace, where King Haakon extended his greetings and conferred decorations on them.

Afterward the party drove to the Grand Hotel, traffic all along the way being at a standstill. Captain Amundsen and his companions were compelled to appear on the hotel balcony to acknowledge the cheers of the crowds massed in the square.

The Aero Club gave a luncheon, at which "The Star-Spangled Banner" was played in honor of Ellsworth. In a speech Amundsen paid handsome tribute to the American for the part he had played in the enterprise.

Had Amundsen discovered the North Pole or a sixth continent he could have been tendered no greater reception than that of his compatriots today. Norwegians regard polar exploration as their particular province, and the genuineness and a spontaneity of the popular enthusiasm over the recent effort of Captain Amundsen and his fellow explorers could not be questioned.

As a spectacular triumphal entry nothing could have exceeded the expedition's appearance in the capital. The populace was overjoyed by the fact that the explorers came to Oslo in one of the planes on which they started for the Pole. This plane, in the public eye, has become invested with a peculiar romance.

Whether the scientific results obtained by the expedition, including the survey of thousands of square miles of polar regions and soundings, justified the expenditure of at least $150,000, of which $40,000 was the cost of the plane lost in the ice, may be left to the experts to decide, but the Norwegians unanimously view the achievement as a meritorious, daring exploit redounding to the credit of all concerned and the glory of the Norwegian nation.

Amundsen was presented with the gold medal for civic merit by King Haakon. Ellsworth, Riiser-Larsen and Dietrichsen were decorated with the insignia of first-class Commanders of the Order of St. Olav. Omdahl and Feucht were made Chevaliers of the same order.

Explorers Greeted at Horten.

HORTEN, Norway, July 5 (AP).—Nearly everybody in Horten stayed up late last night to welcome Captain Amundsen and his party when they reached here from Spitzbergen on the steamer Albr W. Selmer at midnight. Because of the late arrival the welcoming program had to be curtailed, but the explorers were conducted to the Navy Club for a midnight banquet. It is safe to say that nearly every man, woman and child who had gathered at the waterfront early in the evening did not go home until long after the Amundsen party was indoors.

At early dawn a group of photographers descended on the Navy Club to take pictures of the explorers. Lincoln Ellsworth, the American member of the party, good-naturedly posed in the cockpit of the polar plane N-25, which had been drawn inshore to be refitted for the half-hour flight to Oslo, where the party was to receive its official welcome.

Jews to Support Polish Cabinet.

WARSAW, July 5 (AP).—In a conference today with Premier Grabski, a committee of Jewish Deputies pledged Jewish support for the Government as regards its domestic and foreign policies. The Premier promised Parliamentary action to improve the position of the Jews. This pact of cooperation is an outgrowth of a series of negotiations between the Government and Jewish groups in an effort to bring about an understanding.

MERCHANTS DIFFER ON IDLE SATURDAY

MORE OPINIONS ARE SOUGHT

A Fish Company Gives Employes Alternate Saturday Holidays in Place of Vacations.

The Merchants' Association has received a variety of opinions concerning its request for information on the feasibility of closing business offices all day Saturday during the Summer months. Except in the case of department and specialty stores, there is not enough information in the hands of the association, it is announced, in regard to the practices of any particular line of industry to warrant drawing conclusions. Additional information and opinions of members of the association is requested.

One paper company which favored Saturday closing during July and August said it would be glad to follow such a practice if the majority of the trade did likewise.

Replying to the questionnaire a chemical company said it would be an excellent idea to get the banks to close on Saturday, and if the financial institutions shut down the commercial houses would no doubt follow suit.

The point of view of a good many concerns opposed to the practice of Saturday closing was expressed by a hardware distributer, who said in a letter that a reduction beyond a certain point in working days increases the cost of production with the consequent increase in the cost of living.

"There are various definite reasons why we must be careful in not carrying too far the idea of reducing the hours of effort, as the pendulum can swing too far in the wrong direction and thus contribute not only to an increased cost of living but increases the already extravagant habits of the American people," the letter added.

The neutral attitude was expressed in a letter from a crayon manufacturer, who said his concern had for years been in the habit of closing at noon on Saturday "and it has sometimes appeared to us that during the months of July and August, particularly, there is not a whole lot, if anything, gained by opening up on Saturday morning. Yet in conjunction with this practice there are certain principles involved which, to the writer's mind, are worthy of very careful consideration."

The practices of the local shipyards are set forth in a letter from a dry dock company which says that in common with other shipyards in the Port of New York the company "works a half-day on Saturday during June, July and August each year, the yard organization working all day on Saturday the other nine months."

"The office force is allowed a half-day the year round except that we retain a skeleton force on Saturday afternoons during the months in which the yard force works all day," the letter added.

A sample of the many variations in local practices is contained in a letter from a salt fish concern which says that it has worked out a Summer schedule which seems to meet with the entire approval of its employes. Here is the company's plan:

"Starting on June 13 of this year there are twelve Saturdays, not including the Fourth of July, to come under what is known as the 'Summer schedule.' Our entire office force and building help, such as packers, shippers, porters, &c., are divided into two groups, and in this division care is taken so that all men are equally distributed through the various departments so that no branch of our business is helpless. One group is off one Saturday, one is off the other Saturday, and this schedule runs until and including the first Saturday in September.

"This grouping, however, does not include the women in the office, who are required to work every Saturday but receive two week's vacation with full pay. The packers, shippers and other men around the plant do not receive any other vacation than the alternate Saturdays such as above.

rear of the building. Mr. Clardy held in his arms his youngest son, Joseph Jefferson, two weeks old.

The Clardy family descended the fire-escape and all went well until Mr. Clardy with the infant tried to let himself down from the second floor to the ground by means of the detachable ladder. He was climbing down the ladder when he became weak and panic-stricken. He shouted for help.

Mr. Clardy's cries were heard among others by Charles McLaughlin, a neighbor on the same floor, who had led his mother and step-father safely down the fire-escape. Mr. McLaughlin was standing under the fire-escape when he heard Mr. Clardy shout:

"Catch the baby."

An instant later the baby came hurtling down. Mr. McLaughlin and another man, who was not identified, jumped forward just in time to catch the infant. Both had hold of the little one when Mr. Clardy either jumped or fell from the ladder. He landed on top of Mr. McLaughlin and the other rescuer of the baby. They broke his fall. Neither Mr. Clardy nor the baby was injured.

Police Reservist Norman Kuehne of the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station was at Ninth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street when the alarm of fire was sounded. He was one of the first to arrive at the fire. He ran into the building, but was forced to retreat three times by the flames, which already were roaring up the stairway.

Shouts of the firemen, rescuers and other tenants aroused Mr. and Mrs. John Mullane who found that the flames were licking at the glass windows of their apartment on the east side of the top floor. Mr. Mullane picked up his four-year-old son, John Jr., and with the child's mother made his way across a rear fire-escape balcony to the apartment of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Anna Cogan, on the fourth floor of the adjoining tenement, 431 West Forty-ninth Street. Mrs. Mullane collapsed when she reached her mother's apartment. She was carried to the street, where she was revived by an emergency crew of the Consolidated Gas Company.

William Smith, his wife, Mrs. Emily Smith, and their seven children were among the first routed by the flames. Their apartment was on the second floor. Aroused by the fire, Mr. Smith started a bucket brigade fight with the aid of his large family. Inadvertently he left the hall door open, and the flames quickly enveloped the hallway of his apartment, preventing any further effort to check them. The Smith family retreated and made their way to a rear fire-escape. They reached the street safely.

The second apartment house fire, at 20 West Sixty-fifth Street, was discovered at 6 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. William Schenck, who occupy an apartment on the first floor hallway, heard a noise and opened the door.

Mrs. Schenck suspected something was wrong in the vacant apartment across the hall, and went there. Flames burst from the door and she was forced back. Mrs. Schenck and her husband called for help and Patrolman Philip Briebler of the West Forty-seventh Street Station ran into the building and aided them in putting out the blaze.

NEHF AND MEUSEL IN TUNE

Arthur Holds Quakers When They Threaten and Irish Chimes in With Homer.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

The futile Phillies dropped in at the Polo Grounds yesterday and the Giants greeted them cordially with a poke in the eye. Today the Phils will be expected to turn the other eye and take two more gentle jabs in the same spot.

Fifteen thousand Sabbath picnickers applauded the Giants' quaint hospitality with laughter and loud beating of the palms. The fans made no attempt to conceal their pleasure over the McGravians' return to a winning gait, but the popular rejoicing would have been more widespread if the scoreboard had shown a defeat for the Pirates.

As it was, the Buccaneers won and the Giants' 8-3 victory left them standing still and marking time.

It is suspected that the Phils showed up at the Polo Grounds with something of a hangover. They had celebrated the Fourth not wisely but too well by winning a double-header from the Braves. This completed a three-game winning spree, and for a team like the Phils three deep swigs are likely to be followed by a headache and high blood pressure.

It was even so yesterday. Going into action with a dark brown taste, the Quakers rapidly developed one even browner. Folks who were late and missed the first inning had a right to go around to the box office and demand their money back. They had missed the entire performance, for in the opening sortie the Giants larruped Jimmy Ring for five runs. This was all Arthur Nehf, the pony southpaw, asked of an unkind world.

In vain did Mr. Benny Myers, the noted Philadelphia coacher, plead for just "one of those old-fashioned big innings." Mr. Myers will be recalled as the rapid-fire conversationalist who fought a snappy draw with Jacques Fournier at Ebbets Field earlier this year. On that occasion Myers demonstrated that he can take a punch as well as leave it alone.

His remarks yesterday, although just as fiery as those which vexed M. Fournier, had absolutely no effect on the Phillies. Their idea of an old-fashioned big inning must be one run, which was the most they composed against Southpaw Nehf in any one sitting.

Ring Is Very Wild.

The crowd had only a fleeting glance at Comrade Ring, who is sometimes jocosely called the ace of the Philly pitching staff. He wild-pitched himself out of the game with nobody down and nobody showing any inclination to get down in the first inning.

The rollicking fun started when Young drew a pass. He trotted to third on Frisch's hit, and Frank then stole second. He might have saved himself a lot of energy, for Meusel followed with a base on balls. Terry crowned a short single to left, scoring Young, and Mr. Ring continued his charitable work by giving Kelly a free ticket to first when the bases were already full.

Naturally, this forced in a run and irritated Ring so much that he let loose a very wild pitch, Meusel scoring and the others advancing a notch.

General Fletcher, after holding a tête-à-tête with Second Lieutenant Myers, came to the reasonable conclusion that Ring was totally defunct. Jack Knight, the 30-year-old rookie right-hander, was sent to the firing line. Meusel scored while Wilson was being tossed out and Kelly charged home on Jackson's husky two-bagger to left. Came an infield single by Snyder, but Nehf fouled out and Young, up again, flied to left.

In the fifth Wilson led a flurry against Knight. The underslung fielder beat out a hit to Fonseca. When Jackson grounded to the same Phil he grossly misjudged Hack's speed and threw too late to second to catch anything but a nasty look from Fletcher. Hack scored on Nehf's walk and Young's forceout.

This rounded out the local run-making and the balance of the afternoon was devoted to Mr. Nehf's efforts to avoid one of those old-fashioned big innings which Kid Myers was demanding from the sidelines.

At odd moments the Phils chafed Nehf with embryonic rallies, but John McGraw set a season's record by not warming a pitcher up in the bull pen. This, despite the fact that the Quakers raked Nehf for ten hits and were inclined to bulge with trouble.

Lew Fonseca jolted Arthur for a homer into the lower right field stand in the third with no runners aboard. Mokan spilled a triple to left centre, but Harper couldn't see a third strike that was perfectly visible to the keen orb of Bill Klem.

Young's Strategy Fails.

In the sixth Fonseca, who had singled, was forced by Mokan. A pass to Jimmy Wilson and Carlson's single packed the bases. Here occurred a funny piece of business. Sand, batting for Hawks, raised a short fly to Young, who apparently tried to trap the ball with the intention of bilking the Phils for a double play. If this was the general idea, it didn't work, for while Wilson was being forced out at second, Mokan was observed to ease himself home.

With Knight on second in the seventh, Jackson let Fonseca's ground ball seep through him, and this error permitted Knight to score with a run that was interesting if not important.

KREMER'S HURLING WINS FOR PIRATES

Pitches Seven Hitless Innings and Beat Cubs by 3 to 2—Heathcote Gets Homer.

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP).—The Pirates bunched hits off Bush in two innings today and defeated the Cubs 3 to 2, in a game which was marked by Kremer's great pitching and all-around play of Traynor, who, in addition to fielding spectacularly, made four hits, two of which were doubles.

Kremer did not allow a hit until the eighth inning and a double following a single scored a run. Heathcote's homer scored the other tally.

ROBINS HUMBLED TWICE BY BRAVES

FELIX'S HOMER WINS FINAL

By M. W. CORUM.

The Braves came back to Ebbets Field yesterday looking for revenge, and took a double portion. It is a sad reflection on the state of affairs in this country when a team from Boston, after being served with one victory, so far forgets itself as to pass its plate for a second helping. What have the Braves been doing with their books of etiquette? Such a procedure comes under the heading, "What's wrong here?" The answer, according to 25,000 Flatbush fans, is everything.

No especial indignation was manifest when the Back Bay boys helped themselves to the initial encounter, 4 to 1. After all, the crowd reasoned, they had to win a game some time. But when they brusquely shoved their way forward and grabbed the second affair, 4 to 2, the fans protested long and bitterly.

Nor did they confine their condemnation to the Braves. There were umpires present, and Peter McLaughlin, who chanced to be behind the plate, came in for far more than his just share of the abuse.

This was because he had to chase Burleigh Grimes in the eighth inning after Gus Felix had hit a home run with one man on base and shattered Burleigh's bright prospects for a 2-to-1 victory. Grimes had every reason in the world for feeling hurt and disappointed, but it did seem that there was very little rime or reason in his taking it out on the umpire.

The fact remains that he told McLaughlin where he could get off and McLaughlin told him that he could get out, chasing him first to the bench and then clear off the field. Hoots, catcalls and a few stray pop bottles followed the edict, but no real harm was done.

Until the eighth Grimes had been hurling his best game of the season. He had been virtually unhittable in the pinches, had yielded only one run and seemed to be growing stronger as he went along.

Stock Starts Trouble.

Marriott, first man up in the fatal frame, lifted an easy fly to Cox. Then Bancroft grounded straight at Stock and the fans sat back, believing that the inning was as good as over. But the ball bounded up and hit Stockie in the chest, and then, as if this were not bad enough, Milton chucked it wild to first and Bancroft breezed all the way to second base.

Burrus came through with his third hit of the game, a single to centre which scored Bancroft. Right there Grimes started to fume. When Burleigh loses his temper much of his effectiveness goes with it. Neis lined to right, but Cox made a nice play, caught the ball and held Burrus on first. He could not catch the next one. Felix bumped it clear over his head and the fence, and as it sank from sight Brooklyn's hopes sank with it.

This was not the only home run of the day. Jimmy Welsh, who is always annoying the motorists in Bedford Avenue, punched one out in the first game off Jess Petty. The Braves used different tactics in this set-to, going to the front in the second inning and staying there. And withal, that the hits were eight apiece, Johnny Cooney, he of the hesitation ball, outpitched Petty.

Ballplayers say that Cooney has the only shoot in the game which stutters. There were one or two occasions yesterday when it seemed that he had an even better one than that, a disappearing ball. Jack Fournier, who struck out with the then tying run on third base in the eighth, probably believes that Jimmy had the ball in his pocket all the time.

The second guesser's position is the easiest in baseball to play, but it did look as if the Brooklyn master-minding was a trifle off key in the ninth, when it was decided to pass Neis and take a chance on Felix. Gus just dotes on southpaws, and singled and scored another run, and the fourth and last one came over when Ford threw wild to third after a brilliant stop.

Robins Avert Shutout.

The Robins got their lone counter off Cooney on a single by Stock after Petty had singled and Cox tripled. Petty turned his back on a possible victory when he went back to third on Cox's triple to centre. The relay to the plate was wide and rolled clear to the stands. Jess could have scored standing up, but he was going the other way. That was typical of the Robins' play all afternoon. They persisted in doing the right thing at the wrong time and the other way round.

After hitting in thirteen straight games and averaging almost three hits a game, Stock broke his string in the second grapple with the Giants on the Fourth. Milton began all over again yesterday with three safeties in the opener and two in the nightcap.

Miss Ederle Finds Channel Waters Frigid, Says She Cannot Try Swim for Some Weeks

BRIGHTON, England, June 5 (AP).—A fortnight of daily dips into the English Channel has not yet accustomed Miss Gertrude Ederle, the American swimmer, to the coldness of its waters. She hopes to cross the Channel in a non-stop swim from the French to the English coasts later in the Summer—an accomplishment no other woman has yet achieved.

With a large crowd watching from the pier, Miss Ederle swam against the tide for an hour this morning. When she came out of the water she said the tides around Brighton, which are not so bothersome as those she will have to encounter when the real test across the narrow neck of the Channel comes, have not troubled her in the least. She still feels the coldness of the water, however, but less than was the case when she first began her practice swims two weeks ago.

She expects that another fortnight will find her comfortably acclimated to the English waters, although it is her opinion that they are colder than any she has experienced off the Atlantic coast of America.

About July 22 Miss Ederle and her trainer, J. Wolff, expect to transfer training quarters to Cape Gris-Nez, on the French coast, from which Miss Ederle will begin her attempt to cross the Channel. Wolff is well pleased with the manner in which she has been swimming and thinks that her prospects for accomplishing the feat are good.

CARDS ARE VICTORS OVER THE REDS, 3-1

Are Aided by Luque's Eight Passes and Home Run by Shinners.

CINCINNATI, July 5 (AP).—The Reds were beaten today by St. Louis, 3 to 1, chiefly because of Luque's extreme wildness. The Cuban gave eight bases on balls, which is exceptional for him. Ralph Shinners helped the Cardinals to victory by hitting a homer over the left field wall in the fifth inning.

SKEETERS WIN, 7-3, THEN BATTLE TO TIE

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 5 (AP).—The Jersey City Skeeters won the first game today by a score of 7 to 3, hitting Braem hard in the eighth and ninth innings. Cantrell held the locals in check until the ninth, when three singles in a row caused his retirement and Faulkner finished the game in good form.

The victory, with Toronto's two defeats, put the Skeeters in second place in the league race.

The second game was the best seen here since the advent of the Providence team, going nine full innings to a 0—0 score, when, because of the 6 o'clock Sunday law, the game was called.

Pickups and Putouts

Arthur Fletcher, the lantern-jawed cicerone of the Phils, is vainly trying to lead his team out of sixth place. A few weeks ago the Quakers were in the first division.

This was accomplished by sheer intellect. The Phils thought they were as good as the other teams. Lately the suspicion has struck them that there was a catch in it somewhere.

Two games today, the first at 1:30. Virgil Barnes and Jack Bentley will try to make life miserable for the Phils.

A press box visitor was Wally Schang, the Yankee catcher. His right hand was in bandages, and he will not make the Western trip with the team. The middle finger is broken at the second joint.

Hack Wilson was also there with fielding less showy but highly potent. His work on hard-hit balls to his right and left was the height of agility.

Giant fielding was always tip-top. Frisch's smothering dive of a grounder, with a subsequent force play at second, prevented a peck of trouble in the sixth.

YANKEES DRUBBED BY SENATORS, 7 TO 2

JOHNSON RELIEVES JONES

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Yankees dropped in at Griffith Field this afternoon to break the long trip to St. Louis, where they are due Tuesday, and were sorry for it. Had the Huggins troupers gone straight to the Mound City for the opening of their Western tour they would not have absorbed a 7-2 beating at the hands of the Senators. The visit really netted the Senators more than just a victory over the Yankees. Since the Athletics were idle today, Bucky Harris's world's champions made a half game gain in the American League pennant hunt and now have a lead of two and one-half games.

Sad Sam Jones spent two sad innings against the Washington boys. In the first inning he yielded a lone tally. In the fifth Sam grew real sad and the Senators real glad. The Washington bats began popping hits and Jones inserted a costly error and finally wobbled out of the picture, a cheerless grin upon his face.

Jones was relieved by Henry Johnson, late of Bradentown, Fla. Henry's aim was imperfect. He shot the ball in the general direction of the plate thirteen times in rapid succession and twelve of his deliveries were balls, one of these being a wild pitch. In this way he walked three men, forced in one and wild pitched another home. He was greatly appreciated by the Senators.

Ruth Adds His Mite.

In this inning Babe Ruth added his mite. He chased after Sammy Rice's long drive, but never reached it, and the crash went for a double, sending two runners over the plate. In the first it had been Babe's inability to get under Rice's single that gave the Senators their first tally.

The six runs gathered in the fifth were all the Senators wanted to win. Thereafter they pecked at Henry Johnson without success and at one stage, in the seventh, tottered to the plate and tottered away, surprised and chagrined as Johnson fanned the side.

The Yankees outhit the Senators, pouncing upon Zachary for eleven hits. But these drives were sadly wasted and netted only two runs. Two of these bingles were collected by Fred Merkle, who was drafted from the coaching lines to play first base. The ancient Frederick scored one of the two Yankees' tallies but grew faint in the eighth and gave way to Lou Gehrig. The Yankee runs filtered in in the sixth, and in the eighth they filled the bags with two out, but Shanks ended the rally with a fly to Rice.

Washington's first run resulted from McNeely's single, his stolen base and Rice's fly hit that dropped in front of Ruth. The debauch in the fifth began with Peck's single. Ruel walked after Zachary had grounded out. McNeely singled to left, scoring Peck, and Stanley Harris was safe on Jones's error of an attempted bunt. Rice drove Ruel and McNeely in with his double to right.

Johnson Replaces Jones.

Johnson then replaced Jones. Johnson walked Goslin, filling the bases; then walked J. Harris, forcing home Stanley Harris. He inserted a wild pitch while Bluege was up, scoring Rice. Bluege also walked and Goslin scored on a sacrifice fly by Peck in his second time up. Ruel struck out and Johnson was mighty glad that he did.

The Yanks' two runs came when Zachary was coasting along with a seven-run lead in the sixth. Meusel, Merkle and Ward singled and Bengough got a double. The two first named scored. Ruth had a chance to drive in another run in the ninth when Paschal tripled with two down, but he grounded and it was all over.

BRITISH TRACK TEAM IS HERE FOR MEETS

Oxford and Cambridge Stars Not Optimistic About Beating U. S. College Athletes.

The Oxford and Cambridge joint track and field team, which is going to compete against a joint team of Yale and Harvard at Cambridge, Mass., on July 11, and a team from Princeton and Cornell at Atlantic City on July 18, arrived yesterday on the Cunarder Caronia from Liverpool. The athletes looked rather young but quite fit and healthy. Included in the joint team were three American college athletes, William E. Stevenson of Princeton and Oxford Universities and a member of the English bar and two undergraduates—H. W. Cleckley, a hurdler and a graduate of the University of Georgia, and R. Hyatt, pole vaulter and shot putter of Harvard. They have finished one year each at Oxford and will return to complete their studies there. Stevenson will take part in the two contests with the English joint team, and then plans to practice law in New York.

The visitors were met at the pier at the foot of West Thirteenth Street yesterday by representatives of Yale University, and after getting their baggage through the customs they were driven to the Hotel Vanderbilt for luncheon and left on the 3 o'clock train for Cambridge.

There were twenty-three in the party, which was in charge of Dr. R. S. Woods, graduate treasurer of athletics at Cambridge University, England, who did not appear to be very optimistic over the chances of the joint team he had brought over.

"I fear we'll be lucky if we win one event over here," Dr. Woods said. "An ocean voyage is bad training for athletes, and Captain Lowe, our star, is not too well, but we shall see what we shall see." He was accompanied by his wife and daughter and Miss F. M. Bevans. One of the Yale men who was at the pier and heard what Dr. Woods said, remarked to the reporters, "You never can tell. Lord Wimborne talked in a similar manner when he brought over the English polo team in 1913 which took back the cup." The athletes practiced daily in the gymnasium of the Caronia, and also exercised on deck in the early hours before the other passengers were about.

Lowe Is Olympic Champion.

D. G. Lowe of Cambridge, the captain of the joint team, won the 800-meter race in the Olympic games last year. One of the two most popular members of the party on the Caronia were Lord David Burghley, the English 440-yard hurdle champion, a student at Cambridge University, who won his event last April in the annual Pennsylvania relays in Philadelphia. He usually is called "Davy." The other was William E. Stevenson. The latter is a champion quarter miler. He was a star when he was at Princeton in 1921, gaining the A. A. U. title and at Oxford in 1923 he won the British Amateur Athletic Association open title. He won it again last year in the meet held by Cambridge and Oxford and was the only American member of the English University relay team which won the 1600-meter relay at the Olympic games last year.

His modesty almost surpassed his record when the photographers asked him to pose alone for them on the deck yesterday and he replied that he was simply one man in a group which is going to compete in some games. When the battery of cameras were centred on him and the photographers asked him to smile Stevenson replied: "I'm sorry. You'll have to do as well as you can this way; I can't smile."

Stevenson passed the English law examinations last Spring and was admitted as a barrister to the Inner Temple two days before he sailed on the Caronia for New York. His home is in Princeton, N. J., where his father, Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, is a professor in the Princeton Theological School.

Campbell Is Due Friday.

Another American member of the team, E. H. Campbell, a graduate of the University of Virginia and an undergraduate at Oxford University, will arrive next Friday on the Mauretania. He is a hurdler and will be accompanied on the Cunarder by A. E. Parritt of Oxford, who also is a hurdler. The other members of the party who arrived yesterday were: J. H. Glynn, D. A. Waring, F. C. Fooks, C. F. N. Harrison, R. S. Starr, V. E. Morgan, C. Van Geysel, A. M. Mitchell, C. E. W. Mackintosh, A. Yates, P. G. Hunter, H. K. B. Oakley, R. A. Orchard, V. B. V. Powell and R. H. Bailey.

Sets World Record in the 440 and Equals World Time in the 880 Event.

OSBORN TAKES DECATHLON

Illinois A. C. Star Runs Up Total of 7706.39 Tallies—Clears 6 Feet 6¼ Inches in High Jump.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5 (AP).—In the closing events of the National A. A. U. track and field championships here today, the New York Athletic Club made a clean sweep of the relay races, and Harold Osborn, star of the Illinois Athletic Club, won the decathlon, the individual all-around title.

The New York A. C. crack sprinters and middle distance men won the 440 and 880-yard one-mile, two-mile and four-mile relays. The quartet of dash men established a new world's record in the 440 when they ran it in 41 2-5 seconds. This team consisted of Frank Hussey, the school boy sprint ace; Jackson V. Scholz, the veteran speed king; T. Todd and J. O. MacDonald. The old record 0:42 4-10 was made by another New York A. C. team in 1921.

The New York relay men tied another world's record, that of the 880, one minute 27 2-5 seconds. These four were Scholz, MacDonald, Allan Woodring and J. Tierney.

In the quarter mile, the Humboldt A. C., San Francisco, was second with the Hollywood A. C. third. The Olympic Club of San Francisco was runner up in the half mile with Hollywood third. In the mile the Olympic Club ran second and Hollywood third.

Beats Two Hollywood Teams.

The two and four-mile grinds were between New York and Hollywood only and the centre of moviedom was forced to take second place on both occasions.

The final relay event, four miles, was nip and tuck until the third lap, when Goodwin, New York, pulled so far ahead of Shawhan, Hollywood, that Unruh, Hollywood's anchor man, had no chance to catch the fleet Connolly.

Osborn, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out by the University of Illinois, won the decathlon when he ran up 7,706.39 points. Osborn won the high jump with a leap of six feet 6¼ inches. Yesterday in the senior championships he jumped six feet seven inches. His record is a fraction over six feet eight inches. He won the discus throw and tied for first place in the pole vault at twelve feet. He was second in the broad jump and had second best time in the 110-meter hurdle race.

Otto Anderson, Hollywood A. C., was second after the judges had figured up the points in the ten events. His mark was 6492.58. Paul Jones, Illinois A. C., finished third with 6445.89. Anderson won the hurdles and kept up a high average by placing second or third in several other events. Jones had the best time in the 100-meter run, won the broad jump, was tied for the best height in the pole vault and was third in the high jump.

H. G. Freida, Illinois A. C., was fourth with 6340.35. He won the 1,500-meter race and placed second in the discus. The others in the decathlon finished as follows: F. Shaw, Hollywood A. C., 6296.35; Robert Kelley, Olympic Club, San Francisco, 5207.59; Dustin Russell, Illinois A. C., 2504.54.

The three days of National A. A. U. competition were held in the Municipal Stadium in Golden Gate Park. Sunshine prevailed today, but the high wind of the previous days still swept the field.

The summaries:

U. S. MARK IS SET BY MISS GERAGHTY

TAKES EVENT IN 1:34 2-5

Clips Four-fifths of Second Off Old Figure—Miss Lambert and Miss Meany Win Met. Titles.

A record performance by Miss Agnes Geraghty of the Women's Swimming Association and victories in Metropolitan A. A. U. championships by her clubmates, Miss Adelaide Lambert and Miss Helen Meany, were features of a water carnival at Bay Shore, Long Island, yesterday afternoon.

Miss Geraghty shattered the American long-course record for 100-meter breast-stroke swimming. Miss Lambert won the metropolitan senior championship of this district at 110 yards free-style and Miss Meany captured the junior title for the same event.

Miss Geraghty accomplished her record-breaking feat in a 110-yard handicap in which she was opposed by two fellow-members of last Summer's American Olympic team, Miss Matilda Schuerich of her own club and Miss Eleanor Coleman of the Milwaukee A. C. Conceding two seconds to the former and three to the latter, Miss Geraghty caught both before the turn of the fifty-five-yard course and then slowly drew away, winning by two yards in 1:34 2-5, as against her own listed national standard of 1:35 1-5 for 100 meters, or 109.36 yards set over the same Bay Shore course last September. Miss Schuerich nosed out Miss Coleman for the place.

The metropolitan senior championships brought out eight contenders and required heats. The second of these was particularly interesting in that Miss Lambert, former champion of Panama, found herself pitted against her successor to the Zone crown, Miss Josephine McKim, now a resident of New York, and competing unattached. Miss Lambert won the trial in 1:16, while Miss McKim finished third and failed to qualify.

Miss Whitenack in Final.

Those who started in the final besides the victor were the Misses Virginia Whitenack, Doris O'Mara and Ethel McGary, all of the W. S. A. They provided a stirring contest. Until the last few yards it was a neck-and-neck struggle. Then Miss Lambert forged ahead and gained the decision by a couple of feet in 1:17, while Miss Whitenack took the place by inches from Miss O'Mara and Miss McGary, who finished in a dead heat for third.

The junior title test also necessitated heats, but Miss Meany, holder of the national high and fancy diving crown, took the deciding trial literally as she pleased. She covered the distance in 1:21 4-5 and led home by five yards Miss Elaine Delany, who defeated Miss Ethel Ursprung for third place. Both the latter wore the W. S. A. emblem, as did all other prize winners at the meet.

Miss Eileen O'Mara sprang a surprise in a 110-yard backstroke handicap in which she started on the same mark with Miss Ethel McGary, junior national holder. She took the measure of the latter and won the event in 1:34 2-5. Miss McGary was second and Miss Jessie Chester third.

Miss Winters Triumphs.

Little Miss Helen Winters swam a game race in a 110-yard handicap for girls under 13 and won it from the thirty-one post in 1:40 2-5, leading by a narrow margin Miss Eva Hobbs and Miss Maxine Bracker, who earned the places as named with starts of twenty-nine and thirty-three seconds respectively.

The summaries:

110-Yard Swim (Metropolitan A. A. U. Senior Championship)—Won by Miss Adelaide Lambert, Women's S. A., New York; Miss Virginia Whitenack, Women's S. A., New York, second; Miss Doris O'Mara, Women's S. A. New York, and Miss Ethel McGary, Women's S. A., New York, tied for third. Time—1:17.

110-Yard Swim (Metropolitan A. A. U. Junior Championship)—Won by Miss Helen Meany, W. S. A., N. Y.; Miss Elaine Delany, W. S. A., N. Y., second; Miss Ethel Ursprung, W. S. A., N. Y., third. Time—1:21 4-5.

100-Meter Breast Stroke Swim (Handicap)—Won by Miss Agnes Geraghty, W. S. A., N. Y. (scratch); Miss Matilda Schuerich, W. S. A., N. Y. (2 secs.), second; Miss Eleanor Coleman, Milwaukee A. C., Milwaukee (3 secs.), third. Time—1:34 2-5.

110-Yard Swim (Handicap)—Won by Miss Kathleen O'Neil, W. S. A., N. Y. (18 secs.); Miss Maud McFarlane, W. S. A., N. Y. (15 secs.), second; Miss Ruth Bracker, W. S. A., N. Y. (18 secs.), third. Time—1:28 2-5.

110-Yard Back-stroke Swim (Handicap)—Won by Miss Eileen O'Mara, W. S. A., N. Y. (13 secs.); Miss Ethel McGary, W. S. A., N. Y. (13 secs.), second; Miss Jessie Chester, W. S. A., N. Y. (17 secs.), third. Time—1:34 2-5.

110-Yard Swim, Girls Under 13 (Handicap)—Won by Miss Helen Winters, W. S. A., N. Y. (31 secs.); Miss Eva Hobbs, W. S. A., N. Y. (29 secs.), second; Miss Maxine Bracker, W. S. A., N. Y. (33 secs.), third. Time—1:40 2-5.

MacGee, U. S. Jockey, Captures 300,000-Franc Race on Cadum

PARIS, July 5 (AP).—Baron Edmond de Rothschild's Cadum today captured the Prix du President de la Republique at the St. Cloud racetrack, the last big event of the season. Frank MacGee, the American jockey, was up. Le Capucin was second, and Chubasco, owned by the South American, S. J. Unzue, finished third. The distance was one mile and a half and the stake amounted 300,000 francs. President Doumergue was not able to be present, as he had several prior engagements. Rain rather spoiled the event.

NEREID LEADS STARS IN A SPECIAL RACE

LARCHMONT, N. Y., July 5.—A special race for the Star class yachts was sailed under the auspices of the Larchmont Yacht Club off this harbor on Long Island Sound today, thirteen of these keen little sloops taking part and the winner turning up in R. G. Smith's Nereid in a close finish with D. L. Coursen's Ariel. Nereid was thirteen seconds ahead of Ariel after a windward and leeward battle of eight miles. George Elder's Dawning was third, thirty-nine seconds astern of Ariel.

The finishes were close all along the line, Little Dipper, the fourth boat, being fifteen seconds astern of Dawning, with Jack Robinson's Little Bear, last year's international champion, and B. L. Linkfield's Maia III in a tie for fifth place, five seconds behind Little Dipper. The race was sailed in a light southeast breeze, shifting to east, but it was one of the best races the Stars have had so far this season.

The start was made at 3:10, the committee, with Edmund G. Anderson, Frank Anthony and George A. Corry, "Father of the Star Class," being on board Rear Commodore John F. Baudoine's power yacht Miramar, moored one mile off the Larchmont breakwater. The course took the thirteen competing yachts on a windward leg across the Sound to Buoy D2, off Hempstead Harbor, and then, with the wind shifting, on a broad reach back to the finish line.

There was close work at the start, with Maia III showing the way by a few feet, and Little Bear, Vega and Dawning close up. A good, active sailor might have jumped from one to another of the little sloops as they crossed. On the windward leg across the Sound to Hempstead Buoy, Nereid, which had seemed rather dull at the start, overhauled first one and then another of her competitors and at the windward buoy rounded with a few seconds to spare over Dawning.

On the reach to the finish Nereid stepped along at a fine clip considering the light airs, and slipped across the finish line with thirteen seconds to spare over Ariel.

Review—THE WEEK IN SPORTS—Outlook

TRACK AND FIELD

The patient vigil of the New York A. C. was rewarded last Saturday in far-off San Francisco when the Mercury Foot overwhelmed the leading athletic clubs of the country in carrying off the Amateur Athletic Union's national senior track and field title. Victory for the local band is particularly sweet in this latest and most convincing triumph, for they have been waiting patiently for the opportune moment to hit back for the stinging defeats the Illinois A. C. administered in 1923 and in 1924. The New York triumph was measured by a score of 31½ to 31 for the Illinois men, who were second.

In their victory the wearers of the Mercury Foot who crossed the continent for the conquest illustrated once more that in numbers there is strength. Twenty-two strong the squad went West, a squad which perhaps represented greater power from the point of all-around effectiveness than any other that has sported the Winged Foot in competition during the long and brilliant history of the club. And the justification for the confidence in those behind the team is had in the wide margin of victory. With its championship material in the sprints, the middle distances and the weight events, and with balancing power spread over the entire program, this team will take its place in athletic history as worthy of every fine tradition associated with the sport.

It fell to the lot of a veteran campaigner to lead the team in its victory. Matt McGrath, Lieutenant Matt of New York's "finest," old enough to be the father of most of the lads on the team, gained the greatest individual honor of the squad. Matt not only retained his 56-pound weight throwing title, but as well carried off the 16-pound hammer throw championship. McGrath's were two of five titles won by those who wore the Mercury Foot. Jackson V. Scholz succeeded Charley Paddock as the 220-yard champion in a record-equaling performance and young Francis Hussey, product of Stuyvesant High School, won the 100-yard title, which Paddock held last year. In the half-mile run the great Alan Helffrich added another to his wonderful string of triumphs by snatching the title held last year by Eddie Kirby. Five individual titles and an overwhelming team championship victory indicate more clearly than words the strength of this latest athletic team to carry the banner of the local district. It proved itself a truly great squad.

YACHTING

The fine racing fleets that turned out during the past week for the regattas of the American and the Larchmont Yacht Clubs seem to indicate that the squadrons which assemble at Indian Harbor on Saturday and at Larchmont later in the month will reach new high records. Larchmont Race Week, which begins one week from Saturday and which is to American yacht racing what Cowes Week is to the British Corinthians, generally marks the peak so far as a great number of starters in one day is concerned. The biggest fleet at Larchmont last year came out on the last day of Race Week, when 152 yachts crossed the starting line, including 37 of the ubiquitous Stars. This marked a new high record since pre-war days, but it is believed that the many additions to the racing fleet since last year will raise the Larchmont one-day total to more than 175 boats.

The Indian Harbor Yacht Club regatta this week-end is expected to produce good sport. A real racing organization, the Indian Harbor officers not only see to it that the senior skippers have plenty of competition during the season, but for several seasons have encouraged the sons and daughters of members to go in for racing. The juvenile salts have responded with such enthusiasm that there is now a class of seventy-five boys and girls receiving intruction at picturesque Indian Harbor from a competent sailing master. Thus there is a future generation of skippers being built up at this club, as well as at the Seawanhaka Corinthian across the Sound and at other local clubs. By "catching them young," as one yachtsman remarked, the older shellbacks know that the great sport will be perpetuated for their children's children.

The racing fleet is certainly much larger and livelier this year than it has been in many seasons. There are many new boats of different types, and not in some years, probably, will two such unusual classes as the Seawanhaka schooners and the R boats come out at practically the same time. While the schooners are heavily constructed and better for deep-sea work than racing on the Sound, they are fine, roomy boats and something that gives the owner a good cruising craft as well as an available race boat.

It is unfortunate that several of the new R Class sloops, not to mention several of the Seawanhaka schooners, have not reached their owners yet and consequently the R Class fleet has been limited so far to five boats. The delay in the delivery of the sloops is due to a late placing of orders and to unusual activity in all the yacht-building yards.

SWIMMING

Great interest is attached to the news from Australia that a Sydney girl of twelve, Jean Watts, achieved a 100-yard free style swim in the truly startling time of 1:10 4-5 a few weeks ago, for the feat again calls attention to the striking progress made by child mermaids at home and abroad in recent years.

Aquatic fans who can look back as far as 1918 may recall the country-wide stir created when two of the present champions of the Women's Swimming Association, Miss Helen Wainwright and Miss Aileen Riggin, then twelve, beat 1:20 for the classic sprint by fractions of one second. Such speed was considered phenomenal at the time. Never before had the figures been approached by a youngster still shy of her teens. And now along comes this little Australian marvel with a performance no less than nine seconds faster—probably more if conditions are taken into account, for she swam in a 50-yard bath, while the New York lassies enjoyed the advantage afforded by the greater number of turns in a 20-yard pool.

It is worthy of note that in the seven years since Miss Wainwright and Miss Riggin accomplished the quoted exploits the world's 100-yard record for women has dropped four and three-fifth seconds, from 1:06 to 1:01 2-5, so that during the period the child naiads have displayed 50 per cent. greater improvement than the international leaders. This estimate is borne out by general competitive results, too, for very few mermaids have succeeded in touching 1:04 for the century to date and quite as many girls of twelve have returned between 1:13 and 1:16.

That the progress of the kiddies has been proportionate in all fields of swimming is made evident by a comparison of old and new times chronicled for the standard free style, back and breast stroke events. It is an indication of the steady development of the youngsters that last season, at the age of twelve, Frances Meany and Lisa Lindstrom of the Women's Swimming Association covered 220 yards in 3:12 1-5 and 3:13 4-5 respectively, or better times than have won championships for seniors in several A. A. U. districts this year. Indeed, it is not so long ago that Miss Bessie Ryan of Philadelphia captured the national title at this distance in 3:08.

Particularly significant, still younger girls are gaining skill not shown by their predecessors at the same ages. Lately, for instance, nine-year-old Helen Adams—who is an expert long distance swimmer, by the way—thrashed 100 yards in 1:34, unheard-of time for such a baby.

These facts are especially interesting in the promise they extend for the future, as there is every reason to believe the world's records for women so frequently bettered heretofore will continue to be improved upon more and more as the child stars of today and tomorrow gain strength and ability with maturing years.

TENNIS

The gulf between Suzanne Lenglen and the other women tennis players of the world remains as wide as ever, if it is not wider. For the sixth time since 1919 the French girl has won the English championship at Wimbledon, and won it in so easy a manner that she has stood out above the rest of the field, the best that England, France and Australia could muster, as toweringly as Tilden stands out in men's play. Indeed, Mlle. Lenglen outclasses the competition in the women's ranks more decisively than Tilden does in the men's. Her crushing victories over Miss Elizabeth Ryan, who carried her to three sets last year, and Miss Kathleen McKane, the defending titleholder, who did not get a game from her, establish her more firmly in a class of one by herself. There is no one in sight worthy at this time to cross racquets with her unless it be Helen Wills or Mary Browne. Mlle. Lenglen has met neither of them, but it is not likely that either of the Americans would be able to cope with the player who took twelve successive games from Miss Ryan and disposed of Miss McKane in love sets.

The significant event of the men's play at Wimbledon was the disappointing performance of James O. Anderson of Australia. Since 1923, when he defeated William Johnston in the Davis Cup matches, tennis critics the world over have generally agreed that Anderson is one of the world's three or four best players, with as good a claim on the No. 2 position in any world ranking as Johnston or Richards. But unless he plays better tennis than he showed at Wimbledon, where he was in difficulties from the very first round and was put out by René Lacoste, he will be fortunate to earn even a ranking within the first ten.

The belief is widespread that Anderson can still play much better tennis than he did in England and that he will do it as soon as he has had a chance to get over the effects of his long trip from the Antipodes. The tall Australian has not weathered his voyages any too well and twice has arrived in the United States in ill health. In 1922 he was unable to get into the Davis Cup play until the challenge round, leaving a sick bed to meet Tilden and Johnston at Forest Hills. It would be utterly disheartening for Australia if Anderson should fail to gain his best physical condition and playing form this year, for each season some obstacle has stood in the way of putting the strongest Australian team into the field. In 1923 Patterson did not come over and last year Anderson was off the team. With both of them on the 1925 combination Australia's hopes have been high, but they must have been dashed considerably by the reports during the last week from Wimbledon.

GOLF

There is no more delightful nor interesting tournament in golf than the one which was played at the Garden City Golf Club last week. The reference is to the annual Father and Son tourney, which from a humble beginning has grown until it now boasts of an entry of nearly 150 pairs.

In what other sport is it possible to get 150 proud fathers and the same number of equally proud sons together in the same competition? Here they were, young fathers and old fathers, many of them pillars in the mercantile and professional world, putting aside the cares of business for a whole day in order to play with "their boys." Here were youngsters, some of them still in the grammar school age, playing on terms of equality with their "dads," encouraging them along if they happened to be Sweetsers, Joneses, Martins, Homanses, Jameses or Knapps, being themselves exhorted if the fathers still held the whip hand.

Play was according to the old Scotch foursome idea, each pair playing one ball and taking alternate srokes. Maybe the youngster, by making a bad shot, put his "dad" into a bunker. "Hard luck, dad. Get it out and I'll put the next one up by the pin," the boy would say. And don't think he didn't try his level best to do what he had promised. Maybe the father, partnered by an illustrious son, didn't gaze with filial pride on every good shot that the latter made.

There was one pair, well known in golf circles, who had never succeeded in breaking 90 in one of these events. At Garden City they finished right up with the leaders, only a stroke out of a tie for first prize. "I certainly wish I could have saved a couple of strokes, for it would have tickled dad pink," said the son afterward. "But he's pretty well satisfied as it is, for we never broke 90 before."

Among the sons were many fine golfers, some of whom will one day soon be contesting for the metropolitan, perhaps the national, championship. It is tournaments such as these and the junior events that are contributing most to golf these days. Both are worthy events and events that are growing in importance with each passing year.

BASEBALL

Now that the Fourth of July has been passed in the pennant races, the fan can prepare to take his mind off everything else and concentrate on the main part of the baseball feast. The few small dishes served thus far were mere appetizers. In three months to a day from the glorious Fourth the scramble for the flags will end. The half-way mark in the struggle was reached on the holiday. Baseball managers, for that reason and others, attach great importance to the Fourth. It is a mystic date in the national pastime. No manager can ever forget that it was on July 4, 1914, that the Braves began their historic spurt which brought them in dizzy strides from last place to a front row seat at the world's series.

This is always a consoling thought for managers and owners of outfits in or flirting with the cellar. It is at this stage of the season that the eighth and seventh placers say to one another, "Well, the Braves did it."

The mass of the evidence, however, is overwhelmingly against a repetition of the Boston tea party. According to a strongly intenched baseball tradition, the teams that lead the respective races on the Fourth will win the pennant. This belief, backed by plenty of precedent and yards of statistics, is arousing hope and abiding faith in the camps of the Senators and the Pirates, who were out in front when the national holiday dawned.

According to Bucky Harris, the capable young man who generals the Senators, his plan of action was to trail the Athletics closely until the end of June, then forge to the front at a gait nicely timed to land the Capitol team in first place by July 4. Both common sense and a reverence for tradition were behind Harris's reasoning, and he accomplished his end by the simple and ungentle method of larruping the Athletics four out of five games in the recent crucial series.

This first real test of strength between the embattled contenders of the American League seemed to indicate that the Athletics are feeling the strain of battle. With a nice mixture of veterans and youngsters and with a well-balanced pitching defense and batting attack, the Senators appear better fitted for the burning days to come than Connie Mack's still burgeoning aggregation.

In the National League the Pirates passed the Giants, robbing McGraw's men of their almost permanent berth at the top.

TURF

The present is a time of much shuffling about in the thoroughbred world. As one meeting draws to a close another prepares to open its gates. Stables are shipping hither and thither and in their train move the usual following of a racing outfit. Many of them will not be missed. The itinerant halterman, dropping in to pick up bargains for speculative purposes, can well be dispensed with, together with such other undesirables as have been too numerous about the New York courses this season.

Hawthorne opened its long meeting on Thursday and a successful season is indicated for the Chicago track. Latonia closed on Saturday, but the continuity of sport in that particular section will remain unbroken through the inauguration of the new Coney Island track near Cincinnati this afternoon. Kentucky will still have its own sport, as Raceland will start a month's meeting next Thursday. Aqueduct will come to a close tomorrow afternoon and the horses and their followers will move from Long Island to Westchester County for the opening at Empire City on Wednesday.

Another epidemic of rough riding has broken out in various sections. Buxton's performance on Calumet last Wednesday was a flagrant display. It was indicative of a determination to win at any cost. That Calumet's connections wagered heavily on the result must be accepted, since the opening price against the horse was 15 to 1 and he was backed to second choice at 4 to 1. The incident requires thorough investigation.

The Flames race on the same day is only one more example of the happenings that are being permitted to undermine public confidence in racing and in those in control of the sport. Mr. Woodward is a thorough sportsman and, all the more because he is a member of the Jockey Club, should welcome an examination of all the facts in connection with recent happenings affecting his stable.

BOXING

The record New York has of doing big things in a big way was increased by the Italian Hospital Fund bouts, which rivaled the Dempsey-Firpo bout and the Milk Fund bouts of 1923 in point of success, financially and competitively. Four matches produced more thrills than ordinarily are experienced in a dozen. The fund reaped a rich harvest, which is another impressive testimonal for boxing. The crowd was one of the largest and one of the most orderly and satisfactorily handled in local boxing history, which is a tribute to the ability of Humbert Fugazy as a promoter. It was Fugazy's first attempt at promotion. He experienced a success which fired him with ambition for further laurels. If he carries out his plan of remaining in the sport as a promoter he will operate with the good wishes of those who experienced such an enjoyable evening the other night.

Overshadowing all else in the happenings inside the ropes was the wonderful victory of Dave Shade over Jimmy Slattery. It shocked those who delight in following boxing "dope." But it projected into the spotlight a lad who has all the attributes and qualifications of a ring champion, a boxer who seems destined to supplant Mickey Walker as world's welterweight title holder. There has been much haggling and bickering over a Walker-Shade match. Walker has never, from the time he dethroned Jack Britton, inclined toward a meeting with Shade. Nobody knew exactly why until last Thursday night. Now it is obvious that Walker has a wholesome respect for the ability of his challenger.

There can be no excuse for further delay regarding a Walker-Shade bout. Walker must consent to the match on a neutral battleground under reasonable conditions with respect to the consideration the challenger deservedly commands, and without delay. Any continuance of persistent dodging by Walker will leave to the followers of boxing but one conclusion. And this will not be complimentary to Walker or calculated to increase his popularity, of which he enjoys much at present.

BALLERINO TO DEFEND HIS TITLE TONIGHT

Meets Pepper Martin in Bout at Queensboro—Curtin Will Face Sharkey.

Mike Ballerino, Bayonne Italian, will defend his junior lightweight championship in a local ring for the first time tonight at the Queensboro Stadium, Long Island City. Ballerino is to dangle his mythical diadem before the onslaught of Vincent (Pepper) Martin, spectacular Brooklyn challenger, in a bout scheduled for fifteen rounds as the feature on an attractive card arranged by Matchmaker Tom McArdle. The contest originally was scheduled for last Monday night, but because of rain was postponed.

Ballerino will enter the ring a favorite. In gaining the title from Steve (Kid) Sullivan a few months back in a bout in Philadelphia, Ballerino convincingly demonstrated that he is a rugged, two-fisted fighting man, capable of dealing lots of punishment. If he is in his best form tonight the Bayonne Italian should score a convincing victory on points.

A spectacular battle is expected in the ten-round semi-final when Eddie (Kid) Wagner, Philadelphia lightweight, clashes with Charlie Rosen, promising East Side youngster. This bout, too, has attracted remarkable attention. It means much to each lad. Rosen is a youngster for whom great things are predicted. Ruby Goldstein and Frankie Albano will clash in a six-round bout. A four-round bout will be between Georgie Balduc and Charlie Rose.

Over at the Oakland A. A., Jersey City, tonight, two ancient ring rivals will renew their long-standing feud. Jack Sharkey, veteran West Side featherweight, is to battle Irish Johnny Curtin of Jersey City in the feature billed for twelve rounds. The lads put up a spirited battle across the Hudson a few months ago and it is expected that tonight's imbroglio will be a repetition of their previous meeting. Frankie Edwards and Jimmy DeLucca are to clash in the eight-round semi-final.

Snyder and Fasano Matched.

A twelve-round bout between Jackie Snyder, East New York bantamweight, and Frankie Fasano of the west side, will be the principal atraction Friday night at the Golden City Arena, Canarsie. Jimmy Hutchison and Bert Spencer will be rivals in another twelve-round bout.

Flyweights to Feature Card.

Matchmaker Jess McMahon has arranged a card of three ten-round bouts for the Commonwealth S. C. on Saturday night. Black Bill and Wee Willie Woods, flyweights, will be the principals in the main event. Cirilan Olano and Joe LaBate will clash in the semi-final and in the first ten-round bout Joe Hall will tackel Tod Smith.

CHAPMAN CAPTURES MOTOR PACED GRIND

Whirls to Victory in Sixth of National Title Series at New York Velodrome.

STAGES A STRONG FINISH

Taking the lead in the last mile of his arduous journey George Chapman, defending champion, last night won the national forty-mile motor paced race, the sixth race of a series of twenty-four to decide the American motor paced cycling championship at the New York velodrome before a crowd of 12,000. Chapman, meeting with adversary in the early stages of the race because of tire trouble, was one lap behind in the first fifteen miles of the journey, but made up this ground before entering the thirtieth mile and then, after following the pace of his rivals, furnished one of his greatest finishes to win by less than a quarter of a lap from Frank Keenan, Boston rider, in 58 minutes 37 1-5 seconds.

Henry Wynsdau, Belgian, finished third; Charles Verkyn, another Belgian, was fourth; Daniel Pichione, Providence rider, was fifth, and Vincent Madonna, Italian favorite, sixth and last. Wynsdau finished a lap back of Chapman, Verkyn was two laps back of the winner, Pichione three circuits in arrears and Madonna was four laps back.

Through his triumph, Chapman regained the lead in the standing for the title, displacing Madonna. Chapman now has 17 points and Madonna is second with 13, Wynsdau third with 12 points, Verkyn fourth with 10, Keenan fifth with 9 and Pichione sixth with 2.

Franco Georgetti, popular Italian bicycle rider, scored his eighth straight match race victory since his arrival in this country three weeks ago. The latest to bow before the speed and riding skill of the little Italian star was Alf Goullet, Newark veteran and American all-around star in a match race run in heats of one mile.

Georgetti defeated Goullet in straight heats after one of the most exciting races of the season. Georgetti scored his easiest victory in the first brush.

Goullet made a desperate bid for victory in the second brush and, after considerable jockeying, was leading as the last lap started. But Georgetti, in a speed burst which started with the clang of the bell on the closing circuit, quickly overhauled his rival and half a lap from the finish line gained the lead. Once in front Georgetti called on every bit of his speed and in a thrilling finish led Goullet to the tape by a length in 4:02 2-5, riding the last eighth mile in .12 3-5 seconds.

SCHOONER SPEEJACKS HAS A TRIAL SPIN

Owner Gowan So Well Pleased That He May Make Trip in Her Around the World.

A. R. Gowan took his new auxilliary schooner Speejacks, launched only a few days ago at Lawley's yards, for a spin on the Sound yesterday and pronounced the finely fitted craft a splendid vessel despite the fact that the light airs prevented his getting the craft under sail. The trial trip started about noon at the Larchmont Yacht Club, where Mr. Gowan and a party of friends went aboard the Speejacks, continued to a point opposite Stratford Shoals, near Bridgeport, and thence to the New York Yacht Club anchorage at the foot of Twenty-third Street, East River.

Under the power of her Diesel engines the Speejacks made from ten to twelve knots an hour and proved herself a handy craft. She is 92 feet long at the water-line and 135 feet over all. Mr. Gowan was so pleased with his first trip aboard his new yacht that he made known his intention of taking a long cruise in her, possibly around the world, in the near future.

Siki to Face Dave Rosenberg.

Battling Siki, Senegalese boxer, who formerly held the world's light-heavyweight title, will clash with Dave Rosenberg, Brooklyn's rugged middleweight, in the main bout of twelve rounds at the opening of the Rockaway Beach Arena, Steeplechase Park, Rockaway, Friday night. Mike Burke and Frankie Carpenter, light heavyweights, will furnish the action in another twelve-round bout.

BOWMAN IS VICTOR IN FOUR MATCHES

HUNTER DEFEATS NANNES

Gains Fourth Round in Tourney and Then Falls Before Richards in Exhibition Contest.

By ALLISON DANZIG

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., July 5.—Herbert L. Bowman, defending champion in the Quaker Ridge championship at the New Rochelle Tennis Club, had one of his busiest days of the season today. Starting in the first round, the New York A. C. star, who holds the New Jersey and North Side titles also, played four matches. C. A. Miller, Leo Janoff, C. E. Jones and Hampton D. Ewing Jr. were his opponents, and each of them was defeated in two sets, though Ewing came close to taking one from the title holder.

Francis T. Hunter of Beckley, W. Va., formerly of New Rochelle, gained a place in the fourth round by defeating Casper Nannes at 6—0, 6—3. Nannes, who gave Willard Cocker of Canada a battle in the Brooklyn championship, was completely at the mercy of Hunter in the first set, but made progress in the second chapter to the extent of taking three games from the Olympic doubles champion. The score was 6—0, 6—3. Hunter also appeared a second time today. Vincent Richards, who holds the Olympic doubles title with him, appeared against his partner in an exhibition singles match. Richards was the winner at 6—4, 6—3.

A crowd of about 1,000 spectators was present when Hunter and Richards took to the courts. It was a splendidly played match, marked by stirring volleying sessions and powerful driving exchanges. Hunter showed the need of practice when he missed a lot of set-ups, but his volleying in general was brilliant and his ability to keep Richards away from the net, where he was most dangerous, did not fail to make its impression upon the onlookers. Richards made his way forward occasionally, getting inside of Hunter's vicious forehanders and holding his ground with his customary ability. His ground strokes stood up well, and when he found it dangerous to go forward, defeated Hunter at his own game from back court.

Seeded Stars Dimmed.

Two of the seeded players were eliminated. These were Alfred D. Hammett and Armand L. Bruneau. Hammett was put out in the second round by Edward W. Wilson of Bronxville, winner last year of the Western Conference championship as a student at the University of Chicago. The score was 6—4, 6—4.

Bruneau lost to Fred D. Powers in the third round at 6—1, 6—2. Powers, who represents the Montclair A. C., later engaged in the hardest fought match of the day with A. B. Sheridan of Bronxville. After the two players had struggled for close to two hours Sheridan appeared to be on the verge of victory when he stood at match point in the third set. Five times he stood within a single stroke of victory, but each time Powers came through with the critical point and finally won the match. The score was 6—3, 4—6, 9—7.

This victory put Powers in the fifth round, along with Hunter, Bowman and Wilson. The last named, after defeating Hammett in the second round, disposed of Arthur Smith at 6—3, 6—2 in the third and Paul Winchell in the fourth at 6—1, 6—4. Among the other winners of the day were Allen Behr and Percy L. Kynaston, runner-up and winner, respectively, in both the Brooklyn and Kings County championships; Dr. Phillip B. Hawk, former national veterans' champion, and Ralph Baggs.

Behr Twice Victor.

Behr eliminated Gould Ryder and C. P. Watson, winning each match in two sets. Kynaston advanced at the expense of Peter C. Doern Jr., a member of the Tournament Committee, and Dwyer Lawrence. Dr. Hawk put out Norman Wells in love sets. Baggs won from S. J. Lonsdale at 7—5, 6—0, and then defeated W. O. Joy at 6—3, 6—0.

MISS WILLS HERE FOR TENNIS PLAY

PRACTICES WITH STRATFORD

Shows Marked Skill and Seems to Be in Better Condition Than Ever—Faces Busy Season.

Miss Helen Wills, the women's national tennis champion, has stolen a march on the tennis world. While officials and players have been looking forward to her arrival here some time next week, Miss Wills has been in New York since Friday. Quietly and without any announcement from the Pacific Coast, she left for the East last week with her mother and is now living at Forest Hills. There, on the courts of the West Side Tennis Club, Miss Wills will practice this week, leaving on Saturday or Sunday for Boston, where she will play in her first Eastern tournament of the year. Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, with whom she holds the national and Olympic doubles titles, is conducting a woman's tournament in connection with the men's Longwood Bowl classic, beginning Aug. 13, and Miss Wills will be numbered among the contenders.

The champion practiced yesterday at Forest Hills with Gerald Stratford, a classmate at the University of California, who holds the national intercollegiate doubles title. Miss Wills looked to be in perfect physical condition and stated that she felt splendid in spite of her long trip across the continent. "I have become accustomed to these trips," she stated smilingly. "I have been making them since 1921." The Berkeley girl has changed little since last year. She is of the same height and is a trifle more slender. She seems to be in perfect health and condition.

Most of the practice session yesterday was devoted to volleying. Miss Wills kept the ball going back across the net with a force and control that bespoke a strongly developed wrist. Stratford returned the ball with speed, but Miss Wills sent it back with as much pace as he did in long rallies. Her forehand drive skimmed the net as she stroked with vigor and her backhand also carried a lot of pace, though it was not as well controlled.

Speaking apropos of the playing of Mlle. Lenglen at Wimbledon, Miss Wills stated that she hopes that she will have the opportunity of playing against the French girl next year if the United States Law Tennis Association sends her to England as a member of the Wightman Cup team. She has two more years at the University of California, and upon being graduated plans to study abroad, though she has not yet come to a definite decision in that regard. As to her chances of defeating Mlle. Lenglen, Miss Wills stated, with a smile, "Perhaps I will beat her when she grows old."

After playing at the Longwood Cricket Club, Miss Wills stated that she will play in the Essex County Country Club tournament at Manchester, Mass., beginning July 20. From there she will go to Seabright, N. J., for the invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club. The following week she will play in the women's tournament to be held at the Westchester-Biltmore Country Club, Rye, beginning Aug. 3. Then she will play as a member of the United States Wightman Cup team on Aug. 14 and 15 and defend her title in the national championship the week of Aug. 17.

Miss Wills stated that she had hoped to come East in time to play in the Rhode Island championships at Providence, but she was entered in the Pacific Coast championships and was unable to leave in time. She wishes to practice a week before she begins tournament competition.

Rodgers Is Named to Succeed Spears as Coach at West Va.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., July 5.—Ira E. Rodgers, mountaineer and all-American fullback of the 1919 eleven which crushed Princeton, 25 to 0, will be the head football coach at West Virginia University this Fall, according to an announcement made here today. Rodgers was the "right hand man" of Dr. C. W. Spears in the latter's four years as head coach here and was generally considered as his logical successor. Rodgers is also head coach of the baseball nine. The agreement on Rodgers carries with it the understanding that a complete staff of coaches will be worked out with at least three recent mountaineer graduates in charge respectively of the ends, line and backs, all under the general direction of Rodgers.

BRITISH NET BODY PICKS WOMEN'S TEAM

Officially Names 5 Players Who Will Take Part in Wightman and National Events Here.

Definite announcement of the makeup of the English women's team which will come to the United States to play for the Wightman Cup at Forest Hills in August was made yesterday by the United States Lawn Tennis Association upon receipt of a cable from the English association. The following players have been selected to come to this country: Mrs. Dorothea Lambert Chambers, manager; Miss Joan Fry, the 19-year-old girl sensation who reached the final at Wimbledon last week, where she lost to Mlle. Lenglen; Miss Kathleen McKane, the deposed English champion; Miss Evelyn Colyer and Miss E. H. Harvey.

Miss McKane is the only member of the team who came to the United States in 1923, when the international series was started. The coming of Mrs. Lambert Chambers, who held the English championship for seven years and who came within a stroke of defeating Mlle. Lenglen in the 1919 tournament at Wimbledon, and of Miss Fry and Miss Colyer will be eagerly awaited in particular. Miss Colyer, a member of the famous "pony" combination with Miss Austin, now Mrs. Lycett, is one of the most interesting of the younger players in England.

The team will sail about the middle of July and play several matches against Canadian combinations before meeting the United States at Forest Hills. After the international match the English players will compete for the national championship, which will start at the West Side Tennis Club two days following the Wightman Cup series.

The United States Davis Cup Committee, headed by Julian S. Myrick, which has full charge of the arrangements for the international match, is planning for the selection of the American team. While no definite list of candidates has yet been announced, it will undoubtedly include Miss Helen Wills, Miss Mary K. Browne, Mrs. Molla Mallory, Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, the first five ranking players of the country. The matches will be played in two days.

DIEGEL'S 69 IS BEST CARD

Glen Oaks Pro Is Three Under Par in Exhibition Match—Victors Have Best Ball of 65.

Special to The New York Times.

BALDWIN, L. I., July 5.—Willie Macfarlane and Leo Diegel, who yesterday were friendly enemies on Gene Sarazen's home course at Flushing, joined forces here today and defeated Johnny Farrell and Louis Costello in an exhibition match, 3 up and 2 to play. The contest was played over the Milburn Country Club's course, where Costello is pro, but that fact did not make the American and Canadian open champions relent in the least, for they treated their host and Farrell with scant courtesy, taking from them an early lead and laying down a barrage of birdies that won the match. Furthermore, the victors topped off the day by winning the best ball competition with 65, against 67 for Costello and Farrell.

Diegel was in rare form, doing the eighteen holes, which take a par of 72, in 69, with Farrell right behind him with 71. Macfarlane's 74 was four better than Costello's total for the match. The losers were not without their period in the limelight, no matter how brief, for Farrell started the match off with a birdie. At the first he sank a twelve-foot putt and at the third he played a chip shot from twenty yards away for an eagle 3. The second was halved.

With a lead of 2 up, Costello and Farrell ran afoul of four birdies in a row, all made by Diegel. Farrell held up his end, however, by also getting a birdie 3 on the seventh to halve that hole. The eighth and ninth were halved also, leaving the eventual winners 1 up at the turn.

After halving the tenth Costello was dead to the pin with his tee shot to get down in a birdie 2. The deadly Diegel, however, slapped a twelve-foot putt into the hole for another 2, thus halving that hole. Macfarlane finally did some good for his side when he made the score 2 up at the twelfth by a tremendous drive that put him almost on the edge of the green. He chipped up dead and got a birdie three while the others all took the par four.

Everybody got in trouble on the thirteenth, but Macfarlane and Diegel got into less than Farrell and Costello and took the par three hole with fours, while Farrell and Costello were getting a five and a six, respectively. With the score 3 up in their favor, the Oak Ridge and Glen Oaks pros halved the next two holes, and won when they did the same on the sixteenth.

COLONELS SET A RECORD.

LOUISVILLE, July 5 (AP).—Taking its second consecutive baseball defeat today, the Louisville American Association team was stopped after available records here disclosed that the club had established what is believed to be a modern baseball record by playing through fifty games, nearly one-third of its league schedule, since last being defeated twice in a row.

Coincidentally, Indianapolis, the club that today put an end to the Colonels' record-making, was the team that last had sufficient ability to inflict two straight defeats upon Louisville.

THIS year, summer neckwear reflects the cubist influence. The patterns are truly bizarre, while the colors challenge the painter's palette for polychromatic splendor.

France, of course, created such ties as these, and Peck & Peck, obviously, imports them for discerning dressers. Some are hand-painted in oil on silk; others are a sportive riot of colors on satin. Priced at $3, $4, and $5.

JUSTICE BY CONSENT.

Senator BORAH and others opposed to the World Court, which President COOLIDGE has just approved once more, have got up an awful logical dilemma about it. Either the Court has no power, so that its decisions will not be respected, or its judgments will have behind them fleets and armies, so as to make it a super-tyrant over the whole world. This last is the dismal view of the Court most enjoyed by Senator REED of Missouri. Dipping his pen in thunder and eclipse, he has written and uttered appalling things about the Court as a Colossus bestriding the universe. He hopes to communicate his own shudders at such a monster to a sufficient number of Senators to prevent our adherence to the World Court.

For such horrible imaginings a soothing lotion is prescribed by Mr. JAMES N. ROSENBERG of the New York bar in an article in the last number of The Columbia Law Review. He sees a precedent for a World Court in the history of the Supreme Court of the United States. In particular does he press the analogy in this very matter of physical power to enforce the decisions of judges. From the very beginning of the Supreme Court it was almost universally believed not to possess any such power. The framers of the Constitution denied it. In fact, the Supreme Court itself repeatedly disclaimed it. Chief Justice MARSHALL declared that the "interposition by the Court" to restrain the exertion of physical force by the Legislature of Georgia would be of more than doubtful propriety. In later years another Chief Justice, TANEY, explicitly stated the rule to be:

> But if the Governor of Ohio refuses to discharge his duties, there is no power delegated to the general Government, either to the Judicial Department or any other department, to use any coercive means to compel him.

It is true that in recent years the Supreme Court has inclined to a different opinion. It seems not only to have broadened its jurisdiction in controversies between States, but to have come to the belief that its adjudications are capable of enforcement. Mr. ROSENBERG details the steps in the long-drawn-out suit of Virginia v. West Virginia. Deciding against the latter State, the Supreme Court, through Chief Justice WHITE, announced "that judicial power essentially involves the right to enforce the result of its exertion is elementary." But did the Court at once proceed to pronounce judgment against West Virginia? It did not. It set the case for further argument, saying, "We are fain to believe that, if we refrain now from passing upon the questions stated, we may be spared in the future the necessity of exerting compulsory power against one of the States of the Union to compel it to discharge a plain duty resting upon it under the Constitution." The further argument never came off. West Virginia recognized her obligations, paid her debt, and the case was ended.

Similar acquiescence in the decision of the Supreme Court has been the custom in its history of nearly 140 years. Theoretically having the power to compel, it has been necessary for it to appeal only to assent. Even after the bitter controversy over the Cherokee Indians in Georgia, when Chief Justice MARSHALL decided against the State and President JACKSON is said to have exclaimed, "JOHN MARSHALL has made his decision; now let him enforce it," Georgia after a time quietly submitted to the mandate of the Supreme Court. It is to be supposed that in the present state of conviction about the powers of the Supreme Court, if an issue should arise, the President of the United States would have a different view of his duty from that held by JACKSON. Should a United States Marshal endeavoring to carry out a decree of the Supreme Court be resisted or attacked, it is to be presumed that the Administration would back him up with all needed force. But that is a contingenvy not likely ever to arise.

As justice by submission or consent has been the long record in the United States, so it would be, Mr. ROSENBERG contends, with the World Court after its secure establishment and the assertion of its jurisdiction over all justiciable questions threatening peace or good relations between nations. American citizens have no such monopoly of civic virtue as to make them the only ones on earth ready to bow cheerfully to a judicial decision, even if it goes against them. The ability and impartiality of the World Court would speedily give it an authority which would lead every litigant before it to accept its decrees and comply with them without there being even a remote necessity of its resort to force.

ATTACKING THE THERMOMETER.

MUSSOLINI has decided to take immediate steps to defend the lira and to punish speculators and other persons who are fomenting panic and depreciation, "which is unjustified and absurd." The Mussolini Government has looked at Italy's internal and international situation and pronounced it good. Hence some personal devil must be behind the fall in Italian exchange. People at Rome choose to forget their own ironic comment of a few months ago when Paris was engaged in a similar defense of the franc against the conspiracies of the speculators. Before that, Paris had raised a skeptical eyebrow when the German Government declared war against the conspirators engaged in withdrawing capital from Germany and beating down the mark. So it goes. The only good thermometer is one that works in but one way. Mark, franc and lira going up reflect a healthy state of affairs. When they go down, it is because evildoers are at work.

Blaming the thermometer is an amiable trait by no means confined to Europe. Not so many weeks ago the agricultural West raised an outcry against the speculators at Chicago who had pushed wheat down far below where it properly belonged. The suggestion that wheat might be going down because world conditions were radically different from the Spring of 1924 deserved no serious consideration. It is true that in 1924 the wheat crop was a failure in Canada and in Russia. It is true that this year all of Europe reports bumper crops. But that could not possibly be the real reason, which was the speculator. The Secretary of Agriculture held that radical measures would have to be adopted to tame the wheat speculators. Yet it was the same Mr. JARDINE who only the other day told the farmers that their troubles were chiefly due to their own speculative activities. They overbought and overplanted in war-boom times.

Close at home we have our own specialist in anti-thermometrics. His name is JOHN F. HYLAN. The public temper gives signs of rising over subway congestion, dirty streets, school politics, police politics. But are the signs genuine? They are not. It is only another case of the thermometer being manipulated by the Interborough and the B. M. T. and the largest aggregation of Interests ever exhibited in captivity. Just make up your mind that it is Mr. DAHL who is chafing the mercury bulb, and it becomes apparent that there is plenty of room in the cars, all the desk-space we want in the schools, a Spotless Town air about the streets and unbroken peace and security in the jewelry stores.

WELCOMING AMUNDSEN.

At every port on his voyage south to Oslo ROALD AMUNDSEN finds himself more of a hero than ever. The men mob him, the women smother him with roses. It is not his first experience of the kind. His attainment of the South Pole brought him medals from geographical societies in Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States, and a life annuity from the Storthing. It was the fashion to acclaim him Norway's great man, pre-eminent in polar exploration and enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen. The psychology of the new tribute, which will reach a climax when he arrives in flag-decorated Oslo, seems to be this: AMUNDSEN vanished in the mists of the Arctic, was given up for lost, and when Norway was preparing to mourn her hero, doubting whether the aviators of the relief ship would ever find him, lo! he came driving out of the mist with his companions in a patched-up airplane. This dramatic emergence, which none of the augurs had imagined, moved his people so profoundly that it loomed as a greater achievement than a discovery of new land in the polar region. AMUNDSEN appeared to them as a superman, the master of his fate, a grander figure than dead and gone Vikings whose renown was of the sea. It must tickle the national vanity to know that their new Viking rode the air to victory and accomplished the seemingly impossible in his exploit of self-rescue.

The man's origin, his personality, have much to do with the regard in which he is held. Son of a shipowner in a small way, born in the little town of Borges, educated in local schools, a sailor as a youth, mate on the Belgica Antarctic expedition under Captain DE GERLACHE in 1897-9, and gradually by hazardous voyages raising himself to command, dedicating his life to polar exploration, negotiating the Northwest Passage in the little Gjoa (a household word in every seaport home in Norway), winning the race to the South Pole, and then blazing the way to the North Pole by airship, always brave, resourceful, indomitable, a born leader of men and beloved by those who shared his dangers, it would be astonishing if ROALD AMUNDSEN were not a hero to stout little Norway. Did he not name the South Polar region King Haakon VII Plateau and plant the national colors there? Was there ever a finer story of adventure than the march from the Bay of Whales over the glacial mountains that guard the approach to the Pole, every peak encountered given a Norwegian name? Who but will confess a thrill on reading AMUNDSEN's story of the descent to the Devil's Glacier and the crossing of the Devil's Ballroom? How cheerful the chronicle of frost-bite and snow-blindness in that struggle onward to the goal! When it was reached how calm the spirit of the adventurers in their hour of triumph!—no elation, no vainglory, no sentimentality. We see those five men of Norway, each with a "weather-beaten, frost-bitten" hand on the staff (by AMUNDSEN's desire that there should be common glory), raising the flag of their country, while the captain exclaims: "Thus we plant thee, beloved flag, at the South Pole, and give to the plain on which it lies the name of King Haakon VII Plateau!"

"Of course," says AMUNDSEN, "there was festivity in the tent that evening—not that champagne corks were popping and wine flowing—no, we contented ourselves with a little piece of seal meat each, and it tasted well and it did us good." A modest, self-contained, humble company of heroes, one for all and all for one, who made light of their sufferings, and after setting up a tent and leaving a record, which the ill-starred SCOTT found thirty days later, turned about and began blithely their march to the Barrier base.

DEMOCRACY AND LIBERTY.

AGNES REPPLIER, that hopelessly accomplished, urbane and tolerant observer of the procession of things and men, discourses in The Atlantic Monthly and her own best manner on "Cure-Alls." These are naturally dear to a people that continues in morals for other folks its long attachment to patent medicines. The dauntless zeal to "reform" others by statute and constitutional amendments is called "Millenniamania" by a whimsical writer in The Harvard Graduate's Magazine, who has the impudence to go back to PEACOCK's "Crochet Castle." "I once knew a lady," says the Cambridge jeerer at our millenniamaniacs, "who had so great a fear of microbes that she banished from her house everything in the way of adornment likely to harbor them. Books, pictures, hangings, all that pleases the eye and cheers the heart, were sacrificed to this preposterous obsession." So abruptly does he condemn a saint of future sociologists, the mother of a "reform" yet to come:

> Alas! it is seldom, if ever,
> That people behave as they should;
> The good are so harsh to the clever,
> And the clever so rude to the good.

Miss REPPLIER is incapable of rudeness. She has an almost tender indulgence for the millenniamaniac. Never expecting too much, she awaits the slow judgment of time. There is but one paragraph in her golden paper to which we wish provisionally to except:

> How far the democracy of the United States is a pure democracy it would be hard to tell. There are those who hold with our kind English critic, Lord BRYCE, that we are wholly and triumphantly democratic; and there are those who hold with our caustic Canadian critic, Sir ANDREW MACPHAIL, that we are not democratic at all; that in no other civilized country are the liberties of the people more frequently and systematically raided.

All democracy is pure, as Mr. FALL and many other masters have taught us; but "pure democracy" has a technical sense, bound up inextricably with the initiative and referendum, the recall of judicial decisions, and so on. Sir ANDREW MACPHAIL and those who agree with him make the mistake of confounding liberty with democracy. They have no necessary connection; and the definitions of "liberty" differ in different nations, irrespective of the form of government.

A New York policeman would faint away with horror at the liberties taken by the British workingman and workingwoman in public parks. "Liberty" of going to sleep in a public place scarcely exists here; and the free feet of 'Arry and 'Arriet, resting on a tree or rolling down a bank at Greenwich or Kew, would soon feel the reproving club in our more enlightened land. A costermonger, his free legs swathed in straw, rolling joyously down a bank, is an offense to our more "Puritan" notion of freedom. Under a democracy other forms of government may have their triumphs; and it is only a small part of the people that has to be "sovereign." Miss REPPLIER treats with her wonted ironical politeness and philosophic calm the Eighteenth and Nineteenth Amendments. Isn't the former essentially the work of a theocracy; the latter of a gynecocracy, supplemented in both cases by the politicians—the mechanocracy?

UNDERSTANDING THROUGH A LIBRARY.

In spite of the fact that Paris often appears to be the second largest American city in the world, the ignorance of matters American displayed by many Frenchmen is abysmal. It cannot even be matched by the ignorance of things European which is the blessing of so many provincial Americans. This in itself would justify the work of the American Library in Paris, which is an outgrowth of the war library started in 1917 for the use of the A. E. F. Unfortunately it is not much used by Frenchmen, but Americans may at least comfort themselves with the thought that a source of information about all things American now exists in Paris, and can be turned to by journalists and others who may have occasion to acquire a more accurate knowledge of the United States than they get from daily observance of American tourists.

As a matter of fact, the American Library is able to serve a good number of the members of this new A. E. F. which yearly visits Paris on leave. At the same time it is used by the many Americans who are resident there, and who in their work or recreation desire access to American books and publications of all sorts. So successful has it been that the Trustees of the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial have voted funds to help support it during the coming three years. Four thousand dollars per year has been appropriated for general maintenance of the library, plus a sum not to exceed $6,000 to meet the special increases in the current budget. This latter sum is to be paid on the basis of $1 for each $2 received from sources other than the Memorial. A further sum of $12,500 per year is set aside for the support of the reference service on international affairs maintained by the American Library in Paris. The total which the library requires from other sources is $26,500. A campaign is now being conducted here and in Paris to raise this amount, under the auspices of the secretary, Mr. PRENTISS N. GRAY, 27 Pine Street.

It goes without saying that anything which helps to promote a more faithful understanding of the United States among Europeans is of great value. Much of the trouble between nations today is the result of prejudice, fathered by ignorance. It is scarcely more than two years since one of the leading papers in Paris published an article describing the war that had broken out between the State of New York and the Federal Government at Washington over prohibition enforcement, in which it was stated that the Federal troops had been mobilized and were marching upon Manhattan. The casual Frenchmen who happened to read it must have thought that a new revolution was in progress on our side of the Atlantic.

AN INTELLECTUAL SUMMER RESORT.

It is too early to make boast of the "glorious Summer" of New York, but one may speak with pride of New York City as an intellectual, or at any rate educational, Summer resort. Society has closed its doors and darkened its windows and sought the mountains and the shores or made its overseas expedition in search of pleasure abroad. "Unwieldy wealth and cumbrous pomp," which GOLDSMITH found reposing in his "Deserted Village," have for the time being deserted their city abodes. A walk through certain avenues in the early morning of a holiday is like a journey on foot through the Valley of the Kings. Even jaywalking can give no offense. Tens of thousands of young people have gone out to live in camps. "Vacation" is the word more often heard than any other, and the consequent exodus seems all but universal.

Yet there is an incoming stream, notably this week, of men and women from all parts of the United States and from Canada and many other countries to attend courses in the universities, colleges and schools of this city. They will work in the vacant laboratories, fill the empty lecture halls and make the deserted centres of learning rejoice again with life. Most of the Summer students come with a passion for the things of the mind, an eagerness that makes them indifferent to the temperature. They are like the students of ABELARD, who followed him out into the country when he was driven from the city and who lived on the meagerest fare and in hovels. But ABELARD has come back to the city (as President BUTLER expressed a desire that he should) and is conducting Summer courses.

While some students are like the improvident grasshopper and have to make up for their last Winter's shortcomings in order to get through another year, yet for the most part the learners are themselves teachers or advanced students who want to go still further. One advantage of the Summer courses is the opportunity given to concentrate upon work in some one field, and so to do in six weeks of five hours a day in one subject what would normally be done in a full academic year. But the range of subjects is so wide as to let every one have what he most wants, from Greek to advertising. To provide this instruction teaching staffs have been gathered, to which virtually all the leading colleges and universities of America contribute, as do even foreign universities. Both teachers and students are drawn from the country at large.

An American poet, now a teacher in Columbia University, wrote, probably in his pre-Columbian days, in disparagement of urban intellectuality:

> Thought, rootless thought of town,
> Cut from its primal source,
> Grows subtle and grows faint—
> Less than the wisdom of the clown.

Though the wisdom offered by these great institutions of learning has its seat in the town, as the ancient Wisdom had who stood at "the entry of the city," its thought is not "rootless." It has its roots out in all the earth. And as for the "sanctities of sunsets" and "hopes of dawn" which this same critic has denied to the town, the students will find even these from any one of the heights on which our universities stand. One has but to look across the river to the Palisades or over the roofs of Harlem to the Sound. Taking all things into consideration—the superior educational opportunities, the concerts, the galleries of art, the churches, the varied means of recreation and entertainment and the easy access to the parks and the seashore—we may with reason claim that New York City is a surpassing intellectual Summer resort.

EARTHQUAKES AND ACCIDENTS.

It might puzzle a philosopher of the sensational to say offhand just why Santa Barbara bulked so large for a few days in popular excitement and sympathy. The cause was not the extent of destruction done by the earthquake, whether in life or property. The Lackawanna derailment killed four times as many people as came to their death in Santa Barbara. A building collapses in Boston and twice as many lives are snuffed out. The daily toll of motor accidents registers a far larger number of fatalities. And if the material loss at Santa Barbara is reckoned at $10,000,000, that figure might easily be outstripped by conflagrations in various cities or a falling off in crop values. Yet at such calamities the newspaper reader merely glances and passes on.

What holds his eye and attention in the story of an earthquake is something by itself. He inevitably thinks of the mysterious giant forces that lie behind the shaking down of houses and the overwhelming of human beings. It is the incalculable element in such a disaster that makes it truly sensational. There is no way of predicting it, by exact time and place, and there is no way of averting it. It is this sense of the unknown which grips and terrifies. No one can tell where and when the mountains will again seem to topple and nothing stand fast upon earth. In the presence of such convulsions of nature man feels himself puny and helpless. Accidents in the mechanical or industrial world shock him but do not leave him dumfounded. An earthquake does, not merely because it is terribly destructive, but because it is an unforeseeable letting loose of powers which are felt to be irresistible enough to warrant the most awe-compelling pictures of the end of the world in the Apocalypse.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Extermination Was Close at Hand.

Out on the Pacific, as almost everywhere else, there has been illustrated the fact that deferred profits have little attraction in comparison with the immediate dollar, and that men deliberately will destroy for all time what might be continuously a source of other dollars. On and along the coasts of that ocean, however, the demonstration of this humiliating characteristic of the human race has been particularly clear in the case of the seals, several other sea-living animals such as the otters, and of some of the important food fishes.

Dr. B. W. EVERMAN, Director of the Museum of the California Academy of Science, has been telling anew the story of the fur seals, and of how narrowly the Alaska herds escaped the extermination that threatened them a few years ago.

When the United States, in 1867, bought Alaska, there went with the peninsula something like 3,000,000 of these valuable animals. It does no harm to kill off the superfluous males, and of these about 100,000 a year were killed by the Alaska Commercial Company.

But early in the '80s it occurred to certain hunters in British Columbia and in Japan that the seals could be shot in the open sea, where nobody owned or controlled them, and so the pelagic slaughter began. The profits were large but soon the herd so decreased that only about 127,000 visited Alaska to breed in 1912. The end was close when the United States took a hand in the matter and persuaded Great Britain and Japan to join it in stopping the slaughter of seals at sea. And already the herd has grown to 700,000, though 200,000 skins, worth almost $2,000,000, are taken each year.

They Sold the Right to Destroy.

A part of the seal story not to be omitted is that, to get Japan and Great Britain to coerce their subjects into abandoning a practice that in a short time would have ruined the business of those following it, our Government had to promise to give the other two Governments 15 per cent. of the money made out of the Alaska seals.

There has been some illicit killing by seal pirates of both the agreeing nations since then, but this has not amounted to enough to threaten the existence and increase of the Alaska herd.

The wisdom of the course pursued is obvious, but it is bitterly resented by those to whose profitable activities it put an end. If they could, they would have killed every seal there is in a single season, and then retired on the fortunes made.

It was in just that spirit that the buffalo were exterminated in a few years after the hunters got after them, and it also is the spirit of the lumbermen, who cut down forests by wholesale and plant never a new tree to take the place of those destroyed. The profits to be derived from "conservation" usually are long delayed, and therefore they do not appeal to those who are unable or unwilling to wait.

Sectionalism Takes a New Form.

At least two deductions, each equally logical, might be drawn from the fact that only in the South have any open, organized and effective efforts been made to prohibit by legislative enactment the teaching of evolution in schools and colleges supported in whole or part by public funds.

Here in the North, of course, there are not a few people to whom a theory which tends to destroy, or at least to weaken, the ultimate distinction between men and animals is more or less repugnant, but our Fundamentalists lack either the courage or the energy of their Southern brothers, or else they know themselves to be in a minority.

This new form of "sectionalism" proves, as one chooses to see it, either that true piety and fidelity to the old faith have been lost in the North and survive only in the South, or that the North has advanced in scientific knowledge and general intelligence further than the South and so is saved from committing at least one form of folly.

Naturally, opinions will differ as to which of these conclusions is the correct one. Each section, curiously enough, can accept as a compliment—as something to be proud of—the condemnation of the other, so why should both not be happy in its sense of its own superiority? The South can say "We are good!" and the North, "We are wise!" and each can deny the other's assertion. It's about even.

Why Add to the Number of "Colonies"?

From New Jersey comes a report of an effort to form a colony of Russian exiles on a large tract of land that is in process of acquisition for or by them. Without wishing to interfere with anybody's deal in real estate, it does seem necessary to ask why these Russians should want to get off by themselves in the Jersey wilds, and to suggest that it would be wiser for them to scatter and assimilate with the rest of the American population.

Of course, if they expect to get back to Russia soon it might be wise for the exiled "whites" to keep together for council and action when the good time comes. But segregation, with the difficulties it adds to the learning of a new language, makes earning livings less easy, and "colonies" almost always, and almost always with good reason, become unpopular with their neighbors.

Usually it is after an immigrant gets out of his "colony" that he goes ahead fast and far if he is going to do so at all. The colonist remains a foreigner much longer than does he who chooses his associates for other than geographic and ethnic reasons.

Remodeling the White House.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I desire to express my appreciation of the editorial "Americanizing the White House," which appeared in this morning's issue of your paper.

In selecting Charles McKim to design the renovations and restorations of the White House in 1903 President Roosevelt chose the one man of his time pre-eminently fitted for this task by his knowledge of classic tradition, by his reverence for our historic past, by his sympathy with the characteristic examples of early American architecture, by his unequaled sense of fitness in decoration and furnishings. No artist living today could, I believe, have brought to this task quite the qualities that McKim brought to it.

The march of the years inevitably eliminates much in architecture that is worthy of preservation. Right-minded people regret this and excuse it as due to the exigencies of the times, but no such exigency exists in this matter.

The beauty and appropriateness of McKim's work in the White House is not a question of period or historic style. It is something that resulted from the spiritual qualities of one of our greatest artists. It is worthy of the most careful preservation.

AT BETHANY.

I.

The two sat long beside the board.
The frugal loaf was cut in vain.
In vain the cup of wine was poured.
Their hungry hearts were fed with pain.

And Martha spoke a bitter thing;
Her grief was new and sharp and sore.
"For those two days of lingering,
His friend, our brother, is no more.

"One little word and he were healed;
One touch upon the pallid brow
And those young lips had not been sealed
Forever in the grave, as now."

For Martha's was a troubled heart,
And torn with anxious worryings;
Devout, and dear in every part,
But knowing not the stir of wings.

And Mary answered not a word,
For she had sat before His feet.
Her heart was like a bleeding bird.
Her song was silent, that was sweet.

For she had loved Him more than these,
And heard the thoughts He did not speak.
And in her eyes were memories
That lit the pallor of her cheek.

II.

The risen youth came through the door.
He sat beside the board again.
But not as he had come before,
Nor with the steps of other men.

He smiled and spoke a word or two.
He drank the wine and broke the bread;
But not as other brothers do,
For he had been what men call dead.

He looked beyond the little walls,
For he was grown unearthly wise,
And listened for eternal calls.
And heights and depths were in his eyes.

And by his side the Master lay.
And Martha served Him wine and bread,
And wept, and laughed her tears away.
And Mary knelt with unbound head.

She poured her perfume on His feet,
And wrapped them in her shining hair,
But spoke no word, however sweet.
I, who am telling you, was there.

TETRA ETHYL FIGURES

These Have Not Been Given in Full, Says Correspondent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article entitled "Tetra Ethyl Lead Fatal to Makers," by Silas Bent, in the June 22 issue of THE TIMES draws attention again to the imperative need for complete statistics on the number of cases of poisoning and deaths from all plants manufacturing or selling tetra ethyl lead and ethyl gasoline. Mr. Bent's review purports to give the full list of workers dead, or those suffering from this industrial poison at the Deep Water plant near Penns Grove, N. J. It does not include the deaths or cases of illness at the Bayway plant, nor those at the plant in Dayton, Ohio.

At the United States Public Health Service's Conference called by Surgeon General Hugh Cumming in Washington more than a month ago, representatives of the du Pont, Standard Oil and General Motors Companies admitted 113 cases of poisoning. The cases reported from du Pont's were twenty-eighth prior to May 16, 1924, while Mr. Bent's figures show deaths and poisonings continuing to March 27, 1925.

There is no authentic record that has been made public giving the total number of cases of poisoning and deaths to date. At the public health conference one of the directors of the Workers' Health Bureau asked that the United States Public Health Service get the complete radical records of all workers poisoned by tetra ethyl lead or ethyl gasoline, and that the Public Health Service also find out how long the men were employed before they died or were poisoned; and what happened to men who were poisoned, whether they were able to work at other occupations and whether their health had been permanently affected.

If the expectations of Standard Oil officials that 15,000,000,000 gallons of gasoline would be sold in the United States in the next year prove true, it would mean that 50,000 tons of lead would be distributed over the streets of the country on the basis of three cubic centimetres of tetra ethyl lead to one gallon of gasoline.

According to the Census Bureau for 1920, there are 280,000 chauffeurs, 31,000 garage laborers, 411,000 draymen and expressmen, and taking the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation's figures, at least 40,000 service station operators, which totals up to about 767,000 workers who would be directly affected—not counting those engaged in the manufacture of tetra ethyl lead—should this material come into general use as motor fuel.

The Workers' Health Bureau is issuing a leaflet on the subject of tetra ethyl lead, and reminds the public that the recent conference did not definitely ban the production and sale or use of the material. The sale of ethyl gasoline is left to the voluntary action of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, and the manufacture of tetra ethyl lead is continued without any compulsory protective regulations.

PRINCETON'S NEW PLAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Being a member of this year's graduating class at Princeton, the first to be subjected to the "new plan of study," I was particularly interested in your editorial entitled "A Word for the Pass Man."

The new system at Princeton, known as the Four-Course Plan, is predicated on the supposition that the primary purpose of a college is not to convert a man's mind into a World Almanac but to stimulate original and creative thinking. It seeks to place a premium on initiative and originality rather than on rote, and emphasizes the quality, not the quantity, of the work done. The function of the teacher is conceived to be that of leader and guide, rather than taskmaster or section boss. His aim is to set the pace and to inspire the students to independent endeavor. This was the core of Woodrow Wilson's philosophy as an educator, and this is the ideal which Princeton has set for herself.

It seems rather surprising to see even the suggestion advanced that "an excellent future executive and administrator may be wholly indifferent to original research and original thinking." In these days of Hylanism, Bryanism, the Ku Klux Klan and the Scopes trial, isn't it about time that our universities gave to the country a few "excellent executives and administrators" who knew whereof they spoke and who had the ability and the courage to think intelligently, vigorously, independently, instead of in the half-baked, slipshod, complacent manner which seems to be the order of the day?

And if it is true that a man, while neglecting to learn to think originally in college, may, nevertheless, "profit notably by four years of comradeship with young men of high traditions and keen minds," might I ask, why bother to go to college at all? Why not spend one's time at the Polo Grounds or around the Crillon bar in Paris, where a congenial group of enterprising young Americans are always in evidence?

Princeton has set its face in another direction. It is vitally concerned in developing, not automatons, but thinkers—men who have ideas, and know why they have them. Whether or not the new Four-Course Plan will serve to more nearly approximate this ideal remains to be seen. I do feel, however, that President Hibben's administration deserves a great deal of credit for daring to break with the past and to blaze a new trail in the tangled and ever-conservative field of education.

Pedestrian's Rights Ignored.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

All street crossing proposals put it up to the pedestrian, when, as a matter of fact, the automobilist has absorbed the pedestrian's ancient right to cross the street at the intersection. I have yet to meet an automobile driver who will allow me to cross the street prior to his whizzing by in the car, although I have the ancient right of way.

I understand the right of the pedestrian to use the crossing at the intersection has been legally recognized in Los Angeles. The California city's ordinance provides that where traffic is not immediately supervised by the police the intending street-crosser can, by raising the hand as a signal, cause the car driver to slow, or stop, until the foot passenger has crossed.

I have addressed a letter to our Board of Aldermen petitioning such an ordinance here, but it needs more influential backing than a single letter to give the proposal weight. Incorporated in the ordinance could be a provision to make jaywalking illegal.

At present the pedestrian must cross the street where and as best he can. He is no better off at the intersection than as a jaywalker, because the motorist of these days does not recognize the right of the pedestrian to cross the street at any point.

Make the crossing at the intersection legal and you will eliminate jaywalking. Restore the intersection to the pedestrian and there will be no need for silent rebuke cards, except for the offending and aggressive motor-car drivers.

WILL THEN ASK LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Within two months from today, when complete reports of what happened yesterday in the second nation-wide defense test muster are received at the War Department, a study will be initiated by the General Staff to determine how future inventories of America's defenses shall be made.

The question whether national tests shall be held at a fixed date each year, as has been the case, or whether the musters shall be divided as to time and by components of the three-part army of the United States, already has come to the forefront.

There is no division between army authorities as to the need of some sort of stock taking each year. They unanimously declare that the tests last September and yesterday fully proved their value and that the popular support given to them throughout the country was sufficient for the department to use as a basis for the request that Congress authorize the holding of similar musters every year.

There are those who contend, however, that since President Coolidge has said the authority of Congress must be obtained if the muster is made an annual event, such authorization would be more readily given if sought in the form of divisional or corps area musters, held at various times each year, and not as simultaneous tests of the army as a whole.

One handicap that unquestionably caused more concern than any other this year was the selection of July 4. The same difficulty may arise again next year if a national muster is held, but that obstacle would not be met if localized tests of the army units were authorized.

These questions and others will be placed before the officers chosen to make the study of yesterday's muster, and it is largely on the basis of their conclusions that the future test policy will be decided and Congressional authorization sought by the War Department.

Regarding the muster yesterday, Major Gen. John L. Hines, Chief of Staff, said today that incomplete reports so far received from the nine corps area commanders indicated that the response of civilians, regular army, National Guard and organized reserves, "was more than two-thirds as great as last year."

It was estimated that an aggregate of 15,000,000 persons participated, while in the September test, 16,000,000 civilians exclusive of the regular army, National Guard and organized reserves, took an active part.

"This reduction," General Hines said, "is due to various adverse factors. Several Governors did not feel that they could require the participation of the National Guard of several States. The fact that the Fourth of July was a Saturday naturally reduced the total participation. The weather was an important factor.

"On the whole, however, considering the manifold difficulties under which the test was conducted, it is believed that the results are generally satisfactory. Especially is it to be noted that the official check-up of plans is more complete than last year's. They show that the country is on the right track in regard to the policy of national defense, that is, the one fixed by the National Defense act. They show that the army is on the right track in its decision to mobilize by communities in case of another unfortunate emergency.

"The army desires to express its thanks to the National Guardsmen and Reserve Officers and to the thousands of patriotic civilians who assisted so largely in the test exercises."

ERIVAN, Armenia, July 5 (AP).—Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, League of Nations Relief Commissioner, and the other members of the commission, which made a fortnight's investigation concerning the proposed colonization of 15,000 Armenian refugees in Soviet Armenia, have left for Europe.

The commission selected two areas that would be suitable. One, of 60,000 acres, is northwest of Erivan, and the other, of 45,000 acres, is northeast of the city.

Mr. Luerich, who served in the infantry in this country during the war, said, however, that he did suggest to his brother that each write out his views concerning Defense Day and Preparedness for the benefit of the other.

GOLDMAN DELIGHTS THRONG

A great crowd listened to Edwin Franko Goldman's Band on the New York University campus last evening. Nahan Franko was seen in the audience. The concert opened with Svendsen's "Coronation March," but the applause was reserved for Mozart's overture to the "Marriage of Figaro," and two encores were given for "Elsa Entering the Cathedral," from "Lohengrin." The excerpts from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly" called for another number by the same composer. The music could be heard as clearly far up the hill as in the front seats.

The aftermath of the battles waged with broken bottles, brickbats, loaded whips and clubs by Fascisti and anti-Fascisti from the Garibaldi shrine at Rosebank, Staten Island, to Fourteenth Street and Second Avenue on the afternoon of July 4 had its setting in the Magistrate's Court in Stapleton, S. I., yesterday morning. Magistrate Croak, before whom seven Fascist defendants were arraigned on charges of disorderly conduct, held three in $500 bail each for Special Sessions. He fined the four others $30 each.

The men held for Special Sessions were C. di Fernando, 251 East 153d Street, Manhattan; Leo di Vito, 5,315 Second Avenue, Brooklyn, and Antonio Guzzo, 152 Boerum Street, Brooklyn. NEW CHURCH TO SERVE TEA.

West Side Religious Forum for All Creeds Is Dedicated.

A new community church to be known as the West Side Religious Forum, which is to be open every Sunday afternoon between 4 and 6 to clergymen and worshipers of all creeds, and where tea and cake are to be provided at the conclusion of each service, its promoters say, was inaugurated yesterday at the Campbell Funeral Church, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street. Its founders are a group of women headed by Mrs. Laura B. Prisk of 1,999 Madison Avenue, known as the "mother" of National Flag Day.

Assisting in the dedication ceremony yesterday was the Rev. Charles Hillman Fountain, a Fundamentalist Baptist minister, of Plainfield, N. J., who has been active as a foe of the teachings of Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick.

Mrs. Prisk said the idea behind the new organization was to reach people of all faiths who may not be members of any particular denomination, and visitors to the city, who find most of the churches closed in the afternoon. The strangers to the city, she said, will be invited to visit the new church through cooperation with hotels and other methods. "We intend to have services every afternoon throughout the year, with different clergymen of different denominations in rotation so far as possible," said Mrs. Prisk.

Mrs. Prisk declared that the proposal to serve tea and cake after services was not intended as a lure to induce people to attend. It was rather to bring strangers together informally and to promote an impression of welcome and personal interest.

PASTOR IS JEERED AT RUSSIAN CHURCH

POLICEMEN GUARD ALTAR

Shouts and jeers by followers of Metropolitan Platon Rozdestvensky, ousted head of the Russian Orthodox Church in North America, almost precipitated a riot yesterday at a memorial service for the late Patriarch Tikhon in the Cathedral of St. Nicholas, 15 East Ninety-seventh Street. The uproar was checked by police, who ejected the noisiest of the trouble-makers.

Shrill cries and imprecations broke out during the sermon of the Rev. Michael Cherwinski, one of those who helped Bishop Adam Phillipovsky take possession of the church on Wednesday.

What seemed to cause the most offense in Dr. Cherwinski's sermon was a plea for reconciling and reuniting the Carpatho-Russians and the Southern Slavs, including Serbs and Bulgars, with Russia and the Russian Orthodox Church. This is said to be a cherished principle of Bishop Adam and his followers, and Bishop Adam, himself a Carpatho-Russian, has advocated it ever since the war. According to leaders of Bishop Adam's faction, the principle is strenuously opposed by Archbishop Platon, who is said to favor a purely Russian church rather than a church for all Slavic peoples.

When Dr. Cherwinski mentioned the word Carpatho-Russian, one woman cried out excitedly in Russian, "You are lying! This is a Russian church!" Other women followed, calling the priest liar and traitor. They were encouraged in their demonstration by men in the congregation, many of whom were unfriendly to Bishop Adam and the new régime.

There are no pews in the church, and the congregation stands throughout the long service. When the police came in they found angry men shoving women and children before them in a rush to reach the altar or to get out through a side door. Almost half the congregation streamed out during the hubbub, either in protest or because of fear of violence. Dr. Cherwinski finally was able to finish his sermon, although a squad of policemen stood in front of the gilded ikons which line the altar.

Bishop Adam officiated at yesterday's service, the first Sunday service since he assumed control of the cathedral. Leaflets denouncing Bishop Adam, which were distributed to those entering the cathedral, added to the tenseness. In protest against the ousting of Archbishop Platon, the famous choir of the cathedral was absent. Its place was taken yesterday by a mixed choir from the Russian church at Yonkers.

"They say that we 'grabbed' the cathedral in order to set up a new church for the Carpatho-Russians," said Bishop Adam after yesterday's service. "We did not 'grab' anything; we came by authority of a Supreme Court order. I am here until a Bishop is appointed to head the Church. When such an official Bishop comes I will gladly retire in his favor."

A decision is expected today or tomorrow on the application of Archbishop Platon to vacate the order of Supreme Court Justice Robert F. Lydon, by whose authority Bishop Adam's followers entered the church on Wednesday. At the same time, a decision will be issued in the contempt proceedings against Maurice B. Gluck, Bishop Adam's secretary, for his alleged disregard of a restraining order of Justice John M. Tierney on June 18 last. Arguments in both cases were heard by Supreme Court Justice Levy on Friday.

GIVE FARM SCHOOL $10,000.

Alumni Honor Erlanger, Gimbel, Strauss and Other New Yorkers.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., July 5.—Alumni of the National Farm School, in annual session here, today expressed their appreciation of the recently inaugurated New York program on behalf of their alma mater with a vote of thanks, in addition to a special $10,000 gift to the institution in honor of Abraham Erlanger, Adam L. Gimbel, Manny Strauss, Sophie Irene Loeb and other leaders of the New York campaign.

The gathering, which comprised more than 100 of the school's graduates, including successful farmers, agricultural scientists and teachers from all parts of the country, has thus established a scholarship, the income from which will always support one student.

"The character of the promised New York aid to the school," said Ira J. Mills, Fountainville farmer and Vice President of the association, "finds a particularly deep response in all our hearts. The proposition to furnish the maintenance for 120 additional students at the school immediately and to establish eventually a $1,200,000 permanent scholarship endowment, which will accomplish the same result in perpetuity, means to us that countless hundreds of other deserving and eager young men will have available the remarkable opportunity and training which cleared the road upward for us."

2 LITTLE GIRLS STRAY FAR.

New Yorkers Aged 4 and 9 Found by Police in Newburgh.

While her parents and the police were searching for her yesterday, Ruth Weiner, 4 years old, of 3,675 Broadway, was enjoying a sail up the Hudson River to Newburgh. Ruth left her home about noon for a walk with Frances Boice, 9 years old, of 540 West 164th Street. The older girl bought sticks of candy for both, and they walked to the dock at 129th Street and the Hudson River. There they boarded the boat. Just how they got by the ticket taker was not explained.

When Ruth had not appeared at her home after several hours her father searched the neighborhood and notified the police, who sent out a general alarm. Ruth and the older girl got off the boat at Newburgh and made a tour of the city. By the time they reached the pier again the boat had gone. They wandered around some more until they became hungry and then decided that some one at a police station could tell them where to get something to eat.

Lieutenant Tuthill did more than that. He notified the New York police and soon Ruth's parents were on their way to bring both girls back down the river.

PRINCE ADDRESSES RHODESIAN NATIVES

On Hunting Trip, He Stalks and Kills Largest Wildebeest Ever Shot There.

UMVUNA, Rhodesia, July 5.—The Prince of Wales today held an indaba with the native chiefs and witnessed war dances. Eight thousand persons were present. The head chiefs of the Matabeles and Shingaans came forward on tiptoe, rapping out "Bayette" at each step, and knelt at the foot of the steps of the Prince's pavilion. They named the Prince "Morning Star," adding, "may he always rise and shine."

Then came other chiefs advancing on their knees, bringing splendid gifts of skins, head plumes and shields. When the Prince spoke he addressed a tightly packed semi-circle of shiny black heads. Their salutation took the form of rhythmic hand clapping and, on the part of the females, shrill whistling. A remarkable exhibition of dancing followed from native men and women.

UMVUNA, Southern Rhodesia, July 5 (AP).—The Prince of Wales, who is spending a few days hunting game in this region, yesterday killed a blue wildebeest, described as the largest of its kind ever shot here. Today it was admired by all the assembled hunters and brought the Prince unstinted congratulations.

Galloping to within discreet distance of the animal, the Prince dismounted and stalked it on hands and knees to within 150 yards. He fired, piercing its heart.

The Prince and his party are living in a beautiful camp, the building of which occupied 200 natives for six weeks, but which will disappear within a short time through the ravages of the white ant. The days of the visitors have been spent stalking animals. After supper in the evenings they have gathered around the campfire singing songs, and the Prince, with his ukulele, has been the merriest of the jolly party.

BOY PRODIGY BACK, NOW AFTER A PH. D.

Doesn't Know How Long It Will Take to Get It, Says Edward Hardy Jr.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday from England and Ireland on the Cunarder Caronia was Edward R. Hardy Jr., who was admitted to Columbia University at the age of 12 after passing the entrance examination when he was 11. The youthful prodigy gained the A. B. degree in three years and an A. M. in the following year and said yesterday that he was now studying for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

"I don't know how long it will take to get that degree," young Hardy said, "as it depends upon the time it takes getting material for a long-distance thesis."

In speaking about his age, the phenomenon of Columbia said: "You see my birthday is very convenient. It falls on June 17 after college entrance examinations and graduations are over. So I get credit for graduating a year younger than I really am."

The young student was accompanied by his father, Professor T. A. R. Hardy of Columbia, and his mother, and said the thing that struck him on the trip was the apparent notion of the French people that Americans have only two reasons for going abroad, either illness or pleasure.

"When I was buying a hat in Paris," the boy said, "the clerk asked me if I was sick. I replied that my health was quite good and he said, 'Ah, you must have come for ze plazeer.' Other Frenchmen asked me the same question."

M. C. Dizer, European divisional manager for the Hoover Vacuum Cleaner Company, arrived with thirty-four salesmen, who have come for an annual sales conference. Countries like Arabia, Turkestan, Persia and Syria, where rugs are made, still look askance at modern inventions and beat their products with bamboo canes, Mr. Dizer said.

The concession covers fifteen to twenty city squares to the north and east of the Acropolis and the Areopagus. The Agora or old market-place and temples lie buried twenty-five to thirty feet below the surface. The Greek Government has forbidden further construction work in the specified area.

LIGHTNING HIT STABLE, PUT OUT AUTO LIGHTS

Special to The New York Times.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., July 5.—A bolt of lightning which put out the lights on the car of a passing motorist without injuring the driver or the car struck the chain of box stalls for race horses at the Flemington Fair Ground early this morning and caused a fire which destroyed the training stables and the barn.

Six horses, which had performed on the track at the Fourth of July celebration yesterday, were in the barns when the bolt struck, but they were all led out safely, and were kept in the circle within the race course while the buildings burned. The horses are trained and known as the "Six Guideless Wonders," whose stunt is to race without riders. They displayed no excitement, Fair Ground employes said, and were taken out without difficulty.

Firemen had to tear down box stalls to control the flames and forty-eight stalls were destroyed. The training stables were occupied by Tom Berry, who makes them the Winter quarters of his string of horses, but Berry and his horses are now absent on the Grand Circuit. All Berry's sulkies and other racing equipment were removed.

The motorist whose lights were put out was Frank Bacorn, who lives near Flemington. After the lightning flash he saw smoke rising from the Fair Ground buildings. He found that his motor was undamaged and raced into town to give the alarm of fire.

Officials of the Flemington Fair Association said tonight that plans for rebuilding the destroyed buildings already were under way and that work would begin within a week, in order to have them ready for the fair, which begins on Aug. 25. They said there were 162 entries for the eight $1,000 stake races, and that there would be quarters for all.

HIRAM BARNEY, JURIST AND FINANCIER, DEAD

Soundness of His Ideas Recognized by Friends in Dawes Plan's Leading Features.

Hiram Barney, whose work as a lawyer in international affairs had attracted wide attention since the war, died in his fortieth year on Saturday evening at his residence, 41 West Twelfth Street. The funeral services will be held there at 11 A. M. tomorrow. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Barney returned last January from Poland, where he had arranged the details of an important bond flotation in this country.

He was a member of the law firm of Pruyn & Barney, 2 Rector Street. While Chairman of the International Finance Committee of the American Exporters and Importers' Association and a director of the Parsons Loading Company of 17 Battery Place he formulated a plan for stabilizing foreign exchange and American participation in the rehabilitation of Europe. His friends were pleased to see the soundness of his ideas recognized in the Dawes plan's leading features.

Mr. Barney had been under the care of specialists since his heavy labors in Poland. It was hoped to the last that he would recover and continue the work which absorbed him.

He was born in Riverdale in the Bronx and attended Iowa State University. He was a member of the City and Whitehall Clubs in this city, the Metropolitan Club in Washington and the American Club in London.

He is survived by his wife, Magniel Wright Barney, who is an illustrator, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Barney Brady of Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. Barney was a son of Hiram Barney, Collector of the Port of New York under President Lincoln.

PROHIBITION FOR ULSTER.

Local-Option Measure Will Be Introduced in Autumn.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—Prohibition will be introduced in Ulster by the large dry majority in the Northern Irish Parliament. It will be prohibition by local option, according to The Daily Express, and will not be introduced before Autumn. The Government at present is barred by a pledge given by Premier Sir James Craig, but it is rumored that he will soon resign.

Only ten out of fifty-two members of the Ulster House of Commons are said to oppose the drastic measure, which has the support of the Presbyterian Church, but the situation would be complicated, however, by the existence of the wet Free State on the other side of the Ulster border. It is said that Ulstermen cross this border Sundays to get drink and might take to crossing week days as well, under prohibition.

STADIUM CONCERT TONIGHT.

Philharmonic Orchestra Has 110 Men for Eighth Season on Heights.

The Philharmonic Orchestra will begin its eighth season of Summer concerts at the Lewisohn Stadium, City College, at 8:30 this evening. The season will last for eight weeks. Willem van Hoogstraten, who has conducted for four seasons, will wield the baton the first five weeks. The remaining concerts will be conducted by Fritz Reiner, leader of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, who made his New York début as guest conductor at the Stadium last Summer; by Rudolph Ganz of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, and by Nikolai Sokoloff of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra.

Every program will include a symphony, or a work of equal length. All of the Brahms symphonies will be played, also the fourth, fifth and sixth of Tschaikovsky, most of the Beethoven symphonies, including the ninth, and symphonies by Schubert, Schumann, Mozart, Franck, Dvorak, Rachmaninoff and Respighi. Verdi's "Requiem" will be heard under the direction of Mr. Van Hoogstraten.

The orchestra has been augmented to 110 musicians, the largest body of players ever assembled at the Stadium concerts. Auxiliary men will be added as may be found necessary.

Adolph Lewisohn will make a brief speech of welcome to the audience this evening.

Tonight's program will be:

"Don Juan" .....Strauss
"The Russian Easter" ....Rimsky-Korsakoff
(First time at Stadium.)

A Notable Production.

CYRANO DE BERGERAC, from Edmond Rostand's play, with Pierre Magnier, Linda Moglia and Angelo Ferrari; directed by Augusto Genina. Musical numbers from the opera of the same name by Walter Damrosch. At the Colony.

Allowing for certain necessary differences between stage and screen technique, the "Cyrano de Bergerac" which is to be seen in photoplay form this week at the Colony Theatre is the same "Cyrano de Bergerac" with which Walter Hampden has thrilled the present generation of theatregoers as Richard Mansfield thrilled an earlier one. That fact is to be insisted upon as first in importance in making up the record. What we have here is an impressive demonstration of the fact that a masterpiece may be put into the movies without mauling. The producers are to be credited with—or better, glorified for—a thoroughly conscientious attempt to be faithful to the spirit and letter of their original. And they have succeeded to a notable degree. That is perhaps not to be wondered at, for people who have intelligence enough to know they have in hand a great story for exploitation unspoiled may be assumed to have intelligence enough to devise the means of telling it.

At this point, for no reason at all, the information shall be vouchsafed that this is a foreign film, made in Italy by the Unione Cinematranica Italiana with an Italian to direct and a French actor in the title rôle.

So Cyrano lives, loves and dies on the screen of the Colony very much as he has on the stage of all the civilized world. It is Rostand's hero himself who swaggers among his cadets of Gascoigne, who fights off a hundred men because Roxane has smiled upon him, who breathes through the proxy of Christian the love messages forbidden to his own tongue, and who, at the end wounded to death, rises to brandish his sword against its messenger and go down with his "white plume" of honor unsoiled.

That the producers have been able to put Edmond Rostand's "Cyrano" on the screen, and not some pallid and denatured caricature of it, is all the more notable because at first thought it would seem impossible. The story, the wonderful story, replete with the quickening movement of "sword and cloak" romance freshly and spontaneously told, is there, of course, for the screen to tell. That much is a free gift from the genius of the author.

But there is so much more to "Cyrano de Bergerac"; its fantasy; its humor, now robust and now whimsical; its pathos; above all, the delicate imagery of its poetical text. The words Rostand put into the mouth of his hero on the stage are golden words and his phrases flash like quicksilver. What can the screen do with these?

Well, the notable thing about this production is that it succeeds in conveying some of these intangibles, and by so doing offers food for thought as to whether it has not enlarged what have appeared to be the limits of moving picture presentation. Rostand, as well as telling a story, has sung a song, and the producers have succeeded in catching at least a substantial echo of its music.

The present reviewer does not wish to exaggerate this aspect of the presentation. He recognizes that there is difficulty in estimating it, for he has some familiarity with the play in its original form and it may be that memory supplies something of what is lacking. Nevertheless, it is certain the stimulus for memory is there, and that certainty adds to the impression that even for those making acquaintance with the long-nosed Gascon for the first time, a sense of the more subtle values of the play is there if they will take it.

Some of these values can be conveyed by the intelligent directing and acting always noticeable. For some others, the screen has no method but the use of sub-titles. It is not the ideal method but the producers have done the best they could with it. In many cases, notably at the more important points, they have quoted from the original text. There are more sub-titles than are usually found in a photoplay. Judged under ordinary standards, this would be considered a blemish. But these titles were written by Edmond Rostand.

The production is in colors throughout. That fact in retrospect is less important than in anticipation. There are many times when the colors add a pictorial value. There are moments when some happy combination of colors, costume and background flashes a pleasurable effect that is outside and supplementary to the dramatic value. But, to balance this, there are not infrequent moments when a sense of unreality in the coloring distracts the eye and diverts attention from the progress of events.

Perhaps before this tribute should have been paid to the value of the contribution of Pierre Magnier, who plays the rôle of Cyrano. Those who may believe the methods of subtlety and repression have no value for screen purposes are recommended to watch him at work and learn. Possessed of the authority and economy of means belonging to a well-trained actor of the French school, he accomplishes much with little apparent effort. He is never out of the character and one feels like blessing him for the exaggerations he has omitted. One would be tempted to say the closing scenes are more affecting in the photoplay than on the stage, if one could forget the absence of a voice, but if there is any justification for the temptation at all, it lies in the sincere and moving power of his acting in the final scenes. Linda Moglia is a Roxane who as the play progresses gets a deeper and deeper hold on her audience, and Angelo Ferrari is a satisfactory figure as Christian. The whole production speaks for the excellent taste and evident proficiency of Augusto Genina's direction.

What He Brought Back.

ONE YEAR TO LIVE, with Aileen Pringle, Dorothy Mackaill, Rosemary Theby, Antonio Moreno, Joseph Kilgour and others; directed by Irving Cummings; "Sneezing Beezers," a two-reel Mack Sennett comedy; organ specialties by John Hammond; "The Two Grenadiers," sung by Salvatore Solte. At the Piccadilly.

There is a country which exists only in the minds of moving-picture directors of a certain type, and its people live a life of which only they know the secret. It does not exactly fit Hamlet's phrase as "the undiscovered country," because these directors from time to time venture into it, and when they come out tell us all they know, with diagrams, charts, pictures and illustrative text. Irving Cummings, who directs for M. C. Levee pictures, has recently been there. What he found is published in "One Year to Live," this week's feature picture at the Piccadilly Theatre.

One does not imagine any of the geographical societies will be interested in the results of his exploration. For he has found nothing new, or, if he has, he does not tell about it in "One Year to Live." In that picture we have all the figures and incidents well known as characteristic of the Land Where No One Lives.

There is a great theatre. There is a great theatrical producer. There is a great dancer. You know them all. There is also a heroine. You know her. She is poor and works as a maid for the great dancer. As soon as you see that you know some day she is going to take the great dancer's place and be a great dancer herself. You also know the great producer will offer to make her a star, and you know on what terms. Elise Duchanier (Aileen Pringle) has to go through all that. And—God bless us!—she has a bedridden sister whom she must support, and that is why she goes home after a supper in one of those moving-picture directors' restaurants with the great theatrical producer.

That is the sort of thing Mr. Cummings has brought back with him, and there is lots more of it and all the same. Somewhere about the middle a doctor in love with Elise tells her she has one year to live. That gives the play its title, but not much else. Nearer the beginning an American officer sees her and they fall in love and, would you believe it?—in the end they marry and live happily ever after.

The picture has an unusually opulent assemblage of well-known actors in Aileen Pringle, Dorothy Mackaill, Rosemary Theby, Antonio Moreno and Joseph Kilgour. They do as well as could be expected with material which has no relation whatever to normal human life. There are some spectacular scenes, including a masked ball at the great theatre, that are well managed as those things go.

Some people will like "One Year of Life." There is always entertainment in watching handsome and gaily-dressed people cutting up in an exotic environment. But there's no sense to the whole thing. A Mack Sennett comedy, "Sneezing Beezers," is a feature of the same bill, and there are organ specialties devised by John Hammond, while Salvatore Solte, bass, sings "The Two Grenadiers."

Other Films.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Opening tonight are "Earl Carroll's Vanities," at the Earl Carroll Theatre; "All Wet," at the Wallack's; and the Summer edition of the Ziegfeld Follies at the New Amsterdam.

"The Green Peach," a musical play to be produced here around Thanksgiving Day by Arthur Hammerstein, will have a London prima donna in the leading rôle, according to an announcement yesterday from the Hammerstein offices.

"Trouble Island" opens its try-out tour in Asbury Park tonight.

The name of "The Female of the Species," now in rehearsal, has been changed to "What Women Will Do."

MUSIC NOTES.

The Stockholm Student Singers will visit Battery Park, where Jenny Lind first sang in this country, on next Wednesday night, the eve of their departure for home. The singers have just completed a tour of New England and the Middle West. They will give their farewell concert at Carnegie Hall tomorrow night.

A son was born on July 4 to Irwin M. Cassell and Mrs. Cassell, who is Mana-Zucca, singer and composer, at the Nursery and Child's Hospital, Amsterdam Avenue and Sixty-first Street.

century, in the whole Western Church, down to the year 1868 was there any canonical allowance for the remarriage of the so-called 'innocent party.' In that year, 1868, for the first time in the history of the whole Anglican communion, a General Convention of the American Church presumed to overrule the plain teaching of the New Testament, the teaching and practice of the Church in the first three centuries, and since then of the whole Western Church, by allowing the innocent party under certain conditions to remarry.

"Because the present proviso of Canon 43 (which is the canon on the marriage of a divorced person) is not only contrary to the repeated commands of our Lord and of the doctrine and practice of the whole primitive church, and of the American church up to 1868, but was enacted by a single convention of that year, contrary to Article 10 of the Constitution, which provides that 'No alteration of the Prayer Book or addition thereto shall be made unless the same shall be first proposed in one triennial meeting of the general convention, and by a resolve thereof be made known to the diocesan convention of every diocese, and may be adopted by the general convention at its next succeeding triennial meeting by a majority of the clerical and lay deputies of all the dioceses entitled to representation in the House of Deputies voting by orders.'

"Such is the history of this fatal proviso, which half a century of experience has proved to be the ever-ready wedge of collusion, fraud and falsehood, and the despair of honorable judges.

"Impossible Duty" for Bishops.

"Because, as a merely practical measure, the allowance of remarriage to the 'innocent party' places upon the bishops an impossible duty in view of the fact that, even with the court's decree and record before them, but without power to call and examine witnesses, it is impracticable to distinguish between the innocent party (where such really exists) and the guilty. Inasmuch as, in the opinion of many of our judges, at least one-half or all the divorces granted are probably fraudulent or collusive, and that 80 to 90 per cent. are granted in default, without defense or rebuttal, how is it possible for bishops, unskilled in law and without secular powers, to form a right judgment in such cases?

"Because, in accordance with our Lord's pragmatic test, 'by their fruits ye shall know them,' the census reports for the United States, with their forty-eight codes and fifty-two causes for sundering the bond, show the most rapid increase of divorces of any country, pagan or Christian, in the world."

Besides the officers already named the following are prominent in the Sanctity of Marriage Association: the Rev. C. F. J. Wrigley of Brooklyn, Vice President; the Rev. Dr. Walker Grynne of Summit, N. J., General Secretary; the Rev. Dr. Edwin A. White of Bloomfield, N. J., Treasurer; the Rev. Dr. Caleb R. Stetson, rector of Trinity Church; the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, rector of St. James's Church; the Very Rev. Hughell E. W. Fosbroke, dean of the General Theological Seminary; the Rev. Dr. William H. Owen, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Harlem; the Rev. J. Wilson Sutton, vicar of Trinity Chapel; the Rev. E. Russell Bourne, rector of the Church of the Resurrection; Justice Vernon M. Davis, the Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tomkins, rector of Holy Trinity, Philadelphia; the Rev. F. H. Richey of St. George's Church, Maplewood, N. J., and T. W. Bacot, a lawyer, of Charleston, S. C.

tion is made that Congress set up a Federal agency to obtain and publish currently "data on production, prices, costs and profits in the coal industry."

The report says the lack of current information in the frequently recurring emergencies in the coal trade is "the greatest obstacle to intelligent action on the part of the public and the Government," and adds that "the premium prices of 1923 were the result of an anticipated shortage and a panic demand due largely to general ignorance of the real conditions."

The commission asserts that the average annual net production of anthracite coal for the period from 1914 to 1923 was about 88,000,000 tons, and of this amount more than 70 per cent. was produced by eight large companies "which, because they are, or until recently have been, owned by or more or less closely affiliated with the railroads tapping the anthracite territory, are known as 'railroad companies.'" The remainder of the output is produced by more than 100 companies known as "independents."

According to the commission, the investigation just completed has revealed that the independents ran their prices above those of the eight big companies when there was fear of a shortage, or an actual shortage, and that the wholesalers also jumped their prices to the retailers and the retailers to the consumers.

The principal points developed by the investigation are as follows:

"A long period of monopolistic combination in the anthracite industry (now largely abated by recent judicial decrees) has resulted in concentration in the ownership of coal lands; in the failure to increase mining capacity adequately, so that production has not developed with demand; in the establishment of an unduly high general price level, and, in times of temporary or apparent shortage in high premium prices at the mine which have encouraged and facilitated the taking of excessive profits both by wholesalers and retailers.

"The existence of high premium prices at the mine has also led to speculative sales among wholesalers, thereby further enhancing the price paid by the retailer. During August and September, 1923, from one-third to more than two-fifths of the reported sales of premium anthracite was handled by two or more wholesalers before being sold to a retailer."

GALLANT POLICE GET PRAISE OF CITIZENS

ONE SAVED DROWNING BOY

Patrolman Plunged Into Water in Full Uniform—Another Protected Pupils From Dog.

More letters of praise from citizens for displays of heroism, skill and courtesy by members of the Police Department were made public yesterday by Police Commissioner Enright.

The courage of Policeman Frank R. Siekmann of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station in stopping a runaway and saving two children at Second Avenue and Sixty-third Street, brought two letters of praise, one from M. M. Hayward, a real estate agent of 2,440 Broadway, who wrote:

"Siekmann could just as easily have let go of this horse and avoided a chance of being crushed to death against an elevator pillar, but he held on to the bridle and miraculously saved himself."

A rescue by a traffic policeman, Thomas McWalters, assigned to Rockaway, was described by William J. Teehan of 5,565 Fifth Avenue, a foreman of the American Railway Express. A boy, Patsy Guerra, was drowning about 125 feet off the Rockaway shore, when the officer, after a run of about 200 feet through the sand, plunged in in full uniform and seized the youth just as he was disappearing, then having a "very difficult task to reach the shore," to which both of them had to be assisted.

"In response to many requests from people in the community," Raymond W. Malley of 1,750 Walton Avenue, wrote in praise of Patrolman Michael Farrell and Herbert Seifert, "whose recent prompt action saved the lives of Mrs. Richard Holahan and two children overcome by carbon monoxide gas at 118 Rockwood Street, Bronx."

Louise E. Tucker, Principal of Public School 35, commended Patrolman Joseph Shea for prompt action. When a pupil in an open air class was bitten by a dog, he gave first aid, then caught the dog and sent him to the S. P. C. A., thereby protecting a crowd of children.

Frank H. Horowitz of the Greely Music Shops, 256 West Thirty-fourth Street, commended the "ceaseless hard work" by Detective John Dent of the West 123d Street Station in recovering a diamond ring stolen by a burglar and sending the burglar to Sing Sing, a task that took two months.

Telling of a rescue in the East River at the foot of Third Street late at night, Herman Greenberg of 72 Avenue D wrote that he had just turned his head at a cry for help when he saw a man dive into the river to the rescue. It was not until after ten minutes of hard struggle, when he had brought the drowning man and the rescuer to the pier, that Mr. Greenberg found he was a policeman. He didn't give his name, but Benjamin Herschkowitz of 164 Lewis Street identified him as Thomas J. O'Dea of the Fifth Street Station. Mr. Herschkowitz also highly commended the policeman for his bravery.

The Rev. George A. Woods of Nazareth, N. C., stopping at the Grand Hotel, was so impressed by the courteous and quick action of Patrolman Walter J. Rennemann of Traffic A in chasing a trolley car and restoring to one of its passengers a brief case which he had dropped from the car, that he wrote the Commissioner that the officer "fairly blushed when praised for his quick work and prompt action. I am sure the knowledge will give you some part of the pleasure it afforded one of your visitors from the country."

CALLS LIQUOR TRAFFIC CRINGING BOOTLEGGER

Dr. Wilson at Round Lake Conference Says Dry Law Ended Legalized Temptation.

ROUND LAKE, N. Y., July 5.—The three-day Citizenship and Enlightenment Conference conducted by the Round Lake Assembly closed today. The keynote of speeches delivered by State and Federal officials, economists, social workers, church leaders and industrial experts was that prohibition has been successful in sufficient volume to bring about a tremendous, many-sided improvement.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence True Wilson, General Secretary of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, one of today's speakers, declared that legalized and organized temptation had been removed.

"The liquor power has been broken," he said. "The days when Presidents were threatened, Judges were corrupted, State and national conventions dominated by the liquor interests, the faithful men in office defeated and bad ones elected to take their places—these are almost forgotten. The liquor traffic is now a cringing bootlegger.

"Prohibition has absolutely transformed the social customs and life of the millions. If a man takes a drink of wood alcohol and goes blind or dies, we all hear of it. In the old days 7,800 saloons could ply their trade in Chicago all day and all night and all day Sunday without note or hindrance.

"Now one man with a hip-pocket flask can sell one drink and get front-page space. But not one word has been said about the millions on millions who took the occasion in 1920 to quit drinking. A few bootleggers are more talked about than all those millions."

Mrs. Mary Brewer, who is in charge of the organization of the Anti-Saloon League of New York and the Allied Citizens of America, gave a short address in which she defined patriotism as a practical participation in politics, declaring that the success of democracy depends on intelligent people taking active part in government. She said that the public must not complain that politics was dirty if everybody did not do something to make it clean.

HAD ONE MEAL IN 3 DAYS.

Girl Here From Chicago Is Found Unconscious in Street.

Suffering from starvation, a girl who said that her name was Jane Smith, and that she had come here three days ago from Chicago, was picked up unconscious yesterday morning at Sixth Avenue and Forty-second Street. Patrolman Jacobsen of the West Forty-seventh Stret Station noticed her leaning wearily against a window, and as he started toward her she fell.

He called an ambulance and the girl was taken to Bellevue. She was reluctant to talk and was able to do so only in short periods when not in coma. She would not give her address in Chicago. She said that since coming to the city she had eaten only one meal. Her condition was classed as serious at the hospital. She was about twenty years old.

Pointing out the frequency of similar attacks the Soviet Foreign Minister demands guarantees against such occurrences in the future and the appointment of a special joint commission to investigate the incident. He reserves the right of his Government to demand compensation for material losses. An immediate reply is requested.

$1 GAS LAW AGAIN IS HELD INVALID

SERVICE CHARGE APPROVED

Report Filed With Federal Court Says Company Is Entitled to 8% Return on Investment.

Another skirmish in the fight for the enforcement of the $1 gas law has been lost, it was learned yesterday, with the filing with the Federal Court in Brooklyn of the report of Special Master Appleton L. Clark, who heard testimony regarding the case of the New York and Richmond Gas Company, which supplies all Staten Island. In the report the special master held the $1 law unconstitutional because confiscatory.

Mr. Clark also upheld the right of the gas company to charge a service rate, the initial application of which caused a storm of protest in the borough and resulted in the company withdrawing it. In upholding the contentions of the gas company, the Special Master recommended to Federal Judge Marcus Campbell that the temporary injunction restraining the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General from enforcing the $1 law and prohibiting the service charge be made permanent.

Litigation over the law has been carried on ever since its enactment in 1923. The gas companies have won practically all the important victories. In April, Federal Judge Winslow upheld the report of a special master sustaining the contention of the Consolidated Gas Company that the $1 was confiscatory.

There has been wide interest in Staten Island over the outcome of the proceedings brought by the New York and Richmond Company. Acceptance or rejection of Special Master Clark's recommendations now rests with the Federal Court.

The two sections of the law which the Court temporarily restrained the Public Service Commission and the Attorney General from enforcing were Sections 898 and 899 of the Laws of 1923. The first named prohibited was companies in cities of over 1,000,000 from charging more than $1 for 1,000 cubic feet of gas. The other section prohibited gas companies from making service charges for meters and other equipment.

Special Master Clark was appointed in 1923 and testimony began before him on Oct. 20, 1924, and ended on Jan. 21, 1925, during which time more than 10,000 pages of testimony were taken.

In his report the Special Master held that the company was entitled to an 8 per cent. return on its investment and that the enforcement of the $1 law would not make such a return possible. There was conflicting testimony on the value of the investment on which the return should be based, but the Special Master's report in the main upheld the valuations testified to by witnesses for the gas company.

The present rate at which the New York and Richmond Gas Company supplies residents of Staten Island is $1.40 for 1,000 cubic feet. At the time the proceedings were started the charge was $1 per 1,000 cubic feet with a 75 cent service charge.

The control of the company recently passed from Beman G. Dawes, brother of the Vice President, to a new group, whose identity was not revealed. The stock was bought in 1916 for $65 a share and sold for $115 a share in May when the control changed hands.

Mr. Clark made public a copy of his opinion last night but would not comment on it. He said the report had been filed on Saturday.

MOVE ON DRY LAW EVADERS.

Druggist Body Advocates Expulsion of Conniving Members.

Expulsion of druggists who, in the sale of alcoholic liquors, connive at the evasion of the Eighteenth Amendment is advocated by the council of the American Pharmaceutical Association in a resolution adopted recently and made public yesterday. The resolution, copies of which have been distributed by the Drug Trade Bureau of Information, reads as follows:

"Pharmacy has for its primary object the preparation of medicines for the sick. In addition to this responsibility the members of the profession have been entrusted with the dispensing and use of alcoholic liquids for medicinal purposes.

"The pharmacist who connives at or actually takes part in the compounding, marketing or sale of preparations which, while masquerading under the guise of medicines, and possibly complying with the letter of the regulations governing these products, have for their principal purpose the evasion of the Eighteenth Amendment is an unworthy member of our honored calling.

"Pharmaceutical organizations should purge their membership lists of such individuals as speedily as possible, in order that the public may realize that such individuals are not representative of pharmacy."

PARIS SOON TO HAVE AN AMERICAN HOTEL

ALL MODERN CONVENIENCES

Backers Say It Will Be the Best-Equipped Inn in the World—To Have French Personnel.

The Boomer-du Pont Properties, Inc., which owns the Waldorf-Astoria, the New Willard and other large hotels, announced yesterday that, with the co-operation of French capitalists, it would build and operate an American hotel in Paris.

The site has been purchased, financial arrangements have been made and the French architect André Arfvidson is now in this city conferring with architects McKim, Mead & White to learn of advancements in the part of hotel building in this country which may be used in the Franco-American hotel in Paris.

Ground will be broken this Fall. The hotel is to be completed by the Spring of 1927, and, according to its projectors, will be the finest and best-equipped hotel in the world. It will not compare in size with great American hotels. It will have from 225 to 250 rooms. It will be operated with a French personnel under American supervision. The announcement by the Boomer-du Pont Properties, Inc., said:

"The site of the hotel is in the heart of Paris and in its most exclusive quarter. The great lot which has been purchased runs from the Avenue Gabriel, really part of the Avenue des Champs-Elysées, through to the Rue de Faubourg St. Honoré. Adjoining it is the famous Rothschild garden.

"The architect of the new hotel, André Arfvidson, is known to many Americans of his profession who have attended the Ecole des Beaux Arts. He has won a leading place in his country through his work in the devastated regions, the Government building he has supervised and his designing of banks, apartment houses and modern hotels. The consulting architects are McKim, Mead & White of 101 Park Avenue, New York.

"The lobby will be much like that of one of the finest American hotels, with every possible facility for the convenience of patrons. There will be an American front office with all that means, a theatre ticket agency, a news stand, a post and telegraph office, a cigar shop, a telephone service run on American principles and a battery of American elevators of the latest design. Conveniently situated will be a real 'American' bar, a billiard room, a barber shop, a candy shop, a florist shop, a large dining room with a broad terrace overlooking a beautiful garden and another restaurant for dancing, and there will be another and more secluded garden for afternoon tea.

"An American doctor, an American dentist and an American trained nurse will be in residence. The hotel will be fitted with an American system of heating, with thermostatic control, pneumatic tubes, electric baths—in short, every practical device making for comfort and convenience, such as meets the requirements of good taste."

POLICEMAN THROWN BY RUNAWAY HORSE

Police horses, schooled to stand quietly though automobiles screech, fire engines scream and street cars clang, may not understand giant firecrackers and early yesterday morning one of the best animals in the department went into a ditch carrying his rider with him, when three were exploded at his feet. The policeman was able to scramble out but it took a fire company two hours to extricate the horse.

Patrolman Bernard Keeney of the Richmond Hill, Queens, station was riding White Star along West End Avenue in Ramblersville, Richmond Hill, when an automobile sped by and one of three men in it threw out three lighted firecrackers.

The firecrackers exploded at White Star's feet and in an instant the animal had the bit between its teeth and had bolted. Running parallel to West End Avenue is a creek containing two feet of water and an unlimited depth of mud. Straight into the creek the horse dashed, neatly catapulting the policeman over its head as its feet struck the soft mud.

Bruised, muddy, wet and angry, Keeney was helped out by passers by and tried to pull his horse out after him. The animal's feet were held fast in the ooze, however, and the policeman's efforts were unavailing. Then firemen from Engine Company 142, at Ozone Park, were summoned. After two hours' efforts they managed to pass some lines around the horse. The ropes were fastened to the engine truck and with a gallant heave the animal was hauled to dry earth. The horse was uninjured but Keeney reported sick and went to his home at 132 Emerson Place, Brooklyn.

CHARGES OFFICER BEAT HIM.

When arraigned in Yonkers City Court yesterday on a charge of disorderly conduct, John Grohosky, 23 years old, a machinist, of 2 Jefferson Street, Yonkers, accused Police Sergeant Jerome Linehan of brutally beating him with a blackjack without provocation.

Sergeant Linehan denied the charge countering with an accusation that the defendant insulted him every time he met him on the street and that he had resisted him when he told him to move on.

When the prisoner's mother was on her way to court this morning to see her son she gave a policeman she met on the street such a tongue lashing that he arrested her. She was arraigned before Judge Boote after her son and pleaded guilty to being disorderly. Judge Boote paroled her but remanded young Grohosky to jail until he could get bail.

Sixty thousand women, wives, mothers or daughters of as many employes of the Southern Railroad system, are made beneficiaries under terms of a new $150,000,000 policy for which the railroad companies have just contracted for with the Prudential Life Insurance Company. The employes receive protection in amounts from $1,000 to $3,000, according to monthly rate of pay. Men earning less than $100 per month are eligible for $1,000 policies and those earning more than $175 per month for the $3,000 policies. No medical examinations are necessary.

Long Ago!

It was customary to take off one's hat and remove the cigar from the mouth when entering an office. It was customary to speak quietly and plainly in discussing one's needs to a doctor, lawyer, or even a bank official. It was customary to stand in the presence of ladies. It was customary thereby to evidence the reflection of good breeding. It was customary to be courteous and even patient in all one's dealings. It was customary, when driving a runabout, to keep on the right side of the road. It was customary to use a fork for what it was intended to be used—and likewise a knife—and perhaps a spoon. It was customary to shake one by the hand instead of administering a rough slap on the back. It was customary to use plenty of soap and water instead of scent—water was really inexpensive. It was customary to see that one was properly manicured and shod. It was customary to look one in the eye when speaking. It was customary to have more backbone and less chest. It was customary to be industrious and to be well informed. It was customary to defer to older heads and endeavor to absorb advice. It was customary to understand that there was much left to be learned. It was customary to show respect; not to brush people aside; not to bump into them in the streets and in public places. It was customary to be generous-hearted and good-natured. It was customary for young people to say "sir" and "ma'am," and not "yep" and "nop"; to speak when they were spoken to, and come when they were called. It was customary to feel that the coming generation was one to be hoped for and encouraged, and would, in return, have consideration for the feelings of their elders. But all that and more—each reader can add to it—was long ago!

MEET HERE TO AVERT BIG BUILDING STRIKE

FINAL ATTEMPT FOR PEACE

EMPLOYERS STILL HOPEFUL

Government Official Will Attend Meeting Called in Last Effort to Settle Dispute.

A final attempt to make peace between the warring plasterers' and bricklayers' unions, and avert a tie-up of $500,000,000 of building operations, will be made in this city today at a conference arranged by leaders of the Building Trades Employers' Association.

The jurisdictional dispute between the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union, and the Operative Plasterers' and Cement Finishers' Association, which has been acute for several months, has reached a stage where all evidences point to a "fight to the finish," unless an early peace is arranged.

Builders look on today's conference as the most momentous in the building industry in many years and are hoping it will be successful.

Although Edward J. McGivern, President of the plasterers' union, has in the past accused the bricklayers' union of attempting to dominate and control his organization, he has not offered proof. It was learned yesterday that the operative plasterers based their fight against the bricklayers on the ground that the 1924 convention of bricklayers, at Saratoga, adopted a resolution unanimously instructing its officers to "spare no expense to bring about an amalgamation of the plasterers' and bricklayers' organizations."

All Intervention Fails.

Plasterers asserted that the carrying out of the resolution was begun by the bricklayers when the building contractors of the country received notice that members of the bricklayers' union would not lay brick, stone, marble or tile unless the plastering was done by members of their organization.

The plasterers' union, convinced that theirs is a distinct trade, have taken up arms against absorption by the bricklayers. Led by their President, they have announced to the bricklayers that they will not be absorbed without a struggle.

Up to the present every attempt at intervention has failed. In March, when plasterers called strikes on $22,000,000 of new construction, a committee of the Building Trades Employers' Association, headed by Otto M. Eidlitz, held several conferences with both sides. On April 7 a temporary truce was arranged under the terms of which the differences were to be submitted to the executive committees of both unions on April 16. In the meantime the strikers returned to work.

Instead of meetings of the executive boards, the disputants met in Washington, after the attention of President Coolidge had been brought to the menacing situation. Secretary of Labor Davis brought representatives of both sides together three weeks ago. He suggested that all points in dispute be referred to a board of arbitration of five members, two selected by each side, the fifth to be selected by President Coolidge or President William Green of the American Federation of Labor. This offer was accepted by President McGivern on behalf of the plasterers, but was rejected by the bricklayers.

Trouble Goes Back to 1911.

The trouble between the two unions goes back to 1911, when they signed an agreement to recognize each other's working cards, and agreed that in cities where one was organized and the other was not the one having the organization should control the work. Provision was made as to the method under which the plasterers who were unorganized might form locals of their own.

The situation was brought to a head several months ago in Florida, where plasterers began forming locals. This action was held by the bricklayers to be a violation of the 1911 agreement. The matter was referred to the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor, which failed to make peace.

The strikes of last March followed, but a truce was arranged. The truce lasted until June 10, when strikes involving $100,000,000 of construction were called.

The United States Department of Labor considers the inter-union dispute as second in importance to the nation-wide mine strike of 1922. The department probably will have a representative in New York today to watch the proceedings.

President McGivern of the plasterers was at the Hotel Aberdeen last night, but he declined to comment on the situation. It is understood that he is still in favor of arbitrating the entire matter. If the conference fails today the plasterers, it was said, would "fight the bricklayers to a finish."

The building contractors and owners, faced by the alternative of bricklayers' strikes if they favor the plasterers, and plasterers' walkouts if they side with the bricklayers, know no way in which they can extricate themselves from the dilemma.

HYMAN TRIAL STARTS TODAY

Union Local's Manager Predicts His Own Defeat on "Red" Charges.

Louis Hyman, manager of Local No. 9 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, will go to trial today on charges of radicalism and "boring from within." As soon as the union tribunal is through questioning him, Hyman will turn lawyer and sum up for himself and his accused associates of Local No. 9. Mr. Hyman predicted that he would lose the case.

"The whole trial has been such a farce that it cannot end too quickly to suit us," he said. "It is too bad that the public could not hear the ridiculous questions asked us. Every effort has been made, not to discover facts, but to force us to make incriminating statements.

"We know we are going to be adjudged guilty and we want them to hurry with the verdict so we can announce our next move. We know we have the rank and file of the workers behind us; we consider ourselves their representatives, and we intend to act accordingly."

The fact that Patrolman Charles Winterhalter improvised a tourniquet with a towel and a nightstick saved the life of Otto Rehm of 402 East 156th Street early yesterday morning, according to Dr. Rosenhecht of Lincoln Hospital. While walking with his brother John, Rehm slipped on the wet sidewalk in front of a cafeteria across the street from his home and fell through the plate glass window.

The glass cut an artery in his right wrist. While his brother ran for the patrolman, Rehm, weakening fast, dragged himself to the kitchen of his home, where the policeman found him unconscious from loss of blood. The improvised tourniquet stopped the flow just in time, said Dr. Rosenhecht when he arrived. Rhehm will recover.

SLEUTH STRIKES OIL; TOO RICH FOR HIS JOB

HOLDS A COLUMBIA DEGREE

Will Be a Millionaire in a Few Years, He Hopes—May Be Promoted Before Retiring.

With riches pouring into his lap at the rate of $300,000 to $400,000 a year, according to Acting Police Lieutenant William B. Noll, in charge of detectives at the High Bridge Station, he will retire in the next few months to enjoy his wealth in California and be with his aged mother, who is ill.

Noll's wealth has come from oil and real estate, and while his fortune has been in the making on the Pacific Coast he has been advancing in the Police Department, and, in addition, has won the degree of B. A. at Columbia University.

Noll will start on July 16 for three months' leave, which he will spend with his mother, whose health will not permit her to live in New York, he said last night. In applying for the leave he told Commissioner Enright that he wished to leave the department as a Lieutenant. He stands No. 20 on the list of eligibles for promotion. The Commissioner, it is understood, said he probably would get the promotion soon. On the date Noll gets it he will retire.

Noll is 42 years old and joined the force in 1906. He has spent seventeen years in the Detective Department, most of the time at Headquarters. His home is at 419 West 115th Street. While carrying on his police work he studied in Columbia, usually at night, and specialized in psychology and in Oriental languages. He received his baccalaureate in 1919. His knowledge of Chinese and Japanese has often been used by the Police Department, and he has rendered particularly valuable service in the times of tong warfare.

The police officer's father, Arthur E. Noll, was a well known saloon keeper and amassed a great deal of property. A brother, Herbert, a mining engineer, went to California fifteen years ago and saw the possibility of fortunes in oil there in the future. He communicated his belief to his family and both men and their father invested in farm lands, which they bought very cheaply, and other property, which the officer said last night had greatly appreciated in recent years. Their interests are largely at Long Beach and Los Angeles.

Not long ago the oil fields they owned began to produce heavily and Noll said that he had every expectation of becoming a millionaire in a very few years. His father died recently in California.

SAYS JAPAN FAVORS DICTATOR FOR CHINA

London Writer Thinks She Has Plans Opposed to Coolidge Conference Proposal.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—That Japan has special interests in China which she will prefer to safeguard by supporting the strongest Chinese aspirant to power rather than by leaving it to the Chinese to settle the Government of China by conference, and that she regards the Bolshevist intervention in the Chinese situation as an event as significant as was the Russian encroachment on China, which caused the Russo-Japanese War, are the contentions of a special correspondent of The London Times just back from Japan. The points alleged in his article are of great interest in view of the conference of powers President Coolidge intends calling to settle the Chinese question. They give an indication, at least, of what will be in the minds of the Japanese delegates at such a conference.

It is obvious, says this writer, that any foreign power which tries to exploit China for its own political or economic ends must come into conflict with Japan. Perceiving this, he adds, the Russian Bolsheviki have tried to focus against England the agitation which began in a Japanese mill. The writer then goes on, in effect, as follows:

But it is not Russian animosity toward England which Japan has to reckon with, but Russia's influence in China.

Japan's policy in China depends on fundamental interests which are not in conflict at any essential point with the interests of Great Britain or the United States and the treaty powers generally.

Japan's first interest is her own security. She rooted out the Russian and German armed bases in China and made it clear that she would permit no more to be established. Her second interest is economic. She crowds a population half as big as that of the United States into a land the size of California, less than one-fifth of it arable, with a population of 2,688 to the square mile.

Manchuria and Korea have been open for the twenty years since the Russo-Japanese War, but they have not yet absorbed the normal population increase of a single year. She must die of starvation or expand in her neighbor's backyard.

She sells one-third of her total exports to China. The greatest development in her foreign trade has been with China and her economic life now depends upon the free and regular exchange of commodities with China.

Japan, therefore, has substantial reasons for objecting to foreign agitations which interfere with trade conditions.

Apropos of the question as to whether Japan has special interests in China, says the correspondent, Japan and America once went through a grave farce of concluding an agreement in which her special interests were recognized, with reservations, and later with equal gravity they expunged the agreement. Nevertheless, these interests exist.

If the Chinese military leaders could prevent preying on people, China would double and quadruple her trade, and Japan would benefit most by such an expansion, but could not monopolize it. There is nothing in her interests, he asserts, to prevent concerted action by the other powers concerning the chaos in China. And it is obvious that no policy could be carried into effect without Japanese cooperation.

AMERICAN WARSHIP SAVES MISSIONARIES

HONGKONG, July 5.—There is great rejoicing in Hongkong today because the American destroyer Simpson, which had been sent to Yeungkong to inquire into the safety of American missionaries there, returned with a party of priests and sisters of the Maryknoll Mission.

The missionaries, it developed, when the situation became threatening, made their way to the coast to meet the rescue launch dispatched for them. They were unable to attract the attention of those aboard, however, and had the disappointment of seeing it depart.

They then had no recourse but to return to the mission, where it was found that the anti-foreign feeling had heightened and threatening letters were being pushed under their doors.

The next event was the arrival of the destroyer Simpson off the coast. A boat was launched, but it capsized in the heavy seas. Two sailors aboard it disappeared and it was thought that they had drowned, but both were washed ashore and succeeded in reaching the mission. That was the last scare before the whole party was taken aboard and transported to Hongkong without further incident.

The strike here continues and foreign trade today is almost completely stagnant. Occasional strengthening of the street patrols, however, is the only indication of the Government's activities. Chinese continue to leave the colony, and it is estimated that 100,000 have departed.

Sixty coastal and river vessels are laid up, but the ocean-going ships for the most part are avoiding Hongkong and the harbor is empty. One result of these conditions is that employers are taking advantage of the crisis to introduce labor of mixed nationality to guard against future boycotts.

The emergency service is working satisfactorily, although intimidation continues, with occasional assaults. East Indians are being employed to deliver threats. The police are active, however, and their carrying out of the Government's policy is restoring confidence.

Matters will probably drift along somehow until the diplomatic corps reaches a settlement.

The Canton newspapers publish the full text of the Canton Government's demands upon the British and French Consuls in Shameen, the foreign settlement, where the recent shooting occurred, quoting evidence which is alleged to show that responsibility for the shooting rests with Shameen. The Shameen authorities have been asked to transmit the accompanying demands for an apology and for compensation for the Chinese killed and injured, and to surrender Shameen, to their Ministers in Peking, with a request that Canton be informed as to how they propose to deal with them.

Meanwhile, foreigners are assured of the protection of the Canton Government. The situation now, therefore, is one of expectancy.

Reports today of the disturbances in Swatow say that students incited a mob of rowdies to attack Chinese shops trading under British or Japanese flags. The mob stoned and looted the stores and hotels, beating and robbing the guests. In one case a Chinese military officer opened fire on the mob, causing it to scatter, but there were no other casualties. The position of Swatow is precarious.

American Kills Chinese Rioter.

SHANGHAI, July 5.—An American marine today killed a Chinese rioter who was attacking a foreign policeman. A mob of more than 200 attacked the foreign police when the marine intervened.

The Shanghai defense forces have again been mobilized in preparation for trouble with the municipal power service, closed due to the strike of Chinese labor. The plant has been carrying on with foreign labor, but the strain is too great, resulting in the announcement that it will shut down at noon tomorrow, throwing an additional 100,000 men out of work, chiefly at Chinese plants. Admiral McVey and the American Consul General, Mr. Cunningham, are protesting against the shutdown, fearing disorders beyond the power of the foreign forces to handle.

Renewed evidence of the impending split between the Chinese political forces was indicated tonight in a telegram by Tong Shan-yi, a former Premier and member of the conservative wing of the Kuomingtang, to the Provisional President, Tuan Chi-jui, demanding his resignation. It is rumored here that Tong's branch of the Kuomingtang is uniting with General Chang Tso-lin against the Red wing of the Kuomingtang, charging that they are in alliance with the Soviets.

The Shanghai strike continues, and agitators persist in intimidating and kidnapping laborers who are working for the public utilities. This afternoon a street car loaded with thirty workmen was stopped. The men were forced off and taken to the native territory concentration camp.

A British river steamship was manned today by a complete White Russian crew and departed for Hankow with a cargo of foreign goods to relieve the shortage on the upper Yangtse.

Anti-British Order Blamed on Feng.

PEKING, July 5.—The aim of British policy in China is to wipe the entire Chinese race off the face of the earth, according to Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian General. A document published by Chinese newspapers, purporting to be an order to the Chinese "revolutionary republican armies of Honan," as well as his own, states, it is alleged, that the loss of the Chinese nation suffered as a result of the wanton murders in Shanghai and elsewhere are incalculable, but this fails to check the bloodthirst of the British, and if they are allowed to give full rein to their brutal instincts, they will not stop until the entire Chinese race is wiped from the face of the earth. The alleged "order" says:

"When I consider the situation calmly I see the imminent approach of a great catastrophe. We cannot bear longer to concede more. Desperate situations call for desperate measures, regardless of consequences."

Then follows an order that officers and men must wear black arm bands, the flags at army posts must be at half mast and the officers are to lecture twice daily on the Shanghai and other tragedies.

All are to swear to die so that China may not perish.

The orders are accompanied by appropriate moralizing on the glory of death for a great cause.

Stripped of all hyperbole, these words imparted to Feng, read here as a direct incitement to 250,000 Chinese soldiers to regard the British as murderers and to carry on a war of revenge.

The custom of granting office employes two weeks' vacation with pay has something to do with the large number of young men and women applying for "white-collar" jobs, according to a report by State Industrial Commissioner James A. Hamilton on the vacation policy in New York State as applied to office and factory workers.

In a statement issued yesterday Commissioner Hamilton said that a study of 1,500 factories disclosed that 90 per cent. of them gave vacation with pay to their office workers, while only 18 per cent. gave vacations with pay to their production workers. The statement also showed:

That the larger establishments lead in giving vacations to their factory workers, 39 per cent. of the plants with more than 2,000 employes having such vacation policy.

That only 9 per cent. of plants with less than fifty employes provide vacations for factory workers.

That the average vacation for office workers was two weeks, for factory workers one week.

That the food and chemical industries rank first among industries which have a "vacation with pay" policy for their factory workers.

That only 6 per cent. of the factories had abandoned previously established vacation policies for their workers.

That employers who provide vacations for their factory workers favor the plan. These employers, according to the statement, said that the vacation policy resulted in "increased loyalty to the firm," "reduced turnover" and "contented workers."

6 DROWN NEAR CITY; 3 OF THEM CHILDREN

MAN LOST IN CONEY SURF

Crowd Sees Young Woman Sink Close to Shore in Lake Mohegan Without Going to Aid.

Arthur Kavanaugh of 16 Arden Street, a theatrical producer, was drowned yesterday when his motor boat overturned in Croton Bay on the Hudson, near Croton, N. Y. His wife, who was brought ashore, was hysterical last night at the Ossining Hospital, and unable to tell how the accident happened.

Kavanaugh, who was a member of the New York Motorboat Club, was on a two-day holiday at Croton. Late yesterday afternoon cries were heard from the boat on which were only he and his wife. Persons who responded found the boat upset, but managed to reach Mrs. Kavanaugh in time to save her.

Bertha Schilpert, 11 years old, of 2 Railroad Avenue, Corona, L. I., waded beyond her depth yesterday at Edgemere Beach, L. I., and sank suddenly in the undertow off the foot of Beach Forty-fourth Street. John Charles, a lifeguard, saw the girl disappear and went to her rescue.

Charles managed to get her to shore, and Dr. Jacobson of St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockawdy, was called. He worked over the girl with a pulmotor for an hour, but failed to resuscitate her.

Max Kessler, 25 years old, of 801 Bergen Street, Newark, N. J., was bathing at Coney Island with his brother, Leo, and a friend, Harry Greenberg, also of Newark. Kessler picked up a small child and with the youngster on his shoulders began to wade out into the surf. Leo Kessler and Greenberg suddenly heard the child scream. The little girl was floundering in the water and Max Kessler had disappeared. The child was brought ashore, but no trace of Kessler was found.

Within sight of a score of persons standing on the shore of Lake Mohegan, near Peekskill, N. Y., Mrs. Edith L. Rose, 22 years old, of 894 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, was drowned. Dr. Amos O. Squire, County Medical Examiner, commented upon the failure of any one to go to the young woman's rescue.

Mrs. Rose, who was an excellent swimmer, went out a short distance from shore. She then turned and was making her way back when she screamed and shouted. She sank and was dead when brought ashore. Witnesses said the young woman was not more than eight or ten feet from the shore and in very shallow water when she went down. An investigation will be made to determine the cause of death.

Two boys were lost off the tip of Fort Washington Point, in Fort Washington Park, 190th Street and the Hudson River. Joseph Hoffman, 10 years old, of 511 West 171st Street, and Louis Anne Jr., 11, of 171 Audubon Avenue, were the victims. The boys, with Joseph's older brother, John, 16, accompanied Louis Anne Sr., an importer, on a trip into the park yesterday afternoon.

The two boys wore bathing suits under their clothes and were soon in the water. They knew that a strong undertow existed off the point of the rocky promontory, due to a submerged cave, and they contented themselves with splashing in a big pool of water in a depression in the rocks. After a while, however, they began to skylark. Persons saw them standing hand in hand on the very brink of the shelving rocks. One of the boys lost footing and plunged into the water, which is more than 40 feet deep at the point.

The shouts of the spectators reached Joseph McGuire of 511 West 169th Street, a member of the volunteer life-saving corps maintained at the point by the 102d Engineers, N. Y. N. G. He leaped into the water and made out the form of the Hoffman boy. He brought it to shore and while Dr. Largo sought unsuccessfully for signs of life McGuire returned to search for the Anne youngster. He failed to find the body, and harbor policemen were dragging for it last night.

The body of Simon Wagner, 200 East Fifty-seventh Street, Manhattan, who was drowned off Huguenot Beach, S. I., Saturday afternoon, was recovered yesterday. The young man was drowned at the same time as Miss Bertha Grossman of 287 Henry Street, when the boat in which they were with four other young people overturned a few hundred yards off the beach.

FUND STILL $500,000 SHORT.

$5,000,000 Endowment Is Sought for Hampton-Tuskegee Institute.

The $5,000,000 fund being raised by the Hampton-Tuskegee Institute is within $500,000 of its goal, Clarence H. Kelsey, Chairman of the Executive Committee, announced yesterday. The balance has yet to be obtained, he said, before the institute can receive the $2,000,000 gift of George Eastman.

The money is being raised to endow the institute for the training of negro men and women to become community leaders and teachers. The largest gifts made thus far have been $1,000,000 each from John D. Rockefeller and the General Education Board. The Hampton-Tuskegee Alumni raised $90,000.

Finds Mother Dead, Gas Leaking.

Mrs. Catherine Roddatz, 62 years old, was found asphyxiated by gas yesterday in the kitchen of her home at 85 Reservoir Avenue, Jersey City. Alfred Roddatz, her son, who discovered the body, said that a tube on the range had become detached. The police expressed the opinion that Mrs. Roddatz's death was accidental.

FLIER UNABLE TO AID SEES 2D PLANE DROP

SAYS IT TOOK 2 TAILSPINS

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., July 5.—While a veteran pilot, an ace of the World War with quite a reputation as a test pilot, sat in the cockpit of his machine 800 or 900 feet in the air, powerless to aid them, two less experienced fliers in a training plane crashed to the earth near Curtiss flying field this afternoon. One was buried beneath the wreckage of the machine and died a few minutes after he was extricated. The other was badly cut and bruised. The veteran pilot could do nothing but bring his own machine to the ground and help haul the two unfortunate airmen from under their machine.

Leroy Disbrow, 23 years old, an amateur flier, of 8,422 121st Street, was the man killed. Serafino Cirigliano, a mechanic employed by the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, who lives at 114 Terrace Avenue, Hempstead, L. I., who sat behind the second set of dual controls in the machine, was the man who escaped with his life, and Casey Jones of the Curtiss Company was the pilot who saw the accident from the air.

Disbrow bought the machine, a Curtiss J. N., training plane, some weeks ago from a man at Roosevelt Field, and two weeks ago rented hangar space at the Curtiss Field. The "Jennys" are not held in particularly high esteem by veteran aviators and are used principally as training planes where young aviators are taught to fly, with experienced pilots handling the second set of controls.

This afternoon when Disbrow and Cirigliano were on their flight Casey Jones was a little above them, less than a quarter of a mile away, flying back to the field.

He saw the machine make one turn of a tail spin and then come out of it.

"Almost instantly it went into another tail spin," he said. "It looked to me as if both men were trying to control the plane but were unable to do so. Then it crashed. It was noly 700 feet in the air and they had no chance in the world of righting their plane at that altitude once it went into a complete spin."

Casey Jones said he hardly believed the men had been making an intentional spin at such a low altitude.

"No pilot would attempt any 'stunting' unless he was sufficiently high to straighten out his machine and glide down should any accident happen, and 700 feet is far too low to come down on a glide with anything wrong with the machine."

The plane dropped like a plummet into a potato field on the farm of Martin and William Kolsch, not far from the Curtiss field. Scores of motorists, passing on the old country road near by, saw the drop and rushed to aid the fliers. They helped pull the two men from the wreckage and took them to the Nassau County Hospital. Disbrow died on the way.

SAYS HE SAW WIFE ELOPE.

Frank Van Sprengel, 40 years old, of 170 Sixth Street, Hoboken, slept late yesterday morning and awakened just in time, so he told the police, to see his wife leaving the house in a taxicab with a former boarder. The wife is 38 years old. The former boarder, Felix Vandermeer, is 25.

Van Sprengel went to Police Headquarters, where he reported that his wife had withdrawn $600 from a savings bank and had taken $200 that was in the house and two valuable diamond rings which he says belonged to him.

Vandermeer lived with them two years, Van Sprengel said. He could not enlighten the police as to Vandermeer's past history.

SHIELDS HIS SLAYER.

Fight Victim Dies Without Revealing Assailant's Identity.

Refusing to divulge the name of the man who shot him, although he admitted he knew who did it, Christopher Regan, 28 years old, of 855 First Avenue, died at 4:30 yesterday morning in Bellevue Hospital of a gunshot wound in the abdomen. He received the shot in a fight on East Forty-eighth Street between First and Second Avenues on Saturday morning.

Thomas Cotter, 38 years old, of 1484 Second Avenue, who suffered a badly lacerated scalp in the same fight, the police believe, is being held in $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow.

Jailed for Not Paying Taxi Fare.

Thomas Fagan, 21 years old, of 179 Laramee Road, Plainfield, N. J., was sent to the county jail for five days yesterday by Magistrate Conway in Jamaica Court for refusing to pay a taxicab driver for a ride. Anthony Ratuzzi, the taxicab driver, said that Fagan hired him yesterday morning to drive from Long Beach to Rockaway, then wouldn't pay.

HOMEBOUND MILLION JAMS ALL HIGHWAYS

SCORES OF EXTRA TRAINS

The million who left this city over the Fourth of July weekend began to pour back last night. Hundreds of extra trains deposited great crowds in the stations, and the highways winding into New York held a traffic that was unprecedented.

The influx started slowly, and was not as great as railroad officials had expected. One road reported that fully 60 per cent. of the rush that reached its peak on Friday night had proved to be vacationists, beginning the regular July-August outbound tide. Despite this, several roads, notably the Central Railroad of New Jersey, the West Shore and the Erie, said that this year's return was greater than ever before.

All ferry services were operated at maximum. Schedules were abandoned and the boats ran on a program regulated only by the time needed to discharge and take on passengers. Eight special boats were hurried into the Staten Island service last night and the railroad ferries landing on the west side waterfront had all craft in operation.

The chief feature of the coming back of the city's holiday-makers was the automobile traffic. Cars were crossing the new Peekskill-Bear Mountain Bridge over the Hudson at the rate of 1,000 an hour at one time. The number that used the municipal ferry to go from Staten Island to the Battery last night alone was estimated at 7,500. Roads coming in from Westchester County and Long Island were jammed.

Half a Mile of Autos.

At the Weehawken ferry house the line of cars extended a half-mile, reaching up the winding road and over the top of the Palisades.

The crowds at the Grand Central Terminal began to pour back later than the return at other railroad points. The New York Central and the New York, New Haven & Hartford had scores of extra trains in service. Herbert J. Reynolds, Assistant Superintendent of Traffic for the New Haven, estimated that 25,000 persons, or five times the normal traffic for Sunday, returned on his road alone.

The influx was especially noticeable at the Pennsylvania station, where the Long Island trains were coming in on a fifteen-minute schedule. The Pennsylvania system had fifty special extras in service and officials estimated that the number returning through that station last night would probably be more than 250,000 persons.

28 Extras on the West Shore.

Officials of the West Shore Railroad reported twenty-eight extra trains in service, with many of the regularly scheduled trains being operated in three sections. Six extra trains were put on the Ulster division of the road to carry the heavy traffic from Catskill Mountain resorts. The Ontario & Western Railroad, a subsidiary of the West Shore and the New York Central, had eighteen extras running.

George Mehoroff, stationmaster at the West Shore station at Weehawken, estimated that the traffic, with an increase of 20 per cent., had been heavier than on any week-end he recalled.

At the station of the D. L. & W. in Hoboken, Stationmaster Henry Byrnes said that the road had registered a 20 per cent. increase. The railroad had thirty extra trains carrying back holiday-makers who had visited the Poconos, Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap and Lake Hopatcong.

Twenty-five extras was the quota of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in the mobilization to get New Yorkers back home.

The Erie reported forty extra trains in service to carry down the passengers who spent the holiday week-end in Sullivan County. The number of extra coaches put on regular trains was 180.

The stream in from Long Island centred largely upon the Queensboro Bridge. Traffic policemen on duty there also found the rush starting late. They expressed the opinion that many persons had held off returning until late, hoping thus to avoid the crowds.

CONEY HAS BUSY DAY; 150 CHILDREN LOST

It was an old-fashioned day at Coney Island yesterday. There was a crowd of 650,000 persons. About 150 children were lost and later recovered. The water lured 250,000. And it was hot and noisy.

Every policeman in the Coney Island precinct was out to handle the crowd, and an ambulance from the Coney Island Hospital, posted in front of the police station, kept dashing here and there. The hardest worked man on the sand island was the ambulance surgeon, Dr. Dromfield, who revived persons suffering from submersion, attended those who received cut feet, wiped tears from the eyes of lost kids and, in general, realized that Sunday at Coney Island was no holiday for him.

It rained steadily at Coney from midnight on Saturday until 8 A. M. yesterday. Then it suddenly cleared off and as suddenly got hot. The wind was off shore, as the hundreds of thousands piling off trains quickly discovered. All day they fought to get off trains at the West End Terminal of the B. M. T., and until late last night they were still fighting to get on trains at the same place.

The first mishap among the crowd was when Edward Mooney, 22 years old, of 303 Douglas Street, Brooklyn, collapsed from heart trouble in Surf Avenue at West Eighth Street. Dr. Bromfield attended him and then took him to the hospital, where he revived and was pronounced out of danger.

Thirty-five young men were arraigned in Coney Island Court before Magistrate James T. O'Neill. They were charged with disorderly conduct at the terminals, the charge chiefly arising from window-jumping. In addition the 250 men under command of Police Captain Thomas Cummings were occupied picking up lost children.

CANADIAN HELD AS THIEF.

Magistrate Conway in Jamaica Police Court, held Joseph Domino of 733 Logan Street, Montreal, Canada, in $15,000 bail yesterday for action by the Grand Jury when Domino waived examination on a charge of grand larceny.

Domino was arrested at the Aqueduct Race Track on Saturday afternoon by Detective Mierau of the Richmond Hill Precinct, after he is alleged to have picked the pocket of Samuel Kraus of 568 West 149th Street, Manhattan.

Daylight Movies of Bronx Zoo To Begin Soon for Children

Daylight motion pictures of the animals in the Bronx Zoo will be shown in a large tent at the Zoological Gardens by the New York Zoological Society, Acting Director W. Reid Blair announced yesterday. The tent will be erected at the south end of the park near the Boston Road entrance. The exhibition of the pictures will be started early next week, and is intended for the thousands of children who are not able to go away for Summer vacations.

The smallest bird in the apiary, the longest python in the reptile house, elephants, lions and tigers will be shown on the screen. Some domesticated animals will be exhibited under the tent while their pictures are being shown.

TWO BOYS ACCUSED OF 26 ROBBERIES

LONG ELUDED CAPTURE

Said to Have Got Thousands of Dollars in Thefts in Long Island Grocery Stores.

Two 17-year-old boys who were captured late Saturday night after a chase and accused of trying to rob a chain grocery store in Lynbrook were said by the police yesterday to have confessed the robbery of twenty-six grocery stores in Queens and Nassau Counties.

Their loot, the police said, had amounted to thousands of dollars and the boys had spent it entertaining young women, decking themselves out in expensive clothing and providing themselves with a speedy car which they used both for making escapes after their robberies and for entertaining their friends.

The boys, Harry Whiteman of 7,615 Shell Road, Elmhurst, and Richard Bolger of 17,344 173d Street, Springfield, Queens, are both employed as office boys in New York City. They are held in jail at Lynbrook for a hearing there this morning on charges of robbery.

The pair were captured Saturday night by Police Lieutenant Bitcon of Lynbrook, who saw them in a grocery store at Merrick Road and Colgate Court as he was passing. The lieutenant forced his way into the store and the youths ran out at another door. Lieutenant Bitcon chased them several blocks, firing as he ran. He overtook them and found that they were unarmed, although, he says, they had burglar tools.

At the Lynbrook Police Station it was noticed that their descriptions corresponded to those of two men for whom the Jamaica police had been searching for several weeks. Their descriptions had been broadcast throughout New York City and Long Island after several stores in Nassau and Queens Counties had been entered.

Two weeks ago Detectives Flattery and O'Brien of the Jamaica police chased two youths, who the police believe are the same pair now in jail, in an automobile to the Nassau County line after they had robbed a store near the Long Island Railroad Station in Springfield. At the county line the detectives lost trace of the youths.

Late yesterday afternoon the detectives took the prisoners to the Jamaica Police Station, where they said they obtained signed confessions that the youths had robbed twenty-six stores in the two counties.

ROBBER HELD IN $50,000.

Women He Attacked in 32d Street Subway Appear Against Him.

Bail of $50,000 was set when a man describing himself as Joseph Elalella, 27 years old, of 147 Bleecker Street, which the police say is fictitious, was held for the Grand Jury by Magistrate William A. Farrell in Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning on a charge of assault and attempted robbery. The complainants were Miss Ida Levine of 79 South Reagan Avenue, Port Chester, and Miss Rose Kline of 5,428 Stanton Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Elalella was arrested Saturday after he had been tripped by a bellboy in front of the Hotel Martinique as he tried to escape employes of the B.-M. T. subway who had chased him when, they allege, he attempted to steal Miss Kline's purse and had, according to police, brandished a knife to evade capture.

The women were stopped, they said, in the 150-foot underground passage leading from the Martinique to the B.-M. T. subway entrance at Thirty-second Street and Broadway. Elalella, they declared, lunged at Miss Kline with a knife and attempted to snatch her purse, but ran when Miss Levine started for the stairs screaming. He was stunned when the bellboy tripped him, and Patrolman Powderly of the West Thirtieth Street Station arrested him.

HELD IN $25,000 FOR THEFT.

Prisoner, Caught After Chase, Accused of Stealing Auto.

Bail in $25,000 was fixed yesterday by Magistrate William A. Farrell in Jefferson Market Court for George Burton, 22, of 112 West Ninetieth Street, who was arrested after a chase in the Broadway theatrical district Saturday afternoon. He is charged with grand larceny and will have a hearing tomorrow.

Burton was seized when the automobile he was driving, which, the police say, had been listed as stolen, ran into an elevated pillar in Fifty-third Street near Seventh Avenue. He had ignored commands of half a dozen traffic patrolmen to stop, and was gaining on his pursuers, despite a volley of pistol shots, when the collision ended the chase.

The automobile, the police said, was stolen in Broadway at Thirty-fourth Street where its owner, Andrew Monday, of 528 Madison Avenue, had parked it.

AUTO JACK USED TO ROB.

It Opens Shop Window but Sets Off Alarm—Suspect Is Caught.

An automobile jack was brought into play as a burglar's tool last night, but the man using it inadvertantly set off a burglar alarm and was caught.

The alarm brought two private detectives to the corset shop of E. Weisbaum, at 250 Brook Avenue, the Bronx. They went to the rear of the store and found George Fino, of 142 St. Anns Avenue, at the window. The jack had been rested on the sill of the barred window and the upper part was pushing a crossbar. Fino was locked up at the Alexander Avenue Station.

OFFERS NEW PLAN FOR IMMIGRATION

NO LIMIT TO THE NUMBERS

Arrivals Would Be Assigned to Districts in Which They Might Be Needed.

TO BE CERTIFIED ABROAD

Attendance for Two Years at an Americanization School Would Be Compulsory.

Details of a proposed new immigration plan have been sent to benevolent and fraternal organizations in the United States by Maurice B. Blumenthal, a former Deputy Attorney General and organizer of the Liberal Immigration League.

Here is the plan which Mr. Blumenthal suggests shall be used as the basis of constructive legislation:

"Immigrants from Europe should be admitted without regard to numbers and independent of our immigrant population according to any census.

"Before being permitted to embark the intending immigrant should be certified in his native country by an American board functioning there as to his moral, mental and social fitness for citizenship here.

"If certified, then on his arrival here the immigrant should be assigned to reside for a prescribed reasonable time in such a section of the country as a board functioning here shall prescribe, with due regard for the convenience and benefit of the immigrant and the requirements and economic advantage of the nation. The object is to stop the present objectionable settlement of immigrants in certain congested parts of the country and to compel the development of sections at present thinly populated.

"Compulsory attendance weekly, for two years, at an Americanization school to be conducted under governmental supervision.

Mr. Blumenthal declared that the passage of the present immigration law was a mere temporary makeshift, adding:

"There is needed constructive legislation which would settle the problem for many years to come. The Governments of Europe are much concerned about our recent radical immigration prohibitions; more than that, Americans realizing the inestimable part played by immigration in our national birth, development and achievement and foreseeing the necessity of continuing our land as one of opportunity to the mentally, morally and physically fit, resent this change in our national policy because it means the freezing up of the American heart and the ultimate decrepitude of American aspirations. With a wall around us we should never have become the America of today, nor could we hope to maintain American ideals. After all, we are a nation of immigrants. The very key of our national formation, development and existence is immigration, and we may well recognize the fact that upon it depends the future of the nation.

"In passing the present law Congress assumed that it was necessary practically to cut off immigration in order to keep up the earning power of the American wage earner. The result has been not merely to increase wages, but to aggravate the constant rise in the cost of living out of proportion to the advanced cost of labor.

"I do not agree with some that the American Congress is actuated by racial or religious bigotry in this business of immigration. The American Congress is too big for any such unworthy motives. In matters involving the national welfare its members may always be relied upon to act in accordance with good consciences. However, I think Congress has handled this problem from the wrong angle and permitted itself to be nagged into an attitude of hostility toward immigration because some overzealous friends of liberal immigration had chosen ungenerous methods in presenting their plan for a continuance of a liberal immigration law."

A party of welcome, given by Giuseppe Carnazo, official bootblack of Police Headquarters, in honor of his 17-year-old daughter, Antonette, to whom he had to be introduced upon her recent arrival from Italy, was held yesterday in Carnazo's home, at 207 Grand Street.

Fifteen years ago Giuseppe and Catherine Carnazo left their little village of Catana in Italy and set sail for America. They were very poor. Behind them, with relatives, they were forced to leave their first and second born, Mario, a 4-year-old son, and Antonette, a two-year-old daughter.

They came into New York's east side. Giuseppe became a bootblack and started to save money for the day when he could bring his two children here. Other children came—first Joseph, now 12 years old, then Concetta, 11; Margaret, 10; John, 5, and finally Sammy, 16 months. Giuseppe needed all his earnings to take care of his rapidly increasing family.

Ten years ago he started to shine the shoes of the high officials at Police Headquarters, and has been official bootblack there ever since. Eight months ago the time came when Giuseppe's ambition to have all his family together seemed possible of achievement. Mrs. Carnazo was sent to Italy to look for Mario and Antonette. She found a beautiful stranger for a daughter. Antonette, the baby, had grown to young womanhood. Mario, she learned, had joined the Italian Army.

The mother stayed long enough to get acquainted with her daughter and then came home to report to her husband. Giuseppe scraped up the necessary money, arranged for the proper papers and then sent for Antonette. When she arrived four days ago Mrs. Carnazo was at the dock to meet her and to introduce her to her father.

The father gave the celebration yesterday as the first of two. The next one, he says, he will have when Mario comes to join the family for which and the young man's transportation he is saving.

SEES IN PATRIOTISM A VARYING EMOTION

SUGGESTS CHRISTIAN VIEW

Declares Christ, Who Loved His Own People, Rejected Nationalism to Work for Mankind.

The Rev. Dr. Tertius van Dyke, pastor of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, Park Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street, advocated Christian patriotism as a practical way of dealing with ruling hatreds, at the first of the union Summer services of the Park Avenue Methodist and Presbyterian Churches yesterday morning.

"Patriotism, like every word in which there is emotion," he said, "is subject to a great variety of interpretations. For the widest divergences among civilized men are not in their thoughts but in their feelings. Accordingly, patriotism varies from being a noble devotion to being, as Dr. Johnson called it, the last refuge of scoundrels.

"There is a patriotism which is nothing but a respectable form of egotism. You know the kind of man who is always talking big about America, and all the time you feel sure that he is convinced that he is the personal exhibit of all the virtues he applauds.

"Again, there is the patriotism of the profiteer who loves his country as a boy loves the orange he is sucking.

"Then, there is a patriotism which finds expression chiefly in depreciating or threatening other countries. This is about as sensible as if a man tried to show how he loves his own family by ridiculing other families.

"In contrast to these spurious but popular substitutes there is a real patriotism, positive, constructive, founded on principles. This is a mighty passion that lifts a man out of himself and starts him on the road to spiritual greatness. For there is another alternative to selfish jingoistic nationalism than sentimental humanitarianism. The man who does not love his countrymen and the institutions in which his life was nourished is certainly no lover of mankind in general. Christ's command to love our neighbor as ourselves is not an invitation to accept a theory, it is a challenge to action.

"Did not Christ himself make that choice in his great temptation in the wilderness? He refused the narrow nationalism popular among the Jews of his day that kept hurling itself against the tyranny of Rome and issued in blood and tears. And He chose to love his people with a great inclusive and practical love that sought their eternal welfare and so reached out to the whole world."

POINTS OUT CAUSES OF AMERICA'S GLORY

Our War Triumphs Small Compared With Other Achievements, Rev. C. E. Wagner Says.

Preaching on "The Main Forces of Patriotism" yesterday in the West Side Methodist Episcopal Church, 463 West Forty-fourth Street, the Rev. C. Everett Wagner said that the proper way to observe Independence Day was to be mindful of America's religious moral and economic triumphs rather than stress solely its achievements in war.

"Our nation's triumphs now are not first its wars, but rather last its wars. America is what it is today because it has public-spirited citizens who are devoted to its interests; because of the American family institution which is the greatest power in our nation; because of the enlightenment of our people through education; because of its industrial economic system; because of its moral and religious ideals and because of its social good-will and feeling of friendship among its peoples, and with other peoples. These are the chief sources of the strength of our nation. It is from these causes that there has sprung up a country in which every one has a moral pride to be called an American.

"Our wars are solely national interests. While these main forces of patriotism are essentially common with those of other nations, when our patriotism is fostered around wars it produces a narrow nationalism. When our patriotism is fostered around the home, the school, the industry and the Church it produces a good nationalism and also an essential internationalism. With this sort of association in patriotism we would have mutual respect and mutual active cooperation among nations.

"Not by glorification of our nation's wars on the Fourth of July, nor by tacking on a fizzle National Defense Day can we most appropriately celebrate the birthday of America's independence," he said. "The national loyalty taught in the text books and by the teachers in the schools and colleges in the past decades was one consisting almost wholly of the triumphs of this nation in the Revolutionary War, the War of 1812, the Mexican War, the Civil War and the Spanish-American War. Three-fourths to four-fifths of the pages in the histories were used in explaining the causes, the battles and the successes of the wars. The students naturally concluded that this stress of the country's wars meant that America is what it is today solely because of its wars."

WANTS LAW AGAINST WAR.

Dr. J. H. Holmes Would Protect Those Who Refuse to Fight.

Discussing the probabilities of permanent peace in the Community Church of New York, Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. John Haynes Holmes declared that he looked forward to the day when those citizens who refused to go to war would be protected in that refusal.

In establishing such a right, Mr. Holmes said, it would be carrying out the work of the man who inspired the Declaration of Independence, who, he explained, was Hugo Grotius, a Dutch scholar and philosopher of the seventeenth century. His book, "Concerning the Laws of War and Peace," the preacher added, was published 300 years ago last week, and inspired in the Pilgrim fathers the concept of a spirit of tolerance.

"In the fact that the Constitution was to provide for all classes and kinds of people we can see the tolerance of Grotius," said Dr. Holmes. "In 1899, Dr. White, recently President of Cornell, led the members of The Hague Conference to the tomb of Grotius in Delft, and laid upon it a silver wreath from the United States."

Declaring that war was incompatible with law, and was still murder, Dr. Holmes said there should be a law to outlaw war and make it a crime under any condition.

SAYS CHRIST PROVED STRIFE WAS FUTILE

Dr. Shailer Matthews Thinks Church Should Point the Way Toward World Amity.

Preaching in the Park Avenue Baptist Church yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Shailer Mathews, Dean of the Theological School of Chicago University, made a plea to make the Church of Christ a dominant force in current affairs, declaring the Church had never been more alive and active than today. He emphasized the importance of the future and said that all those who tried to project the past into the present and the future are engaged in a futile work.

"We must try to visualize the circumstances in which Christ lived and preached," Dr. Mathews said. "He did not move in a theological atmosphere, but in one of intensified national aspirations and hatred. At the time of His coming, the Jews were under Roman rule, and, although they never had been as prosperous before, they longed for the arrival of the Messiah who would lead them to victorious war against their rulers, who were the more hateful because they were pagans. What the Jews desired was doing to the Romans what the Romans had done to them and more."

The preacher then described the scenes of enthusiasm that greeted Christ at His entry in Jerusalem. "The people were waving their garments and green leaves at the Master because they believed He would lead them to war and conquest; but He knew the futility of fighting with the sword and His eyes were filled with tears as He thought of the destruction that would befall His country because the people would not listen to his gospel of love and mercy."

"What Christ wanted was to make of His people an example of spiritual achievement. He wanted them to realize that their mission was not to establish an empire like the perishable Empire of Rome, but to seek to achieve a civilization of love and cooperation which would bring the Kingdom of God."

Dr. Mathews said that what was true in those days still holds true. "We must ask today whether it is not wiser after all to follow Christ's advice rather than to follow a policy of merciless strife and force.

"The question," he said, "is whether men are to act as gentlemen or as potential gunmen, letting the more adroit bandit with the bigger gun have the last say.

"In order to make it possible for cooperation and justice to reign among individuals and nations we must make the Church a living part of society," the preacher asserted. "The Church, if it is going to be true to its mission, must be far more than an ecclesiastic institution apart from the modern activities, it must strive to infuse Christ's enthusiasm in all who have anything to do with shaping the present and the future; without directly taking part in politics, it must endeavor to prepare men who will strive to bring about the era of cooperation and love among the nations of the world, always pointing to the fact that love is, after all, nothing but good sense and that humanity is built for cooperation and not for strife."

ENUMERATES 4 MARKS OF A GOOD AMERICAN

Dr. Gilmore Says They Are Capacity for Work, Thrift, Optimism and Friendliness.

There are four distinctive marks of a good American, according to the Rev. Dr. O. T. Gilmore, preacher for the Summer in the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, West 104th Street, near Amsterdam Avenue. In his sermon yesterday he enumerated them as follows:

"First, though not of most importance perhaps, the real American is a worker. He digs. He earns his living by honest toil at some chosen work. Only in that way is any man entitled to his bread. There are workers and workers. We have spoken too long in a distinctive way of 'the laboring class.' We must not have either a leisure class or a laboring class if we are true to our heritage and to our best interests as a nation. Every man, whether he wears overalls or a tailor-made, whether he swings a hammer or uses a pencil, whether he hands out pills, groceries or shoes or counts money must be a worker if he succeeds in performing his duty toward his fellowman and God. He must be a laboring man in the fullest sense.

"Of very much importance in connection with work is thrift. The representative American is thrifty in the true sense of a term. He is a worker, a careful spender and a prudent saver. There are thousands of these people in our country. They have a sense of values. They buy what they need, save what they ought to and wisely invest what they can. The thrifty man loves his home and makes provision for his family. He is careful in supporting his church and worthy calls from his community. We need more of them.

"The worst citizen in any nation is the grouchy pessimist. The contrary spirit, that of optimism, is one of the noblest of Christian virtues and is a mark of the real American. The optimist sees the bad, but still sees the rays of good shining as a diamond in a pile of rubbish. His optimism leads him to enjoy life in its fullness. He has confidence in man and God. This is a secure foundation for the realization of noble ambitions.

"It takes only a little scanning of American documents and biographies to cause one to realize that the most stabilizing and worthy mark of the real American is that of friendliness, toward man and toward God. Columbus by naming the first land he touched San Salvador (Holy Savior) consecrated this country to a great friendliness and liberty never seen on earth before. The Mayflower Compact, the Declaration of Independence and Washington's Addresses give us some idea of the thinking of our citizens of other generations. Lincoln thought that it was of greater importance that we know whether we were on God's side than whether God was on our side when our nation was in a crisis. A friendliness throughout our country will do more to cure our industrial and social ills than any thing we may do. Acquaintance and association bring understanding. A brotherhood of the children of God is the ideal of a large part of our people."

CALLS ATHEISM OUR PERIL.

Dr. Straton Says Nation Can't Live Half Christian, Half Infidel.

The Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton in his sermon last night in the Calvary Baptist Church, West Fifty-seventh Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, attacked current literature for minimizing the part religion has played in the upbuilding of the United States. He said:

"Every danger of today, every force that is menacing our homes and threatening the institutions of our country, is born of irreligion. Atheism is the mother of anarchy. The tragedy of modern Russia pathetically proves the truth that socialism leads to the sacrificing of the State, as well as to the destruction of the home, the sanctity of the marriage vow and everything else that is holy and worth the having. Neither greed nor glory but God must be the goal of a people's aspirations if they are to survive and truly serve. Patriotism and religion, therefore, are twin sisters, and this country cannot endure half infidel and half Christian any more than it could endure half slave and half free."

DR. BLACKBURN PAYS TRIBUTE TO FOSDICK

SANTA BARBARA PLEA READ

Church Puts Loss at $150,000 and Asks Congregation Here for Contributions to Rebuild.

The Rev. Dr. W. Erskine Blackburn, pastor of the Penfield Street United Free Church, Glasgow, Scotland, who arrived here last Wednesday on the Tuscania, on his first visit to America, preached yesterday morning in the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Eleventh Street. He paid a tribute to the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, whom the Presbyterian General Assembly ousted as associate minister of the First Church. Dr. Fosdick is now the pastor-elect of the Park Avenue Baptist Church. Dr. Blackburn will preach again next Sunday in the same church.

It was at the request of Dr. Fosdick that the Pulpit Supply Committee of the First Church invited Dr. Blackburn to occupy the pulpit.

"I am not here in any official capacity, but simply as a Christian minister from across the seas visiting your great land," said Dr. Blackburn. "I bear no official greetings from a particular community, but as an ambassador of Jesus Christ I come to proclaim the message of Him who is the world's one hope.

"It has been my custom to invite outstanding ministers from this country to occupy my pulpit in Glasgow during my vacation. By this means Christian ministers may do much to create a better understanding between the English-speaking peoples and much may be done to advance the spiritual brotherhood and to establish more speedily the Kingdom of God upon earth.

"I count it a privilege to be with you this morning through the invitation of my good friend, Dr. Fosdick, whose visit to Scotland just a year ago will remain an inspiring memory to all of us who were privileged to be associated with him."

The Rev. Dr. George Alexander, the 81-year-old pastor of the church, read a telegram from Santa Barbara, dated July 4 and signed by the Rev. Dr. C. A. Spaulding, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and W. S. Porter, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the church. The telegram read:

"Beautiful new Presbyterian church, Santa Barbara, virtually destroyed. Recent disaster loss estimated $150,000. Congregation's personal loss tremendous. Engineering commission estimates city's total loss exceeding $10,000,000. Your prayerful consideration of our great need and presenting these facts to your congregation for free-will offering will be great factor in restoring church and maintaining morale of stricken city."

Dr. Alexander said he would be glad to receive donations. It was explained that the telegram was not taken to mean that an immediate offering was requested, but that a concentrated appeal later would be appreciated.

Standing under the folds of an American flag, Dr. Alexander prayed that as the United States entered upon another jubilee year that we might "revere the memory of our sires whose tears and toil laid the foundation of this Commonwealth, that we might emulate their virtues, avoid their errors and maintain the faith which enabled them to do and to dare."

HITS ATHEIST AIDING SCOPES

Dr. Reisner Says It Might Misrepresent Evolution.

The Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner discussed the forthcoming evolution trial in Tennessee yesterday in his sermon in Chelsea Methodist Church, 178th Street west of Broadway. He said:

"The employment of an avowed atheist with at least one other legal counselor holding a strong anti-church attitude to take the evolution side in the Tennessee case disturbs a vast company of constructive Christian evolutionists and makes it possible for anti-evolutionists to misrepresent evolution as naturally 'infidel' and 'atheistic.' The ordinary atheist is a mental loafer or an intellectual egotist. If at all alert he is aggressive along destructive lines such as the group that stopped religious training at Mount Vernon. It takes believers to build anything. The free thinkers ridicule a future life. Man is no more enduring than a dog. What kind of citizens will such doctrines build?

"It is also interesting to note that the destructive Unitarian preachers who spend all their time attacking trinitarian doctrines do not abide in New York long. They resign under various excuses in a few months and a new and widely advertised 'heretic' is brought in. Our city wants something positive, concrete and constructive. Our citizens are becoming hungry for religion. The spiritual appetite will not be satisfied with money, cabarets, cold rationalism or embalmed doubts. We are on the verge of a great religious revival."

SPEAKS ON POWER OF FAITH

Dr. Proctor Says We Trust Leaders but Are Slow to Trust in God.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Hugh Proctor preached in the Nazarene Congregational Church, Herkimer Street and Troy Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday morning, on "The Sustaining Power of Faith."

"Our troubles are not all behind us," he said; "we shall have others tomorrow and the coming days. They are a part of life, and have their divine discipline. But they cannot overwhelm us if we seek that sustenance that comes from simple faith in Jehovah. We have faith in cooks, engineers, doctors, leaders and others, all of whom have at some time failed us, but we are slow to believe in Him who has never failed man.

"Our chief means of nourishing this sustaining faith in God lies in the chief desire of the Psalmist, and that was constancy of devotion to God's house. There we not only find that light we need on life's pathway, but also find that life that will keep us from fainting in the hour of trial."

TRAGEDY IN UNKIND WORDS

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 5.—The Rev. Dr. Frederick G. Budlong, formerly rector of the Church of the Ascension of Pittsburgh and rector-elect of Christ Episcopal Church Parish here, preached this morning on "The Tragedy of Inattention."

The preacher referred to the great painting of Dives and Lazarus which has been criticized because the artist placed in the picture a slave when nowhere in the Gospel was there any reference to a slave. In the picture Dives is shown fixing his eyes on the slave and not on Lazarus.

Dr. Budlong said the English language is being debased by slang when good, strong English words should be used.

TELLS OF CONVERSION OF A COLLEGE MAN

How an American student in a college of the Far East was transformed from a moral weakling into a follower of God was told by the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker Jr., in a sermon yesterday morning in the Calvary Episcopal Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street. The text of his sermon, "The Conversion of a College Man," was "Except a Man Be Born Again, He Cannot See the Kingdom of God."

He told of having had a conversation with the youth on the subject of changed personalities in the course of which the latter revealed that he was spiritually negative.

"Then one day," he continued, "he came for an interview. He told of his dishonesty in his work and of his immoral thoughts, of which he was never free. He went away and came back later. I saw that God was at work in him. He asked what was the solution of his problem. I said that the only solution was to be born again by the age-old process of conversion.

"I told him to have time every day to get in touch with God. The boy gave himself to religion. The men in the college were profoundly changed. They agreed to meet once a week to pray. At their meetings they talked of temptations and how to remedy them and discussed religious matters.

"This college boy was often ridiculed and persecuted by his friends, but he kept on the track. From a lazy, weak, sensual person he became strong and religiously alive."

SAYS DIVORCE EVIL UNDERMINES NATION

Rev. H. Rockwell Sees Tendency to Destroy the Sanctity of Homes.

The increasing leniency of the divorce laws and the complacence with which people regard the growing frequency of divorce are undermining the foundations of the nation, according to the Rev. Harrison Rockwell, who preached yesterday morning in the Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration, 1 East Twenty-ninth Street, "The Little Church Around the Corner." He cited history to prove that laxity in the matter of the relations between the sexes leads to decay, and he maintained that the sense of security which we in this country evidence is not warranted by the facts.

"Security is not shown in the transactions of Wall Street," he said, "but in the condition of the homes throughout the nation. The home is the nucleus of our national plan. It was from the ideal American home, in which the father and mother rear their children in righteousness, that the fathers of this country came, and it was upon such homes that they founded the nation. The tendency of persons of this age to snap their fingers at the sanctity of the home and to flout the sacrament of matrimony is a blow aimed at the safety and existence of the United States."

Referring to the accusation that has been made against the Church that, in the matter of divorce, it lacks understanding and sympathy, Mr. Rockwell held that the Church's changeless answer is that it cannot bless what God cannot bless.

"The teaching of the Christian religion," he said, "was that 'What God hath joined, let not man put asunder.' The Church of Christ cannot sanction violations of that mandate, nor can it look, with favor upon a custom which makes a mockery of the marriage vows."

He called the United States, as it was founded by the fathers, the nearest thing to the "Kingdom of God on Earth" that this world has seen since Christ, and he said that it was one of the first duties of Christian people to preserve it as such.

"To do this," he said, "they must recognize and foster the sanctity of the home. The extent to which our security has been undermined may be gleaned from statistics. In 1870 there were 28,000 divorces in this country. In 1916 there were 112,000, and since then there has been a rapid increase. It is only righteousness that exalts a nation, and righteousness is nurtured in the home."

TELLS LESSON OF CALVARY.

Dr. Buchanan Says It Was to Put Sacrifice Above Conquest.

Preaching on the life of Christ yesterday, in the Broadway Presbyterian Church, Broadway and 114th Street, the Rev. Dr. Walter Duncan Buchanan said:

"Some persons have expressed the opinion that it was unnecessary for Christ to die on Calvary. But Christ himself felt that his death was all essential. He felt that the peoples of the earth would profit by His death, like the 'grain of wheat which abideth in the ground alone, but bringeth forth much fruit.'

"What would have happened if Christ had chosen to seize the power that was rightly His to rule the world? His religion was not one of conquest and glory but one of love and sacrifice. This was the lesson He wished to teach the Greeks who came to him in search of knowledge. The proof of his wisdom is found in the history of the fallen Greek empire, while the Christian church, profiting by His example, has survived all the attacks made on it and is stronger today than it ever has been before."

The service yesterday was the first of the Summer session services, to which Summer session students at Columbia University are invited.

ASKS RACIAL COOPERATION.

Isolation an Impossible Condition, Rev. J. M. Pearson Says.

"We Nordics who are inclined to suppress the negro race forget that our own ancestors not many centuries ago were a horde of barbarians who swept across Europe to the almost utter destruction of the Graeco-Roman civilization," the Rev. John M. Pearson, associate pastor of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Sixty-fourth Street, said in his sermon yesterday morning.

"Christ's teachings were a Declaration of Independence for those of mankind who followed Him," he continued, "but in our independence we must not forget our interdependence. The individual who attempts to live by himself finds that in modern civilization this is impossible. It is equally impossible for nations and races, and though we must always cherish independence we must not belittle the possibilities of cooperation."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Securities and Commodities Calm as Half-Yearly Settlements Are Made.

Last week's financial news was unusually interesting in light of the effect which these developments may have upon future markets. The outstanding events included a Government forecast of cotton, anticipating a crop of 14,339,000 bales as compared with a final out-turn of 13,618,751 bales for 1924; a return to a condition of comparatively easy money after the strain of midyear settlements; sharp recovery in the franc and lira after their long decline and in the face of extremely drastic changes in the Bank of France statement in the direction of currency expansion; a continuation of the high car-loadings which have been the rule rather than the exception during most of the year; advancing prices in such important commodities as copper and rubber, with the first advance in steel prices recorded in nineteen weeks; and finally, a stock market which has been under the influence of moderately heavy buying of securities and in which the averages have gone through their old "highs" and now are coursing in new ground. Incidentally, Government securities are now at approximately the highest price level at which they have ever sold.

It is difficult to entertain a spirit of pessimism toward the future in the face of these immediate developments. It seems quite reasonable to believe that they offer a plain forecast of good business and good markets this Fall. The country seems pointed in the direction of a continued era of easy money, moderately good crops and, of course, the active and rapid business which these two fundamental factors are likely to encourage. In almost all directions there is more of a stirring in the markets than obtained at this time last week. Summer is almost half over. Buyers of all kinds and descriptions of goods are commencing to look toward the Fall and to make inquiries regarding their requirements. This happy condition prevails; there is no large oversupply of goods on shelves. As a matter of fact, it has been the experience of the entire year that production in all lines has been synchronized to consumption, and that inventories of either raw or finished materials, at the beginning of the last half of the year, are not large. It appears logical to believe that as Autumn inquiries commence to reach the markets there will be a gradual speeding up all along the line. At any rate, it may be said that there is no trace of "speculation" in the air. The markets are calm and in most cases steady, under the influence of their moderate day-to-day orders rather than under the goad of any large amount of speculative buying.

The foreign situation, particularly the French financial plight, has received well merited attention in all world centres during the past week. The decline in the franc and the lira attracted scarcely as much attention as did their subsequent recovery. It is quite easy to see that a considerable battle has been going on in the market for the franc between international speculators for the decline, on the one hand, and French political and financial leaders and their bankers, on the other. It cannot be said that the opinion of the world is favorable toward the current proposal of a 6,000,000,000-franc increase in the circulation. This stroke was no bolder, however, than the step taken, as shown in last week's bank statement, which increased the circulation by more than 3,000,000,000 francs and the advances to the State by more than 5,000,000,000. This was undoubtedly the corrective of a previously unhealthy condition, and has been generally accepted as such in our financial districts. No serious fears are entertained that France will not be able to maintain the gold standard and there is a touch of heroism displayed in the announcement that in the early Fall she will commence negotiations with our Government for war debt readjustment. A creditor who endeavors to pay his obligations while home difficulties are pressing must win universal admiration.

The foreign trade statement for May, as compiled by the Department of Commerce, shows no less keen demand for our goods than our credits and banking services. Total exports for the month increased by more than $16,000,000 as compared with the corresponding month last year. The total was $371,421,182; at the same time our exports gained by $25,000,000, the total being $327,416,108. The conclusion may be drawn from this that our exports and imports are both growing rapidly, and just about in the same proportion, and that such gains as Europe is able to make to her advantage in her trade with us are represented in foreign securities sold in American markets, the proceeds of which, naturally, are exported either in goods or in actual gold.

Our half-yearly settlements having been accomplished, it is reasonable to suppose that our reservoirs of credit at the financial centres once more are refilling; in fact, the gradual easing off of money rates at the end of the week furnishes very good evidence that this is true. It is worthy of note that all through the recent period of tight money, when the rate touched the highest point in a year and a half, Government securities, represented by our gilt-edged investments, maintained their firm upward trend of prices. The half-yearly payments, which for dividends and interest alone were estimated at $430,000,000, present an unusually good commentary on the state of business. There has never been a half-yearly settlement of this size in the history of the country. The conclusion may be drawn that industrial conditions are normally good. Corporations as a whole would have difficulty in maintaining such a rate of disbursements if this were not true. For further evidence that business is good one may point to the record for the first half of the year of such dependable indices as car-loadings and bank clearings, both of which are far ahead in volume of the corresponding period of last year.

LONDON IS REVISING ITS VIEWS ON FRANC

DANGER OF INFLATION SEEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—The demoralized condition of French and Italian currencies continue to attract close attention in the financial world. Although French francs have not yet declined to the level reached during the "great slump" to 120 to the pound, early last year, they have been quoted at 110 to the pound, which is relatively a worse quotation than last year's low record because the decline has not been due, as was last year's, to extensive international attacks on the franc but rather it is the outcome of a steady and substantial unsettlement of the French financial situation during the last twelve months. Moreover, the decline is believed here to be due more particularly to the latest efforts to grapple with the situation.

The first impressions of Finance Minister Caillaux's scheme were unfavorable. From whatever favorable viewpoint it was looked at, there was always the bogey of fresh inflation by means of the greatly increased note issue. Should the full powers in this connection be exercised, there seems no other outcome but a fresh and embarrassing rise in prices. This pessimism, however, has since given place to rather happier views, although London has simply taken its cue from Paris, which reports that there has been a considerable increase in the demand for national defense bonds since the announcement of the issue of a new gold loan.

Good Point in Situation.

This provides one of the very few good points in the French financial situation because these bonds are the only medium with which subscriptions to the new loan can be made. Much of the recent difficulty of the French Government has arisen through the necessity of meeting outstanding bonds as they fall due; consequently, if anything like an equilibrium can be accomplished between the maturities of old bonds and sales of the new ones, pressure on the French Treasury will be relieved.

Taking up of new bonds in large amounts indicates also that the French public views the proposed loan with a certain degree of favor. A certain amount of official support has also assisted in bringing the rate down to the current quotation of 104 francs to the pound. There is, too, an idea in London, at any rate, that behind this new loan there is a plan for supporting exchange. A great deal of surprise was expressed that a turn for the better in the franc should come on the day when the Bank of France return was published, showing large increases in advances to the Government and in note circulation. Many had been prepared for this, however, in view of the powers already given for the Bank to make fresh advances and increase its next issue.

London finds it much easier to explain the weakness of the franc than to account for the decline in the lira. Italy's financial position is considerably better than that of France and yet its exchange is infinitely worse. There is no evidence in London of an attack on the lira and the view is held that Italy's economic position does not justify such a serious decline in this exchange.

Italy Principal Seller.

It is significant last week that when the rate dropped to the record of 146 lira to the pound, Italy itself was the principal seller. There was obviously, therefore, some connection between this "flight from lira" and developments in connection with Italy's war debt negotiations. It was generally reported that matters were not going at all smoothly between Italy and the United States, while Great Britain's reminder, no doubt, affected Italian sentiment because the Italian public has got into the way of thinking that war debt settlement need not be seriously considered.

This, however, is obviously not the view of the Italian Government and the British Chancellor's statement that Italy was quite prepared to negotiate for a settlement and the disposal of the story of a hitch in the negotiations with the United States, by the Italian Premier, have brought about considerable improvement in the lira during the last day or two. The current quotation is 9½ lira to the pound better than last Wednesday's record low level.

British currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £293,501,031 as compared with £292,278,234 at the end of the previous week, and £292,249,766 two weeks ago. The highest point for 1925 to date was £297,381,400 on Jan. 3; and the lowest £281,165,517 on Feb. 28. The highest on record was £368,331,000 on Dec. 22, 1920.

BERLIN, July 5.—The Reichsbank return for June 23 shows a decline in discount of 36,000,000 marks to 1,366,000,000, and a decline in circulation of 24,000,000 to 2,238,000,000 marks.

The gold cover for circulation increased from 44 to 47.4 per cent.

VIENNA CONCERNED OVER FRENCH POLICY

Austria Cites Her Own Experience Once Inflation Got Well Under Way.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 5.—The French financial policy is watched here with considerable concern. The Neue Freie Presse comments that the seriousness of the situation appears to lie in the fact that Finance Minister Caillaux, who is well aware of the dangers of new inflation, yet resorts to this expedient.

In financial circles there is a disposition to refer to the experiences of Austria, showing that inflation once in motion, cannot be stopped without the most drastic means. This time there seems no franc speculation here. Last year's unforunate experience is still unforgotten.

The fall of the lira is considered less alarming, as it was apparently brought about less by internal than external causes. On the Boerse great surprise is expressed that Italian shares should decline despite the fall in the currency. This would seem to indicate the prevalence of the speculative element in the situation.

ROME DELAYS USING CREDIT TO AID LIRA

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 5.—The uexpected and unjustified decline in the lira was caused by what might be called a temporary panic, partly brought about by speculation, which had the effect of completely disorganizing the internal market. This followed the necessity of buying foreign currencies in large quantities to cover purchases abroad. Many of these payments have been delayed in expectation of an early improvement in the exchange.

Neither the financial, economic nor political situation appears to justify in any way a continuation of the crisis which officials, of the Government and leading financiers consider will soon be over, perhaps with a beneficial advance in the lira. Southern Italy furnished many typical cases in which panicky investors scrambled for foreign currencies, selling their Consolidated Loan bonds and other State and first-class securities.

Internally the lira lost only slightly, while in the Stock Exchanges even first-class industrial stocks fell heavily, which is at variance with what usually occurs when a currency depreciates so sharply. This is interpreted to mean that the panic in the lira was an incidental and transitory movement rather than from intrinsic and permanent causes. In practically all European markets, notably Paris, London and Geneva, the lira was higher throughout than in Italy. It does not appear that foreign countries participated on their own account in the decline.

Leaders of finance here are of the opinion that it is better to wait until this curious phenomenon has exhausted itself without taking fresh measures beyond the ones which have already been taken. Only then and at the proper moment will it be possible to use the Morgan credit to advantage. Only a small part of this credit has been used up to the present time, and that at the very beginning of the decline in the lira.

There is no indication of a very large exodus of capital from Italy. The chief purchasers of foreign currencies were represented by that class of individuals who in Italy either keep their savings in cash or in State securities. The increase in the interest rate of Treasury bonds led, naturally, to the fall in the 5 per cent. Consolidated Loan. Many people in Southern Italy, notably in Sicily, who insisted on selling the Consolidated Loan in which they had invested, thought it wise to invest in foreign currencies.

ITALIAN IMPORTS INCREASE HEAVILY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, July 5.—Imports for the first four months of 1925 aggregated 9,088,000,000 lire in valuation. Exports aggregated 5,346,000,000 lire. These figures compare with imports of 5,181,000,000 and exports of 4,352,000,000 for the same period of 1924.

The chief increases in imports were livestock and foodstuffs, which increased 1,176,000,000 to 3,008,000,000. Mineral increased from 392,000,000 to 678,000,000 lire during the first four months of the year as compared with the same period of 1924.

The trade balance shows a surplus with Austria, Switzerland and Germany but a deficit with Czechoslovakia, England, Yugoslavia and the United States. With France and the Argentine the balance shows a surplus for 1924 was turned into a deficit for 1925. With the United States exports were 400,000,000 and imports more than 2,000,000,000. The difference was entirely made up of shipments of cereals and cotton to Italy.

BERLIN FAVORS FRENCH PLAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 5.—German financiers view the decline in Italian and French currency in a more favorable light. The Caillaux budget is well regarded, as is the gold bond plan. Experts here hold that France ought in the future to raise only a stable value of domestic loans.

Politicians are inclined to ascribe the latest franc-lira weakness to English utterances concerning the Continent's war debts. Banks here confirm the reports that there has been Italian buying of foreign exchange for non-commercial purposes and this, coming on top of the passivity of the trade balance in the first four months of the year, inevitably precipitated the lira crash. The Italian Chamber of Commerce in Berlin asserts that the depreciation in the lira is in no way connected with political discontent under the Mussolini régime.

NEW GERMAN TARIFF PROSPECTS IMPROVE

CONTROVERSY OVER IRON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 5.—The prospects of the new tariff getting through the Reichstag are somewhat improved. Serious opposition to food duties continues and is strengthened by the "anti-duty declarations" of President Schacht of the Reichsbank and the Hamburg Exporters' Union and various merchants' associations.

Professor Sering of Berlin, probably the most prominent German expert on agricultural economy, denies the prediction of Minister of Industry Neuhaus that the coming year will see lower food prices. Professor Sering, on the contrary, declares that the world's grain consumption in the next decade will increase by 9,000,000 tons, and this increase, in view of Russia's poor prospects as an exporter, will insure remunerative prices to wheat farmers.

The Economical Council, reporting the result of its examination of individual duties, refused to condemn the proposed prohibitive rates on automobiles, but regards these as temporary and says that German manufacturers must reduce production cost by standardization and serial construction.

Would Cut Wool Duties.

The Council recommended the reduction of proposed wool duties. Opponents of the new industrial duties declare that the result will be to perpetuate high prices at home in order to compensate for losses on "dumping abroad." The Berliner Tageblatt and various trade journals published data showing that dumping is already being practiced in paper, textiles and other branches.

Controversy also continues regarding the retention of iron duties in connection with the agreement between German and French steel interests. Reports that this agreement has already expanded into an international steel syndicate are untrue. The agreement is purely private, though made with the approval of the Berlin Cabinet. It provides for the annual admission into Germany of 1,750,000 tons of Lorraine, Sarre and Luxemburg pig iron, semi-finished material and rolling mill products at half normal import duties.

Arrangement With France.

As Germany cannot abate duties to France without granting to other most favored nations similar treatment, iron imports will at first pay full duty, but the German Raw Steel Syndicate will refund one-half thereof to the French and will assess the loss upon its members. France's quid pro quo will be the application of her minimum tariff to the German metal manufacturers, but this concession must be embodied in the Franco-German commercial treaty now being negotiated. If these negotiations fail, the iron agreement will also lapse.

In the meanwhile the Raw Steel Syndicate has been prolonged until October, 1926. Owing to the dullness of the market, the syndicate has proclaimed a 25 per cent. reduction of output for July, against 20 per cent. in June. Iron and steel prices are slightly weaker. Bars have declined to 133 marks per metric ton. Other industries are improving, however, and unemployment at the first of June fell to 233,744, against 593,000, the high point of the year, established in February.

PARIS BANK SHOWING HELD SATISFACTORY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 5.—The return of the Bank of France for the week showed an increase of 491,000,000 francs in bills discounted and a decrease of 39,000,000 in loans against securities. Advances to the State increased 2,050,000,000, the circulation increased 799,000,000 and private deposits 668,000,000.

This return was considered satisfactory. The increase in bills discounted was quite normal for the month's end. It must also be considered that the advance of 2,000,000,000 demanded from the Bank by the Treasury has allowed the meeting not only of ordinary half-yearly requirements, but also the exceptional redemption of 1,800,000,000 of Treasury bonds as of July 1. More remarkable still is the fact that despite heavy borrowing by the market and the State from the Bank of France, the note circulation only increased by 800,000,000.

The amount of the bank issue remains 1,200,000,000 francs below the former limit and there remains a margin of 7,200,000,000 under the new maximum now legally fixed at 51,000,000,000. The circulation has not risen either because private deposits rose 688,000,000 and the liability side of sundry accounts increased by 1,163,000,000. The latter increase corresponds to transactions the nature of which are unknown, but it is obvious that they compensate in large measure for the loans to the Treasury.

The outstanding feature is that the recent raising of the limit of advances to the State and of the bank note issue did not cause the least inflation in the circulation.

Property: The Equitable Building, a twenty-story office building, with a three-story store annex and theatre adjoining, is now in the course of construction at the N. W. Corner Broad and Locust Streets, Philadelphia. The structure will be opposite the Academy of Music, and the site adjoins the Art Club. A few steps away are the Bellevue-Stratford, Ritz-Carlton and Walton Hotels. The Locust Street station of the Broad Street Subway, now being built, will be located in the building.

Security: This obligation is secured by a closed first mortgage on the land and buildings, which have been independently appraised by experts (upon completion of improvements) in excess of $5,922,000. Based upon these appraisals, this loan will be legal for investment of trust funds, in the opinion of counsel, under the laws of the State of Pennsylvania, upon the issue of the loan and the completion of the improvements as planned.

Earnings: The building will contain approximately 222,000 square feet of floor space. The Equitable Leasing Corporation of New York has taken a 21-year lease on the entire building at a rental of $500,000 per annum, plus taxes, aggregating $10,500,000 net for the term. The net income from rentals will therefore be more than 2 1/5 times the greatest annual interest requirements on this issue of bonds.

Guarantee: These bonds are fully guaranteed as to principal and interest by Bankers Bond & Mortgage Co.

Additional Safeguards: A year's rent, $500,000, has been paid in advance, and will remain on deposit with the owner until the final year of the lease. The lease has been assigned to Bankers Bond & Mortgage Co., trustee for the bondholders, as additional collateral security.

There have been deposited with the trustee in addition to the proceeds of the sale of these bonds, sufficient funds to pay for the entire cost of construction and all other charges.

Mortgages aggregating $1,250,000, subject to this bond issue and junior in lien, have been placed on the ground and improvements to be erected.

Completion of the building is guaranteed by the Maryland Casualty Company, Globe Indemnity Company and Independence Indemnity Company, with combined capital and surplus of $18,800,000, which have issued their bond as joint and several insurers, guaranteeing completion of the structure in accordance with the plans and specifications approved.

Fire insurance to the value of the improvements has been placed in approved fire insurance companies.

The Land Title and Trust Company of Philadelphia, with capital and surplus of $14,000,000, has issued title insurance in the amount of this mortgage, insuring it as a first lien.

GAIN IN CONFIDENCE APPARENT IN PARIS

Caillaux's Plan to Stabilize the Franc Around 100 to Pound Reassures Public.

BUDGET TO BE BALANCED

France's Capacity to Pay Will Be Factor in Determining Terms of Debt Offer.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 5.—There was a noteworthy change during the past week in the tendency of the Bourse. Foreign stocks continued to follow exchange fluctuations, but a rather sharp recovery was noticed in French securities, which had declined to an extent seemingly exaggerated, even considering the probably heavy new taxes on securities. This seems a symptom of a renewal of confidence on the part of the French public in the future of the franc. True, the franc fell still further during the first half of the week, but many were surprised that it did not fall further, in view of the very heavy purchases of foreign exchange, the origin of which is not exactly known.

In fact, the fall of the franc in no wise resembled last year's fall, and furthermore, the mention of the probability of governmental intervention for the benefit of the franc had the effect of bringing about a cessation of the decline and a sharp rally.

Franc Stabilization Plan.

Intervention in behalf of the franc did not take place, but Finance Minister Caillaux intends to prepare a definite stabilization plan for the franc at around 100 to the pound. Exact details of this plan are not known, but it is certain that the first aim and necessary preface of all currency reform is a real and complete balancing of the budget and a favorable surplus.

As for settlement of the interallied debts, which is also included in the Finance Minister's program, it is impossible to foretell the terms which will be offered to France's creditors, but demand will doubtless be made that France's capacity to pay be taken into consideration. It will be pointed out, too, that this capacity will depend to a considerable extent upon the regularity of Germany's payments. It is the unanimous opinion in France that these two questions are closely entwined.

Features of New Loan.

The terms for subscription to the new loan are not yet published. The list will probably be open toward the middle of the month. The interest is only 4 per cent., but the exemption from income tax and the guarantee against depreciation of the exchange is considered sufficient compensation for the low yield. The loan will be a perpetual one and it is thought that it will be issued not much below par. It is not expected in financial circles that the loan will result in the conversion of very large amounts of defense bonds, however successful it may be.

If the Government knows how to inspire the public with confidence there is no reason why the defense bonds, which have always been such marvelous instruments of credit, should not continue to render the Treasury the same service until the budget surplus permits a start toward redemption.

LONDON SECURITIES DEVELOP FIRM TONE

LONDON, July 5.—Greater confidence and firmness are developing in the investment end of the stock market. The congestion created by recent large offerings of gilt-edged securities is being relieved by normal investment absorption, although this is proceeding at a slower rate than usual owing to the generally unsettled financial and business outlook.

Financial authorities are anxious to avoid having to increase the rate for high class securities beyond that established by the last issue, under the Trade Facilities acts, which was a 5 per cent. security, offered at 98 and guaranteed by the Imperial Government. Most of the underwriting houses have decided not to make any further important issues for a few weeks.

Liquidation is again depressing the more speculative securities. A good many weak accounts were passed up at the last settlement and these are again giving some trouble. It is hoped, however, to avoid any actual failures.

AUSTRIAN DIVIDENDS GAIN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 5.—During the last few days the Boerse has exhibited signs of slight improvement, due chiefly to the big increase in dividends declared thus far this year and to the release of a portion of the balance of the League of Nations loan for electrification of the State railways.

Improvement in the Austrian trade balance has led to increasing interest abroad in Austrian shares, while Hungarian shares have profited by favorable estimates of the coming harvest. The fact that no dividends are paid on many German industrial shares has increased the inquiry from that country for shares in Vienna, Budapest and Prague.

LONDON, July 5.—The Economist index of wholesale prices at the end of June shows a further decline to 69.6 per cent. above pre-war. This compares with 73.8 per cent. at the end of May, 89.3 at the end of December, 1924, and 76.6 a year ago.

De Land, known as the "Athens of Florida," is located 110 miles south of Jacksonville and 4 miles east of the St. Johns River, on the main line of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. The City is 18 miles inland from the Atlantic Ocean, almost directly west of Daytona. De Land is an old established and conservative City and the county seat of Volusia County, which is one of the rich agricultural counties of the State, claiming to be Florida's most versatile crop county.

Located in the City is Stetson University, founded years ago by Henry A. De Land and John B. Stetson. This is one of the oldest colleges in the State and has an enrollment of over 600 students. While De Land enjoys a large number of winter visitors, who are accommodated by very attractive hotel properties, it is not distinctively a tourist City, the population being increased only about one-third during the winter months. The population of the City is unusually fine in character, being predominantly American, with many people of substantial means. The bank deposits for 1924 were reported as $3,587,624.

AUSTRIA'S FOREIGN TRADE SHOWS GAINS

LEAGUE TO BROADEN INQUIRY

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 5.—The favorable development in the Austrian foreign trade balance, noticeable since the new year started, continues with each month. Austrian statistical reports are not published monthly, only quarterly, but figures for the first quarter, now made known, show that the adverse balance has been decidedly decreased and does not by far reach last year's average.

During the first quarter imports amounted to 609,000,000 Austrian schillings and exports 450,000,000. The adverse balance was, therefore, about 160,000,000, against 368,000,000 during the first quarter of 1924. Consideration of individual items shows a reduction of imports of food and beverages by 46,000,000 schillings, which was due partly to the reduced rate of consumption by the population resulting from the economic crisis.

Good Harvest Prospects.

It was due, also, in part to favorable harvest prospects in Central Europe, slackening imports of corn for the present. Imports of coal dropped 33,000,000 schillings, which represents 35 per cent. below the same period last year. This was a result of the progress made in electrification of the railways and smaller employment on the railroads.

Imports of raw materials were lower by 31,000,000 schillings, but imports of finished goods dropped most heavily, the total amounting to 71,000,000. On the other hand, exports of finished goods rose by 19,000,000 and exports of raw materials by 18,000,000. The exact figures for finished goods amounted to imports of 192,000,000 and exports of 329,000,000, and for raw materials, including coal, the imports were 209,000,000 and exports 92,000,000.

This trade balance is regarded favorably in financial circles particularly, because it is taking place despite the Central European customs system. The Neue Freie Presse publishes a comparison of some of the present important Central European customs rates in gold, showing increases of ten to fifteen times, and in some cases even thirty-five times pre-war rates.

Tariffs Are Kept High.

Almost all items have been raised two or four times, and particularly heavy increases have been made in the rates to Poland and Yugoslavia. The rates for the new Yugoslavia customs tariff, in force since the end of June, show a level which is entirely prohibitive. It seems to be the policy of Central Europe to keep the tariffs high.

In this connection statements of importance were made last week by experts for the League of Nations, the occasion being their inquiry into the economic situation of Austria. They declared that not only Austria but all Central European States must adapt themselves absolutely to normal conditions and try to find a way leading to mutual advantage. From this utterance it is concluded that the inquiry by the League of Nations will actually extend, as hoped by the Austrian Government, into the economic conditions of the whole of Central Europe and not Austria alone. It is hoped that the experts will give advice for the removal of the prohibitive tariffs.

GERMAN DEBT BILL ADOPTION PREDICTED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 5.—The private debt valorization bill has completed a second reading in the Reichstag and will probably go through without further material alteration. The bill concedes an all-around 25 per cent. valorization to existing mortgages and to mortgages paid off after June 15, 1922.

For industrial bonds is retained 15 per cent. valorization as enacted by decree of February, 1924, but holders of industrial bonds, who acquired them before 1920, will obtain an additional 10 per cent., only, however, after the debtor corporation has paid a 6 per cent. dividend. In the case of mortgage bonds, savings bank deposits and insurance claims, the debtor concerns are obliged to valorize in so far as their own mortgage bonds are valorized.

The bill valorizing public debts is still only in an initial stage, but any material increase of compensation enacted by the official draft is out of the question.

FAVOR COTTON RESTRICTION

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—The ballot taken for the continuation of short-time operations in the cotton industry has resulted in a large majority in favor of restriction. Our big industrial leaders continue to emphasize the great need for lower taxation and longer working hours, without increased wages or a cut in railway rates. They agree that the only cure for unemployment is the reduction of working costs to a figure at which we can compete in the world's markets, and forecast ruin to many of our principal industries unless costs are brought down substantially and quickly.

It is estimated that if coal were reduced five shillings per ton and coal miners returned to the eight-hour day and steel workers adopted the pre-war two-shift system, instead of the present three-shift day, the cost of steel could be reduced by seven shillings per ton, which would enable us to recapture not only our home markets but much of our lost foreign trade in steel as well.

LOAN RATE REACTION FORECAST IN LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—Intense activity characterized the London money market during the closing days of June. This, however, was by no means an abnormal development, because the settling up of half-yearly accounts is nearly as important as the balancing which takes place at the end of the year. At such times all of the big clearing banks, and most other important lenders, call in their loans from the money market, which has then only one certain source of supply, which is the Bank of England.

The total of the half year's lending by the Bank of England exceeded £30,000,000. This is not excessive, but when the market has repaid its loans all indications point to a reversion to a state of semi-stringency, to which the market is now accustomed. Last Tuesday's money flurry, when up to 10 per cent. was bid for call loans, was due to the fact that the Bank of England will not lend for less than one week, and borrowers naturally preferred to pay higher rates to other lenders for one-day accommodations than to take Bank of England money for a week or longer at 5½ per cent.

STOCKS WEAKER IN BERLIN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 5.—After a moderate recovery, stocks have weakened in the last few days. One influence was the Left Party's agitation against the Reichsbank's intervention to help the Stinnes concern, and the Prussian State Bank of Commerce to help the commercial banks behind the Stinnes family by rediscounting up to 20,000,000 marks.

June proved the worst month of the year for stocks. At the end of the month 18.4 per cent. of Berlin Boerse stocks were quoted above par, against 22.8 per cent. at the end of May, while 20.4 per cent. of stocks were quoted under 50 against 10.3 per cent. at the end of May.

Credit stringency is increasing. The interest rate for "day money" has advanced 11 per cent.

EUROPEAN CROPS FAVORABLE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 5.—The European crop situation remains very favorable. Wheat is everywhere making good progress. The official estimate of the Italian yield is nearly 7,000,000 quarters over last season.

The Hungarian crop is estimated at approximately 500,000 quarters above last year, while Russian figures are being put much higher than a year ago. British crops, except wheat, have suffered somewhat from drought, but the situation in France, Denmark, Germany, Austria, Rumania, Bulgaria and Poland is good.

POTASH DEMAND EXPANDING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 5.—The potash prospects are extremely good. There has been a wide increase in buying by Holland, Scandinavia and the Baltic States and some extremely good orders from the United States.

The total home and foreign sales of the Potash Syndicate for 1925 are estimated at 1,300,000 tons, against 842,000 tons in 1924.

ASK INVESTIGATION OF LOAN TO ST. PAUL

WANT RATES EXAMINED, TOO

Speaking for the holders of more than $60,000,000 par value of stocks and bonds of the St. Paul Railroad, the investment house of Roosevelt & Son, which is leading the opposition against the reorganization plan of the road proposed by its bankers, made public a letter yesterday to Clyde B. Aitchison, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, requesting the commission to probe the origin of the Government loan in the forthcoming investigation. The letter also urges an examination of the rates and wages, the condition of the property when it was returned to the corporation by the Government, as well as "all other causes of the failure."

The letter follows in part:

"The St. Paul has gone into the hands of receivers with large loss to investors. We have made an analysis of the causes of the St. Paul failure. We believe that the evidence is overwhelming that the cause of the failure is not loss of traffic nor impairment of operating efficiency nor reckless financing but is confiscatory rates. A measure of the loss suffered by the St. Paul is found in the present market prices of its securities.

"In 1911, the market prices indicated a total value for the St. Paul securities of $515,000,000. Since that time $400,000,000 of new money has been spent on the property. The present market value of the St. Paul securities is $358,000,000. In other words, there has been a loss of $555,000,000 since 1911.

"This loss is not due to conditions peculiar to the St. Paul. Since 1911, seven major roads of the Northwest have invested $965,000,000 of new capital in extensions and improvements. Notwithstanding the fact that the freight traffic has increased 50 per cent. and freight trainload 56 per cent., the increased earnings resulting from this great new investment amount to only one-twentieth of 1 per cent on the capital invested.

"The only reasons why the confiscatory rates imposed upon the Northwestern Railroad Group have not resulted in even more receiverships are: (1) that the Northwestern Group has been stronger in capital structure, as measured both by traffic volume and Federal valuation, than any other railroad group in the United States; (2) that the Northwestern Group has maintained a high standard of operating efficiency.

"We respectfully submit, moreover, that the inquiry should include an investigation of the condition of the St. Paul road upon the termination of Government operation, to ascertain whether the condition of the property when it was handed back to the corporation was a contributory cause to the receivership. The origin of the present debt to the Government should also be ascertained in order to determine whether such loan was made necessary by confiscatory rates. This we consider of vital importance. One of the most drastic features of the reorganization plan recently put forward—the severe assessment on the stockholders—is largely due to the necessity of providing cash to pay off this Government loan. It is therefore, we submit, important that the facts be fully disclosed with reference to the underlying causes which led up to the necessity of this loan."

BUSINESS IS ACTIVE THROUGHOUT NATION

PRODUCTION OFF SLIGHTLY

Business conditions throughout the United States, as measured by the reports of Federal Reserve agents in the various districts, continue to reflect a fair amount of activity in most basic lines. There have been some declines in factory production and employment, but distribution of goods and commodities is on a large scale, bank debits in most sections are large and ample funds are available to carry on the nation's commerce. Crops are in good condition in the great producing sections of the West and for the first time in years can be marketed with local credit facilities, avoiding a strain on the great financial centres of the East.

Richard L. Austin, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, reports that production in basic industries and factory employment in the third district continued to decline in May and there was a further recession in wholesale prices. Some improvement in retail trade occurred in June, hot weather having stimulated sales of many products. Railroad freight shipments in the Allegheny district continued to increase, and check payments also reached a large total. The volume of building in the district has fallen off after reaching record levels in March and April, but new construction is still above the levels of 1924 and 1923. The market for most building materials, however, continues unsatisfactory.

Level of Activity High.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland reports that the absence of any general recession such as occurred last year at this time is the most noticeable feature of the business situation today. Seasonal declines in activity have taken place, as might be expected with the approach of Summer, but the general level of activity is distinctly higher than a year ago.

One of the features of the present situation is the policy of conservative "hand to mouth" buying, as opposed to "forward" buying such as formerly prevailed. There are several causes for the present policy, among which may be mentioned the greatly improved transportation situation, insuring prompt deliveries, the fact that productive capacity in many lines is ahead of demand, tending to a buyers' market, and the memory of 1920-21, when merchants were left with large accumulations of goods which had to be sold at a loss.

Prospects in the Fifth Federal Reserve District depend largely on the weather. Early farm work got off to a good start, but dry weather in April, cold weather and frosts in May and hot, dry weather in the first half of June delayed seed germination of the principal crops. Fruit prospects are worse than a year ago and the boll weevil is menacing the cotton crop in South Carolina and much of North Carolina. On the other hand, bank debits show that a larger volume of business is passing through the banks of the leading trade centres than was the case a year ago. Labor continues to be well employed, and some improvement has been reported recently in the coal fields of the district.

Changes in Middle West.

Recent changes in the Middle West, as reported by the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank, consisted for the most part in agricultural developments, such as the lower wheat estimate and frost damage to fruit, corn and potatoes, followed late in June by a generally better outlook for corn. There was little improvement in the coal industry in Illinois and Indiana, production being abnormally low. In the steel trade for the district new business arrived in fair volume, although shipments slightly exceeded current orders. The automobile output declined, but was considerably ahead of a year ago, and sales were well maintained. Construction still is large and savings deposits reached record high levels.

Considerable irregularity featured business in the St. Louis district, with weather and crop conditions the chief determining factors. Rains have proved beneficial to most of the important crops. In the steel industry a slight increase in production was reported. Sales of automobiles, drugs, chemicals, dry goods, clothing and hardware were larger than a year ago. Activity in the building trades was well maintained, and the freight traffic of the railroads continues in satisfactory volume.

The Kansas City Federal Reserve Bank reported encouraging progress in the production of farm crops at profitable prices. In mineral production, lead, zinc and the precious metals continued along the high levels of the year and with larger production than a year ago. Crude oil output was reduced, but there was more activity in new development work. Recent financial developments disclose no change from the "easy money" conditions that have prevailed in the district for several months, and it has not been necessary to obtain Eastern money for the financing and marketing of crops.

RAINS ARE HELPING ALL GROWING CROPS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Spring wheat conditions have improved, with a fair supply of moisture over the entire belt on both sides of the international line. There is rust on the leaves and should the weather be hot and muggy a spread of rust to the States is predicted by crop experts; the stand, unusually high, makes the plant more susceptible to rust damage.

The range of the four Winter wheat reports issued by private statisticians is 393,000,000 to 401,000,000 bushels, with an average of 397,000,000 bushels. Spring ranges from 257,000,000 to 276,000,000 bushels, with an average of 270,000,000, against an estimate of 254,000,000 in June, and the total wheat crop average of 667,000,000, against 661,000,900 by the Government last month and 873,000,000 last year.

Winter wheat is more than 75 per cent. harvested and threshing yields are irregular, with marketing expected to increase from now on, more than 500 cars being expected at Southwestern markets on Monday.

Corn acreage is the largest in years with an average of more than 109,000,000 acres, an increase of about 5½ per cent., suggesting an average yield of 3,211,000,000 bushel, against 2,437,000,000 last year.

Oats promise better than a month ago due to rains, with an average of 1,230,000,000 bushels against 1,542,000,000 last year, and rye is estimated at 49,000,000 bushels, the smallest in recent years and will compare with 63,000,000 last year.

ACREAGE FIGURES STUN COTTON TRADE

PRICES SUFFER BIG DECLINE

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 5.—The Government report on acreage condition and indicated yield issued Thursday naturally overshadowed all other matters in the past week's cotton market. Government reports have often provided surprises, but it is doubtful if any previous report has differed as widely from popular expectations as the one just issued.

The many private reports issued prior to the publication of the Government's figures had led most traders to expect a condition somewhere around 74 and an increase in acreage to about 45,000,000 acres. Such figures would have warranted a crop indication of about 13,600,000 bales. Instead, the Government made the condition average 75.9, as compared with 76.6 the month previous, and estimated the acreage planted at the enormous total of 46,448,000 acres, an increase of 8.9 per cent. over the acreage planted on June 25 last year. An indicated production of 14,339,000 bales exclusive of linters was the natural deduction from such figures of acreage and condition.

Acreage Is Surprise.

Prior to the time the Government figures were issued the market had ruled rather steady as a result of the moderate expectation as to acreage increase and indicated yield. It was not surprising, therefore, that prices should have declined 123 points on the active new crop month of October during the little more than an hour of trading that remained on Thursday after the report was issued. It is surprising that the decline was not greater, considering the big acreage estimate, but it soon became evident that the recession had attracted trade demand which engendered a mild disposition toward a rally, particularly as the large short interest in the market seemed disposed to cover to some extent in advance of the double holiday.

That the Government should have shown but a very moderate deterioration in the condition average compared with a month ago is not really so surprising in the light of the many private reports of the good progress of the crop outside of Texas. Full allowance was made for the damage done by the drought in Texas, as the condition of that State was lowered to 64, a full 6 points under the condition of a month ago. It should be remembered that cotton generally gains in condition during June. Thus it is not surprising that the condition of most other States than Texas should have shown sufficient gains almost to offset the deterioration in that State.

Yield May Be Increased.

The immense increase in acreage was easily the dominating feature of the bureau's report. While condition averages may fluctuate up and down during the balance of the season, the big acreage will remain a fixed quantity that must be taken into consideration in every forecast of the yield from now on. An increase of nearly four million bales in the acreage planted is hard to accept without a fair grain of salt. On such an acreage it would be entirely possible to produce a 20,000,000-bale crop with what were considered normal conditions prior to the advent of the boll weevil. Should the insect pest prove as innocuous as was the case last year and Texas prospects be revived by good general rains, the ultimate yield might easily exceed the Government's forecast, always assuming, of course, that its huge acreage is approximately correct.

There is no doubt that the cotton growing States could plant the 46,448,000 acres estimated by the Government to have been planted this year. An acreage of as much as 50,000,000 would be equally possible if economically wise. But there is reason for doubting the wisdom of planting so large an acreage as the Government announces, as the South has neither the capital nor the labor to handle such an acreage adequately.

Silver & Bros.' Sales Gain.

Isaac Silver & Brothers Company, Inc., report June sales of $269,987, comparing with $207,922 for the same month last year, a gain of 29.8 per cent. For the six months of this year sales were $1,632,567, compared with $1,291,671 in the same period of last year, a gain of 26.4 per cent.

OFFER $2,300,000 TELEPHONE BONDS

$1,000,000 FOR SCHOOLS

Multnomah County (Ore.) Securities Marketed to Yield 4.05 to 4.15 Per Cent.

State and municipal issues make up the bulk of new bond offerings announced for today. The volume is unusually small, owing to the let-up in financial transactions caused by the double holiday, but several good-sized offerings will be ready for announcement later in the week.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co. and Love, Macomber & Co. will offer an issue of $2,300,000 Keystone Telephone Company of Philadelphia first lien and refunding mortgage gold bonds, series A, due July 1, 1955. The bonds have 5½ per cent. and will be priced to yield about 6.95 per cent.

The Detroit Company, Inc., Eldredge & Co. and the Continental & Commercial Trust and Savings Bank announce a new issue of $1,000,000 Multnomah County, Ore., school district 4 and 4½ per cent. bonds, maturing from 1928 to 1945. The bonds are priced to yield from 4.05 to 4.15 per cent.

An issue of $495,000 Town of Danbury, Conn., 4½ per cent. bonds, maturing serially from 1926 to 1965, is being marketed by the National City Company and Harris, Forbes & Co. at prices to yield from 3.75 to 4.05 per cent.

Harris, Forbes & Co. offer an issue of $450,000 City of De Land, Florida, municipal 6 per cent. bonds, due January 1, 1955, at 115.34 and interest to yield about 5 per cent.

R. M. Grant & Co. are distributing a new issue of $165,000 Town of Groton, Conn., 4¼ per cent. funding bonds at prices to yield 4 per cent.

HALF-YEAR IN STEEL FAIRLY PROSPEROUS

GOOD OUTLOOK FOR AUGUST

No Steel Departments Suspending as Many of Them Did at This Time Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 5.—The steel trade has left behind it a half year that proved not nearly as good as was expected at the outset, but much better than was expected at the middle of the period; it was, indeed, no later than early February that doubts arose. An impression of the sentiment existing at the middle of February is obtained by recalling that certain price advances, then just made, were interpreted as calculated to stimulate specifying on contracts at lower prices rather than to rule on any important tonnage of new business.

Yet the half year has proved a fairly good one. Steel mill operations averaged 83 per cent. against an average of 66 per cent. in the previous six years, following the war, and more important than that, the steel made has probably been consumed. While there has been no little complaint lately about steel prices, the general average is approximately the same as ruled last November, when the buying movement started. Afterward, quoted prices advanced and then declined but it does not seem that the advanced prices were actually obtained on any important part of the steel made in the past six months.

Thus the steel trade is now left with a rate of consumption decidedly above that obtaining early in November and with prices substantially the same. The circumstances point to an upward reaction in the volume of buying, to be followed by an increase in mill operations. Showing perhaps more respect for the tradition that July is naturally dull in steel than the tradition deserves, some members of the trade now predict an increase in the tonnage of buying about Aug. 1. The upturn occurred last year in June and the year before in July.

Operation Rate Now 65 to 70 Per Cent.

The Iron Age pig iron report for June, with the last day or two estimated, shows a daily rate of 88,872 tons, which is 6 per cent. under May, 18 per cent. under April and 23 per cent. under February and March, the top months. This does not furnish a good basis for forecasting the June steel ingot production, to be reported next week by the American Iron and Steel Institute, because May showed a much larger decrease in pig iron than in steel. The change in pig iron from May to June would suggest ingot production at several points above 70 per cent., while the change from April to June would suggest several points below 70 per cent. Reports of mills operations during the month, more or less fragmentary, would indicate fully 70 per cent. as the average.

The rate now is between 65 and 70 per cent. No steelmaking departments are closing, as many did for a week or two at this time last year. Independence Day merely shortens the week, does not break it. No one definitely predicts that the rate will go below 60 per cent. at any time in July, while the common expectation is that if August shows any change it will be an increase, and an increase by September is now regarded as almost a matter of course or routine, stocks being well liquidated while consumption remains high even when allowance is made for the possibility of decreases in spots.

Perhaps the steel trade would have been better satisfied with the price situation during the past couple months if there had been no trend downward. Declines were small but everything that occurred was in the one direction; prices were not so bad, except in sheets, but the chances were all of further accidents happening to them.

Turn in the Lane Ahead.

Now, on the other hand, the feeling is that the trade has successfully passed through all the bad influences, and, with buying likely to increase soon, there will be not merely a likelihood of prices holding but a chance to work them up somewhat. There does not seem to be the danger that sometimes confronts the market of increased buying depressing prices by giving wider scope to competition. That occurred in 1921. There was practically no buying in June and July, so prices were not shaken down, and when buying increased competition arose, with the result of continually declining prices until the following March. This time prices were already well shaken down. No one will deny that competition has been very keen—indeed strenuous—for several months past.

OFFERS 55,000 SHARES OF OIL WELL SUPPLY

Syndicate Markets Common Stock of $25 Par at $36.50—To Pay a Dividend.

Public offering of a block of 55,000 shares of the $25 par value common stock of the Oil Well Supply Company, the largest manufacturer of oil well machinery and supplies, is made today at $36.50 a share. The syndicate offering the stock is headed by Hornblower & Weeks and includes Charles D. Barney & Co., Moore, Leonard & Lynch and Bell & Beckwith.

According to the statement issued on behalf of the banking syndicate the company has an uninterrupted dividend record for over twenty-five years on its capital stock and it is the intention of the management to place the new shares of common stock on a dividend basis. Application will be made to have the shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

"Combined total net assets as of Dec. 31, 1924, without allowance for good will, trade names, &c., aggregated $23,161,679," according to the statement. "Figuring the fixed assets on the basis of an appraisal of the principal properties by the American Appraisal Company, as of Dec. 31, 1924, instead of the present conservative book value, the total combined net assets would aggregate over $28,000,000. The new common stock has an asset value of approximately $65 a share as of Dec. 31, 1924, based on the appraised value of the plants. The consolidated net earnings of the company and subsidiaries for the five years ended Dec. 31, 1924, after depreciation and Federal taxes, computed at current rates, available for dividends averaged $1,715,198 annually, or three and a half times the annual dividend requirements on the $7,000,000 preferred stock."

The business of the Oil Well Supply Company was originally established in 1862 at Oil City, Pa., by John Eaton, a pioneer in the industry, and the present company was formed in 1891 under Pennsylvania laws. The principal manufacturing plants are located at Pittsburgh, Oil City and Bradford, Pa.; Los Angeles, Oswego, Poplar Bluff, Mo., and Parkersburg, W. Va. The company owns and operates eighty-eight branches located at all important points throughout the country's oil and gas territory and also in Mexico. It also maintains branches in London for the European and Oriental trade.

Gross of $488,578,000 in May, a Gain of $11,141,200 Over Last Year.

The gross operating revenues in May of Class 1 railroads having a total mileage of 236,666 miles, amounted to $488,578,000, an increase of 11,141,200, or 2.3 per cent. compared with the same month last year, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Interstate Commerce Commission and made public by the Bureau of Railway Economics.

Operating expenses totaled $375,732,700, a reduction of $5,748,460, or 1.5 per cent. under those for the same month last year, although the railroads in May this year carried approximately 10 per cent. more freight traffic than they did in May, 1924.

The net railway operating income, which is what is left after paying operating expenses, taxes and equipment rentals, was $75,776,178 compared with $60,861,155 in May last year, or an increase of $14,915,023. This increase is the largest recorded this year.

The net railway operating income of the Class 1 railroads for the first five months this year amounted to $345,880,340, which was at the annual rate of return of 4.38 per cent. on property investment, comparing with $326,480,500, or 4.27 per cent. for the same period last year.

EXPORTS OF COTTON GAIN IN 3 COUNTRIES

Shipments From United States, Egypt and India Show Large Increase.

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP).—Exports of cotton from each of the three important surplus producing countries are running heavier this season than in any season since 1914-5.

Department of Agriculture figures made public today disclosed that the amount exported from the United States in the nine months from September, 1924, to May, 1925, amounted to 7,731,000 bales, as compared with 5,243,000 in the same months last season.

Egypt exported from September to February 1,089,000 bales, as compared with 1,030,000 in the same months of 1923-4.

The department pointed out that if this ratio of increase is maintained to the end of the season the Egyptian exports will exceed the 1922-3 total of 1,486,000 bales, which was the largest amount exported in any season since 1913-4.

The cotton crop in India was reported this season to be "by far the largest on record," with exports likely to be larger than in any previous year. During December, January and February India exported 1,315,000 bales, as compared with 1,169,000 in the same three months last season.

Cotton planting in Africa has increased rapidly in nearly all of the new regions, and a further increase next year is indicated. This is attributed to the stimulation of private enterprise, Government aid and the efforts of English mills to obtain cheaper raw cotton. In Anglo-Egyptian Sudan it is estimated that 300,000 acres will be made available for irrigated cotton as a result of the recent completion of the Blue Nile Dam at Makwar.

HALF YEAR'S TRADE FAIR.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 5.—The six months' business in the steel and mercantile lines has exceeded that of last year by a comfortable margin. Road sales by dry goods wholesalers and Fall shipments are in excess of the same time last year and retail sales compare well with a year ago, some houses claiming a small increase, and mail order sales were larger.

The past week's business showed an increase all around in commodities and in steel tonnage. In Chicago mills are operating at 85 per cent. Price cutting on steel sheets continues at a few furnaces, while others have given notice of advance in prices and claim they are selling below cost production.

There is threat of a strike by bituminous labor leaders, claiming a break of the agreement by a number of large mine operators.

Building operations for the six months this year exceed those of a year ago, with prospects of its continuing for months to come, and the housing situation is much improved.

Money met a better demand, with rates stronger and loans increased, so that the ratio in the Seventh Federal Reserve Bank dropped from 78.7 the previous week to 75 the past week, the lowest since April, when it was down to 72.7 per cent.

WHEAT DECLINES 7 CENTS IN WEEK

CANADA AN EXPORT FACTOR

London Talks of Winnipeg October, Now at $1.50, Touching $1.10 When Harvest Comes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 5.—The Spring wheat crop is in its critical stage, and will be for the next week or two. The size of the crop in the American and Canadian Northwest is dependent upon weather conditions during that period. Favorable weather for maturing the American crop is expected to make a good yield. Extravagant figures are being made on the Canadian crop by leading traders in Winnipeg who have been short the wheat market for some time. There is black rust in the Canadian and American Northwest, and experts say it is simply a question of weather conditions as to the extent of crop damage, if any.

The wheat trade has entered the 1925-1926 season with light stocks. The United States has a carry-over of around 75,000,000 bushels, which is larger than many of the trade expected a few months ago and compares with 101,000,000 bushels last year. There are no reserves of consequence the world over, and consumption of the crop abroad will start as soon as they are available.

It is said that should anything happen to the European crops, like a wet harvest especially, foreigners will have to come to Canada for supplies for the next five months, as it has the only available exportable surplus sufficient to supply their requirement until the Argentine and Australian new crops are available. For the present buying by foreigners is confined to immediate wants, as their financial conditions are such as to prevent speculative buying in advance of future needs.

Less wheat has been bought from farmers and sold abroad so far this season than in many years. Farmers have been looking for higher prices and, remembering the experience of last year, are not selling their wheat. Then, too, they have been uncertain as to the quantity and quality of this crop and afraid to contract ahead. At the same time foreigners have less wheat bought in the United States at this time than in recent years.

General speculative trading has dropped out of the grain markets and it is largely professional, with a lack of general buying to prevent the maintenance of bulges, as most of the trade is bearish and the only hope that longs appear to have is said to be for material damage to the Spring wheat crop. Foreigners are bearish, although they were good buyers of wheat here on Friday, covering shorts, which was taken as indicating that they believed prices were low enough for the time being, after a break of 28 cents in July wheat in seven weeks. The market has been well liquidated and a liberal sized short interest created.

Letters from Londan grain interests carry a very bearish tone and suggest that they expect to buy October wheat in Winnipeg at around $1.10 in September and October, while the present price is above $1.50.

The corn trade is bearish and the impression prevails that nothing but an August drought can prevent the raising of one of the largest crops known. At the same time there is hesitancy on the part of short sellers, owing to high temperatures and damage reports from Oklahoia and Kansas, where the crop is in a critical stage. There is a better cash demand all around but it is not heavy.

Rye is dragging to the lowest point so far for the present deliveries.

While closing trades were at a good rally from the low point of the week, wheat is 6½ to 7½ cents lower than a week ago, corn ½ to 2¾, oats ¼ to 1⅜ and rye 8¼ to 9⅛ lower for the week.

SURPLUS CARS DECREASED.

Class 1 Roads Report 308,824 Available on June 22.

Class 1 railroads on June 22 had 308,824 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, according to reports filed by the carriers with the Car Service Division of the American Railway Association. This was a decrease of 4,670 under the number reported on June 15.

Surplus coal cars in good repair on June 22 totaled 111,820, a decrease of 5,676 within approximately a week, while surplus box cars in good repair totaled 148,869, an increase of 1,075 during the same period.

Reports also show 22,833 surpluss stock cars, a decrease of 135 under the number reported on June 14, while there was an increase of 233, during the same period, in the number of surplus refrigerator cars, which brought the total for that class of equipment to 16,916.

SITUATION IMPROVES AS TO STEEL PRICES

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, July 5.—The general price situation began looking a little better in the past week. A number of sheet mills instructed salesmen to refuse bids on galvanized sheets at under 4.20 cents, when sales at 4.15 cents have been common and cases of 4.05 cents or even 4 cents are rumored. Cold-rolled strip makers began quoting 3.75 cents again in hope of restoring the price of a few weeks ago. Conditions in the wire trade were reported much steadier since the recent open reduction made to replace the widespread cutting.

Coke, pig iron and scrap now appear to have seen their worst period. The Connellsville coke industry is largely idle, but the merchant ovens left in operation have contracts, taken at very close prices, to furnish backlog, and the next turn, even if delayed, should be in the direction of heavier production and better prices. In pig iron the market, while quiet, is steady, and an authoritative canvass made in the past week shows that, with the exception of the Struthers Iron, under control of the receiver, the stocks at merchant furnaces are covered by sales, while production has become insignificant. In scrap, prices are unchanged and as firm as a week ago. There has been no consumer buying, yet no scrap is pressing on the market. Heavy melting steel scrap is $1.50 above its low of two months ago and $4.50 below its high of six months ago.

Plainly the fabricated steel situation is good in point of volume of business. Lettings in the past six weeks run 18 per cent. above the average in the twenty weeks preceding and the half year as a whole has been a very fair one. As to the steel still to be made and the building work actually to be done, following the placing of the fabricated steel contracts, an estimate for June, coupled with the Department of Commerce reports for the first five months of the year, indicates that the fabricating shops have shipped less than two weeks more of business than they have booked, and it was well recognized that on Jan. 1 they had decidedly fair order books.

Favorable predictions are made as to operation of agricultural implement factories in the second half of the year. The automobile trade has slowed down but little to date. The oil industry is more active, is consuming considerably more steel tubular goods than two months ago, and has very good drilling prospects for the remainder of the season. Freight car buying continues to make a very poor showing.

LABOR BANK PLANS TO INCREASE STOCK

Special Meeting Called for July 27 to Vote on Rise From 2,500 to 7,500 Capital Shares.

ASSETS OVER $11,000,000

Debts Incident to Organization in 1923 Have Been Wiped Out, President Brady Announces.

In view of the marked increase in deposits, the board of the Federation Bank of New York is recommending an increase in capital and surplus of the bank to $1,500,000, it was announced yesterday by Peter J. Brady, President. With the total resources of the bank now well over $11,000,000, the increase in capital and surplus, it is pointed out by the directors, provides the most desired proportion of investment to assets. The bank is said to be the largest labor bank owned by the unions of the American Federation of Labor.

The original stockholders have been notified to attend a special meeting at Washington Irving High School, Sixteenth Street and Irving Place, July 27 at 8 P. M., to vote on the proposed increase of capital stock from 2,500 to 7,500 shares. The stock is purchasable at $200, of which $100 goes into surplus.

The third quarterly dividend since the stock has been put on an 8 per cent. basis, which is a 4 per cent. return on the investment, has just been distributed to the stockholders, all indebtedness incident to the organization of the bank two years ago having been wiped out and a substantial amount set aside for contingencies in addition to the surplus.

"Even before the new issue is formally authorized we have applications for over 3,000 shares from original stockholders, depositors, labor unions and friends of labor," Mr. Brady announced. "The new issue of stock will be limited as heretofore, no union being allowed more than fifty shares and no individual more than twenty-five shares.

"The quick response to the new issue is the result of our record. We began the new year with over $8,000,000 in resources; we set $10,000,000 as our goal on the second anniversary and exceeded it, reaching $11,120,000 at that time. We are making steady progress. The Federation Bank paid its first dividend in the last quarter of 1924, the first labor bank in the East to show a substantial profit, although launched in May, 1923.

"If our accumulated profits of over $75,000 were paid to our present stockholders in dividends, it would amount to 15 per cent. on every share of stock, demonstrating the financial success of this institution.

"It was thought desirable to treat old and new stockholders alike and to issue the new stock at the price paid by the original shareholders, $200 a share, of which $100 will go into surplus. The reason for the present owners not taking advantage of the increased book value of their stock is because they want a still wider diversification of ownership, with more unions and more of their membership as partners in this enterprise.

"The Federation Bank has the distinction of being the most representative labor bank in America and we intend to keep it that way. The stock of this bank is owned by every branch of organized labor, while in others ownership and control are in one craft or small group. We believe our type of labor bank will be the model for the future.

"The cordial and substantial support we have received from employers, from employers' associations, corporations and business men in all lines also has added to the Federation Bank's strength and increased its prestige as a businesslike banking institution. Tributes we have received from the President, from Secretary Mellon and prominent men in every walk of life are ample proof of the standing of the Federation Bank in the financial world.

"The present stockholders will be given thirty days after the legal meeting to exercise their rights. The first payment on all stock applications, to the extent of 50 per cent., will be made on or before Aug. 15, and final payment on or before Sept. 1, according to the directors' recommendations."

COTTON GOODS TRADE BRISK

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 5.—One of the supporting elements in the market during the past week has been the broadening activity in the manufactured goods trade. The needs created by the hot weather which has spread over the country have caught retailers everywhere with insufficient stocks of seasonable fabrics, hence there has been an urgent demand for supplies in the large distributing markets and from the mills.

Fall River, according to a dispatch to the Cotton Exchange News Bureau here, has sold in excess of 200,000 pieces of cloths the past week, which is a larger movement than has been experienced in a long time.

NEW STATE RECORD IN INCORPORATIONS

10,479 FROM THIS CITY

Corporation Bureau Took in Nearly $2,000,000 in Fees in Consequence.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, July 5.—Incorporation of 12,139 stoc kcompanies in the State during the first six months of 1925 established a new record for the Corporation Bureau of the Secretary of State's office, according to Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, who said today that of the number chartered, 10,479 are located in Greater New York. The report, which covers the activities of the world's largest corporation bureau, reveals that the totals for the first six months are 1,508 companies ahead of the same period of 1924.

It is indicated that the totals for New York City exceed those of the first half of 1924 by 1,230 companies, the record for that six months being 9,240 companies from New York City. Because of the fact that many companies are incorporating these days with stock at no par value, it is not possible to give the exact amount of capitalization represented by the total for the past six months. Without taking into consideration the companies that incorporated without par value, those stating their capitalization show an aggregate of $384,399,720.

Every county in the State, with the exception of Hamilton, is represented by new incorporations. Outside of New York City 1,660 stock companies have received charters since Jan. 1, these figures representing an increase over the first six months of 1924 of 269 companies.

With many more companies incorporating, the receipts of the Corporation Bureau for the period reached $1,908,062.05, an increase of $739,203.97 for the corresponding period of last year. During the month of June the receipts of the bureau were $201,404, an increase of approximately $59,000 over June of last year.

The report for the fiscal year ended June 30 shows a gain in receipts of approximately $1,000,000 over the previous one.

	1924.	1925.
February	1,764	1,755
March	1,920	2,230
April	1,817	1,995
May	1,699	2,087
June	1,432	2,106
Total	10,631	12,139

It will be noted that January and February of 1924 ran slightly ahead of the same two months of 1925, but March went ahead, and since that time there has been a steady increase in New York City and the rest of the State, with a big lead in June.

Of the 2,106 stock companies incorporated in June, 1,829 gave New York City as their principal office, leaving 277 companies scattered over forty-two counties. Westchester led with sixty-eight companies to its credit for last month, Erie taking second place with forty-six companies, while Nassau, in which there has been great activity for several months, took third honors with twenty-seven new companies. Nassau ran ahead of Monroe, which had only twenty companies last month. Onondaga had ten.

During June 637 real estate companies were incorporated, although many of the new ones represent firms engaging in both construction and development as well as real estate in the generally accepted term. Real estate occupies first place, however. Companies embarking in the manufacture of radio sets and radio parts dropped from the totals of May. June brought forth only fourteen of them. Garment making totaled sixty-five.

Up to the present time 201 stock companies have incorporated this year from Nassau County; Westchester had 305 for the six months and Suffolk County fifty-two. Erie County's part in the activities of the Bureau is represented by 263 companies during the first half of the year.

Grains and Cotton Sustain Sharp Decline—Lard, Dairy Products and Metals Up.

Cash markets last week were shocked by the severe reaction which was sustained by the contract options, two notable groups of staples dropping sharply in keeping with the weakness for the futures. In the grains, for instance, wheat, corn, oats, flour and rye were substantially lower than the previous week's finals, rye touching a new low for the year. The Government estimate of the cotton crop as 75.9 per cent., and a yield of 14,339,000 bushels, unequalled since 1918, sent middling uplands down for a loss of 90 points to 23.80 cents.

On the side of advances, lard moved to a new high, with good size gains in butter, eggs, copper, zinc, tin and printcloths. Steadiness prevailed in iron, steel, billets, pork, beef and sugar.

Mrs. Duckett, Who Leaped From Burning Building, Still Lives but Cannot Recover.

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 5.—With reports of her death circulated about the village, Mrs. George Duckett, who was injured in the rooming house fire in which seven persons lost their lives yesterday morning, according to hospital authorities, remained today in the same condition as when she was removed from the burning building.

Her injuries, which were received when she jumped from a third story window after throwing a pillow to the firemen in mistake for her year-old child, consist of severe burns and bruises. Physicians say she will not recover. The body of the baby was found by firemen.

Colonel Walter Scott of New York started a relief fund for the victims of the fire and their families with a check for $100.

Collections taken up for the survivors at two benefit performances under the direction of William Morris Jr. of New York amounted to $709. Mr. Morris gave $50. The performers, all of whom came from New York, gave their services.

The Jackson Matthews Post, American Legion, and the local chapter of the Disabled American Veterans gave $25. The total fund is now over $1,000.

An investigation into the cause of the fire and the fire safeguards of the building will begin tomorrow under the direction of District Attorney Harold W. Main.

PARK FIRE IMPERILS 15,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, July 5.—Lives of thousands of Sunday merry makers were endangered early this evening when a rapidly spreading fire destroyed several buildings in the White City Amusement Park at Sixty-third Street and South Park Avenue.

Warned by park employes, the 15,000 or more persons in the park at the time moved out rapidly, but with a semblance of order.

Members of an engine company, however, narrowly missed death when a live electric wire fell near them. The only injury reported was that of Harold Hopkin, a park employe, who was struck by a bit of flying debris. His injuries were attended to on the spot.

COL. COOLIDGE ON PORCH.

Sits There for an Hour and a Half Watching Tourists.

PLYMOUTH, Vt., July (AP).—Colonel John C. Coolidge, the President's father, who a week ago today underwent an operation, sat on his front porch for an hour and a half today and enjoyed himself by watching tourists who passed through the town.

Neighbors who saw Colonel Coolidge said he was looking "much better" than they expected. He is 80 years old, but despite his years he seemed to have stood the effects of his recent illness remarkably well. He got out of bed for his lunch and then walked to the porch.

STYLE TRENDS FOR THE NEXT SEASON

SOME NEW BACK FEATURES

Stylists in the ready-to-wear field now returning from abroad voice their impressions of the features of the new season with considerable diversity of viewpoint as to the merits of the changing silhouette, although they are fairly well agreed upon fabric decisions, colors and details. In this matter of the silhouette, it would appear that the leading American houses of design will adopt a middle course, offering with greater or less enthusiasm back flares, all-around flares, back pleats and a variety of back features, at the same time retaining the popular flat back devoid of detail, and the front and side flare.

The decision as to future of back flares, according to a statement issued by the fashion service department of Botany Worsted Mills, rests at the point which preceded the adoption of the flat tight back some seasons ago, a silhouette which aroused sharply antagonistic views as to its "un-American" characteristics when first presented by the haute couture.

The statement goes on to cite the views of leading designers of style houses here with reference to the style status of the return of back fullness for the new season. Henry T. Farrar of Henri Bendel, says: "It is the old story—will the consumer demand the new lines? We are submitting them, but it remains for madame or mademoiselle to accept or reject. The introduction of the new theme, however, will not eliminate the still attractive features of front fullness and the close back line. In a sense, the stimulation afforded by the new silhouette gives exactly what representative collections find essential at all times—versatility."

Hattie Carnegie states that, although the flat back will be tenaciously adhered to by those to whom it offers the lines of youth, back fullness must be reckoned with in its initial stages of unfoldment. This designer therefore employs delicately defined flares in the newly adjusted manner, at the same time offering a closely molded back line with new theories of front fullness.

"The flare in any form," says Miss Carnegie, "induces a style so distinctly feminine that it brings about a vogue for the softest, lightest textures and a subdued color range, and in my judgment this is the trend of importance this season. The supple new velvets are at their best when interpreted in pastel bois de rose, the blond, beige and sable tones. The pale dregs of wine shades, beet root and deep warm red purples and also a rich tawny dark orange, which is quite new, introduce an interesting variation in the matter of color. Greens are also soft and deep in tone.

"The mannish styles are taking on a new delineation, and the town wear or semi-sports note introduces soft coatings and suitings and furs of an entirely new range, which eliminate to a large degree the casual sports note."

In the matter of the ensemble, Miss Carnegie has abandoned its literal interpretation in favor of a more liberal relation of textures and patterns. "With the fur-lined wrap I shall present the velvet gown," continued Miss Carnegie. "With the brocade wrap I merely indicate the relation by an accent of brocade on the gown. I am using the very beautiful painted silks and metal cloths which Paris is agog over, but feel that the decorative fabric must be treated with great discretion."

Great brilliancy of color and impressive splendor in the matter of fabric will dominate the evening modes, is the forecast of Victor A. Pincus of Villa Zigmund. "The elaborate styles presented by the exhibiting couture houses at the French Exposition of Decorative Arts and the use of their bizarre motifs will greatly influence the American field," comments Mr. Pincus. "Not only will evening dress show the effect of this movement, but the entire realm of dress, including accessories, will show this dramatic influence. Handwork on fabrics is not new, but the types of design adopted are original as applied to dress."

In evening modes great stress is laid by this style critic upon the importance of metal brocades showing rosette-floral patterns in two, three and four tones. Fur borders are regarded as indispensable, and are illustrated in a typical gown by Lucien Lelong upon a gold brocade showered with roses in three tones of pink, embellished with turquoise green velvet. To this creation is added a four-inch border of mole, dyed gold-brown.

Embroideries are regarded as of special interest in a new geometric expression of small motifs in unusual massed formations. Many fine details of metal are stressed here and the note of complex self-fabric manipulations upon both woolen and silk creations is outstanding. Combinations of two and three shades of one color, or two and three colors, are noted and intricate hand detail is conspicuous. Mr. Pincus anticipates a prolonged period of favor for the straight back and upholds the flat ornately treated back rather than its flared interpretation. The latter in his opinion, if adopted, will require the utmost care in adjustment.

The importance of both line and color is emphasized by Mrs. Raymond Hitchcock, style adviser for Charles Kondazian. "Brilliant shades will rival those of appealing softness," says Mrs. Hitchcock. "Dregs of wine and beet-root will gradually replace the sharp purples. Bois de rose, from its dark practical shades to its pastel tones, is of the greatest importance, from street wear to evening dress. Blues are most insistently sponsored by high authorities in a wide range from indigo to turquoise. Although it may be too early to forecast accurately for Palm Beach, the new Alpine blue of strong pervanche cast will, I believe, prove to be highly influential for the midwinter resort season."

Clear bright greens, which Americans have never fancied for Winter, are included in the list of leading shades by this authority, as are a deep soft rose and various bronze browns. Iris yellow, a new orange-yellow, is regarded as an exclusive development, also a dark gold, quoted as one of the new metal shades.

In fabrics Mrs. Hitchcock sees the striking woolen novelties, plain and novel velvets, brocades and the hand-decorated metals as the leading tendencies. The silhouette is regarded as subject to fluctuations and uncertainties until November.

Mrs. Regensberg, stylist for Patullo, Inc., has featured in her first collection a widely varied silhouette treatment, utilizing flares of all-around, back, side and front development. Draped panels, scarfs, swathings and floating draperies are upheld. Fur bandings and borders, a free use of metal detail, and a discreet application of embroidery are noted.

"For vivid evening gowns of the most youthful appeal, I am presenting a type of novel chiffon brocade which, I believe, ushers in a new movement," Mrs. Regensberg says. "These fabrics show small geometric patterns in metal and contrasting color, and serve to introduce a new long sleeve evening gown. My color convictions include chartreuse, a great deal of deep rose and clear flesh pink, and the bright pastels, especially a brilliant geranium rose. Bois de rose and the bronze browns are essential shades this season, as are the deep greens."

MACMILLAN'S RADIO HEARS ALABAMA

He Receives Daylight Messages From Amateurs in That State and Florida.

CHICAGO, July 5 (AP).—The Zenith Radio Corporation today announced a message from E. F. McDonald Jr., second in command of the MacMillan Arctic Expedition, now at Battle Harbor, Labrador, stating that the expedition had received daylight radio messages from amateurs in Florida and Alabama.

"All well on board; spirits high in anticipation of next stop in Greenland," McDonald reported.

His report also said that all messages being sent from the MacMillan expedition were "Zenith broadcasting."

H. H. Roemer, an official of the Zenith corporation, tonight declared the report had definitely established the superiority of short wave length sets over those of wider spread for use over long distances in daylight. This, he said, accomplishes one of the main objectives of McDonald in accompanying the expedition.

COOLIDGE IS CRITICIZED.

London Paper Says His July Fourth Speech Doesn't Aid Peace.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, July 6.—While not doubting the sincerity of the professions which animated President Coolidge's Independence Day speech, The Daily News this morning expresses the opinion editorially that the time has come when it is necessary to point out that such speeches do no service to the cause of peace, either in the New World or the Old.

"In America," it says, "they can do no good. In Europe they do positive harm, and for this reason: The implication in this and similar speeches appears to be that love of peace is almost exclusively an American virtue and that the enmities which distract Europe have their roots in a savage passion for war in itself.

"They arise, of course, from no such thing. They arise from jealousies and fears from which America is free, not owing to her own superior righteousness, but owing simply to historical and geographical accidents.

"The first thing obviously required in any American statesman who feels himself called upon to prescribe for Europe is that he should make himself master of the facts and symptoms of her case. There is not a word in President Coolidge's speech which suggests that he even attempted to do this."

SMALL BOY IS KILLED BY HIS FATHER'S AUTO

Although highways leading into the city were thronged last night with almost unprecedented traffic few accidents had been reported up to a late hour.

While backing his automobile at the home of friends in Mount Hermon, N. J., Earl Smith of Phillipsburg, N. J., ran down his two-year-old son, Earl Jr. The little boy was rushed to the office of a physician in Blairstown, N. J., where he died.

Richard Pizzaro of Columbia Avenue, Hartsdale, received a fracture of the skull, and four other persons were slightly injured in a double automobile crash on the Bronx River Parkway near White Plains early yesterday. The injured were Miss Ruth Hungerford of Scarsdale, Miss Alice Tuckey of 65 Davis Avenue, White Plains, and William Histy and William McCarley, both of Bronxville. Pizzaro and the girls were in a taxicab which hit a Ford standing without lights in the road. A minute later Walter Clark of Hartsdale, with Histy and McCarley as passengers, struck the taxicab.

BUILDING TENSE AS WORKERS SEEK RISES

COURT BARS COERCION

There is an ominous tensity developing in the building business, writes Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals has ruled that jurisdictional strikes are illegal yet almost simultaneously with the handing down of this decision, builders have had to seek within the past week the protection of the city authorities for men who would not join others of their union who stopped work because of circumstances the plasterers complained of.

On December 31st the present building trades wage agreement expires. Meantime employers in cities near New York have granted wage increases to building artisans far beyond the present New York City wage scales. Newark, for example, has affirmed a rate for bricklayers of $13 a day from July 20, 1925, to June 1, 1926, and $14 a day from June 1, 1926, three years hence, to June 1, 1929. Carpenters there will get $11.20, steamfitters, $11, and sheet metal workers, $11. New York pays, up to the end of this year, bricklayers, $12; steam fitters, carpenters and sheet metal workers, $10.50 a day.

All through New York's building industry and allied lines, efforts are being made to increase union membership so as to make more impressive to the employers the wage demands that are already due to be made.

It may well be that one of the largest lenders of building money in the country had this situation in mind when in the early part of June in this column he referred to the "danger mark in construction work" that the country was reaching, especially in New York.

Nevertheless it is already a question as to how far the building public will go in supporting wage increase after wage increase, but the time is not far off when the present falling off in volume of building projects in New York City, if not elsewhere, will acquire the proportions of an investors' protest against constantly rising labor cost.

Builders, in the interim, find in the decision handed down in the case against the Sheet Metal Workers' International Association a clean-cut deliverance from the often tyrannical sympathetic or jurisdictional strike. It is established that such strikes are illegal on the ground that they constitute an unwarrantable interference by third parties in disputes between owners or general contractors and individual subcontractors.

The decision is being hailed as marking the end of one of the worst plague spots still remaining in the construction industry, costing the owner-investor heavily in postponed completion of his project.

The controversy involving the cement workers (not the fireproofers) is clearly stated by C. G. Norman, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association:

"An agreement exists between the Masters' League of Cement Workers and Local No. 1 and 570 of the O. P. & C. F. I. A., and this local is the one generally recognized in the building trades. At a conference held in my office on Feb. 11 it developed that a certain group of this union had seceded from their national affiliation by refusing to obey an order of their National Executive Committee. A great many of the seceders continued to be employed in the industry, with the result that on some jobs the plasterers refused to work with these men, and the contractor, rather than lose his plasterers, laid off the cement masons. Many of the jobs were manned by the men who had remained regular with their union and these jobs continued, with more men being employed daily.

"A week ago Monday the seceders decided to stop their men on all jobs. The work being done by these men was the putting down of finished cement floors, sidewalks and work of a similar character. These men leaving the work did not stop any brickwork or general construction of any kind, and up to the first of this week work has progressed without any interferences."

Another phase of the building situation affecting building material cost, supply and delivery, is the tremendous demand that has developed from national construction for cement. It is already beyond precedent. Some mills are borrowing from other mills to accommodate their customers. While May production was greatest in history of the industry and shipments were greater than ever recorded, June shipments are expected to exceed the mark set for that month. Incidentally the International Cement Corporation confirms the acquisition by purchase of the Birmingham plant of the Phoenix Cement Company, making the tenth plant in its control.

The common brick situation is described as "healthy" and "a good steady market." White lead in oil has dropped in price slightly. Delivered on the job prices nominally held firm, with a tendency in most quarters to advance in course of time, but in view of the uncertainties regarding the amount of construction work that is likely to be projected for the remainder of the year price stability will bring about a quicker recovery next Spring than will most certainly be the case if building material price fluctuation follows every twist of the market pending the settlement of the wage question.

A Message to Those Who Lack Ready Cash To Buy a Home

THE organization making this offer is a group of realty men of strong financial resources, interested in providing "honestly built" all-year homes for city dwellers who are tired of city life and earnestly desired to establish their own home in the same healthful, attractive, accessible residential section usually accessible only to those of large means.

One of Ten Types of Homes to Select From

On ¼ Acre
Boating
Bathing
Fishing

Because of extensive financing necessary to carry out this plan successfully, we will be able to accept with whom we can co-operate as a group, making possible the building and purchase of the 100 homes at the lowest possible cost and most advantageous terms. By co-operating as a unit these 100 families will get homes built of materials and a class of workmanship to be found only in homes of the best type, costing much more.

Only 100 Families

$275 Assures HOME OWNERSHIP
$5 WEEKLY
Every Improvement, including Water, Gas and Electricity

This Is the Most Amazing Offer to the Man of Moderate Means

A HALF MILLION FAMILIES, at a conservative estimate, solid, substantial families, have dreamed of some day being able to buy a home of their own in a spot where their children and they can live a normal, happy, healthy life, away from the congestion and handicaps of the city, with its high rents and cramped apartments, and yet near enough to their day's work in the city.

NO REASON TO PAY RENT NOW. You, too, can become the owner of a fine home on a quarter or half acre plot in this popular, restricted, residential community, selected for its convenience and accessibility, where you will be surrounded by worthwhile neighbors, with good Schools, Stores and Churches, where the great outdoors welcomes you to sunshine and fresh air. We offer every opportunity you can ask for to come in on this project early. If you delay it will be due to your own neglect and you have only yourself to blame.

The land owned by this organization is free and clear of all mortgage indebtedness. It is located in one of the fastest growing and most beautiful sections on the South Shore of Long Island, 38 minutes from New York, well within the commuting zone, by fast electric express train service.

HYLAN REORGANIZES HOSTS FOR THE CITY

WANAMAKER IS CHAIRMAN

Mayor John F. Hylan announced Saturday the reorganization of the Mayor's Committee on Receptions, headed by Rodman Wanamaker as Chairman and William H. Woodin as First Vice Chairman. In a statement made public from the City Hall the Mayor said:

"The reorganized committee will have an extended scope of activity, making unnecessary the appointment of special committees as in the past for particular celebrations and observances. The forthcoming celebration of the 300th anniversary of the purchase of Manhattan Island will engage the immediate attention of the committee. An important part of its functions will be to increase a knowledge of the city and to assist in bringing to New York visitors and conventions from all parts of the world."

The following is the Mayor's letter to the membership of the reorganized Mayor's Committee on Receptions:

"Dear Sir: The celebration of special events has frequently made necessary the organization of individual committees, except where the Committee on Receptions to Distinguished Guests was empowered to function.

"It has been deemed advisable to reorganize the Mayor's Committee on Receptions and to consolidate with it the existing committees. The new committee will be known as the Mayor's Committee on Receptions.

"This committee will discharge the duties now scattered among the committees which it supersedes. It will also be empowered to make arrangements for all appropriate celebrations and observances. The approaching 300th anniversary of the purchase of Manhattan Island, for the celebration of which a number of representatives of civic and historical groups suggested the formation of a special committee, will come within the scope of the new committee's activities.

"Of paramount importance to commercial enterprises and to our citizens in general is the placing of the City of New York in a true and favorable light. Unique opportunities are here afforded for the profitable transaction of business and for healthful, wholesome living amid conditions of safety and security challenging comparison with any large city of the world. These facts and other conspicuous features of our city should be published broadcast so that intending visitors and conventions may be attracted to New York. The dissemination of such information will be one of the continuing activities of the newly organized committee.

"Your known interest in this city and your desire to promote its progress and prosperity prompt my extending to you a cordial invitation to serve as a member of the Mayor's Committee on Receptions. Will you kindly indicate, as soon as convenient, your pleasure in the matter?"

The officers of the committee were announced as follows:

John F. Hylan, Honorary Chairman; Rodman Wanamaker, Chairman; William H. Woodin, First Vice Chairman; Grover A. Whalen, Executive Vice Chairman; E. F. Albee, Vice Chairman; Lewis L. Clarke, Vice Chairman; William Randolph Hearst, Vice Chairman; Franklin Simon, Vice Chairman; George F. Mand, Treasurer; Alfred L. Meehan, Assistant Treasurer; John F. Sinnott, Secretary.

The Executive Committee follows:

LOCALITY MAYORS SEEN IN DEADLOCK

The fourth annual convention of the locality Mayors of New York City is to be held at the Hotel Astor next Sunday afternoon. According to Louis Zeltner, advance agent for the convention, it is likely that the fifteen Mayors will find themselves deadlocked on who is to succeed Jack Spero, Mayor of Washington Heights, as Chief Mayor.

Spero hopes to succeed himself, but Stich McCarthy, Mayor of Grand Street, also aspires to the office.

"It isn't so much that I care to be Chief Mayor," Stitch said yesterday, "as it is that I want to see that silk stocking from Washington Heights defeated. He was elected at the last convention on the promise that he would help the poor people. In the first place there aren't any poor people on Washington Heights. It's a silk stocking district. If I am chosen chief I will show that a chief can do for the people."

The recent disappearance of Morris Eisenstein, for fifteen years the Mayor of First Avenue, adds more mystery to the plot to oust Spero, according to some of the downtown faction. Eisenstein deserted the east side, they charge, to become Mayor of Bryant Avenue. Two reasons have been assigned for this. One is that he wished to keep close watch of the activities of Spero. The other is that he felt his influence, from the vantage point of Bryant Avenue, would be more potent in the convention than if he remained with the others on the east side.

SAYS SEASHELL IS WEAPON.

Judge Looks One Over and Rules It Dangerous in Assault.

An unusual object was listed among deadly weapons yesterday when Judge Charles W. Boote in Yonkers City Court granted that a seashell was capable of inflicting serious injury, as charged by John Blonti, a landlord. Blonti had James Dunne, 32 years old, arrested, and alleged he had hit him with a seashell.

When the complaint charging second degree assault was handed up to Judge Boote he called to see the seashell. After looking it over he held that it might cause grievous hurts if used in an assault. He allowed the second degree assault charge, which is a prison offense, to stand against Dunne, a married man with six children, living at 2,779 Eighth Avenue, New York City. The complainant, who lives at 1,061 Huntsbridge Road, Yonkers, charged that Dunne, while visiting with his mother in the complainant's house, quarreled with him over hitting a child and assaulted him. Dunne pleaded not guilty and was paroled until Tuesday.

Cuts Himself as Wife Scolds Him.

Because, it is said, his wife, Mary, upbraided him for coming home drunk early yesterday, Frank Metallo slashed himself with a bread knife in his home at 248 York Street, Jersey City. An ambulance surgeon took him to the Jersey City Hosptial, where it was said that his condition was critical.

LAST

$5—$20 REDUCTIONS

Now to dispose of them altogether! July is the month! $5 to $20 is the reduction!

This means:

169 fabrics that were $40—$50
now made to order for $35

141 fabrics that were $50—$60
now made to order for $40

93 fabrics that were $60—$70
now made to order for $50

The fabrics include summer sheer weights, spring medium weights, and all year, all weather weights. Many of them are those "specials" which have astounded New York this season. The prices run lower than any we have quoted this season. Hence, you will find those remarkable values which obtain only here, and only at this time of year.

Philadelphia, Unique in World, Could Grow To 25,000,000 People

"As a background for the largest population in the world, the area of Philadelphia is unique among world cities," said Dr. Thomas W. Davis, city statistician.

"There is no city in the world that could expand to a population of 25,000,000 as we can within a radius of thirty miles around City Hall. In contrast, New York is confined to an island with few of the natural topographical advantages for expansion.

"Take the 35th ward, in the northeast section. Today it is nearly all rolling farm land. It is approximately thirty-three and a half square miles in area and capable of accommodating an increase of 1,000,000 people.

"We could add 8,000,000 to 9,000,000 people to the present area of Philadelphia county and, even then, we would have room to spare."

From the Evening Bulletin, June 5, 1925.

PHILADELPHIA HAS ROOM for 23,000,000 MORE!

There is no city in the world with an area available for expansion equal to that of Philadelphia. Within the city limits there is room to house comfortably a total population of 25,000,000, more than the combined populations of the States of New York and Pennsylvania. In one ward alone, now mostly open country with an area larger than that of West Philadelphia, 1,000,000 persons can be accommodated.

Not only is there room for growth, but there is a definite spirit of progress in Philadelphia which pervades everything and surpasses anything that has gone before.

Men of vision are at the helm, guiding this progress in its proper course. Never before has Philadelphia been confronted with so splendid an opportunity to expand in every direction.

For profitable investment in real estate, Philadelphia presents opportunities without number. One need not go to Florida or Southern California to find acres of diamonds. Day by day the land values of our city are being enhanced as the monumental improvements under construction proceed toward completion.

It is a matter of no little pride that this organization is, in a modest way, contributing its share of service to the citizenry in the development of the new and greater Philadelphia.
